Former trustee hopeful Fagan challenges board

Village trustees' silence on shakedowns questioned

by LYNN ASINOF

A group of Prospect Heights residents went away satisfied Tuesday night after the Wheeling Zoning Board unanimously rejected plans to convert a single-family home at 201 Wolf Rd., into a doctor's office.

The residents showed up in force to protest the zoning change requested by Edward and Dolores Smetana. In addition to objections on the office building's impact on the area, residents also cited recent indictments against six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials. The indictments resulted from a federal grand jury investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling.

One resident said that in light of the indictments, the recent annexation of Smetana's property "smells of tricky undermining of our residential standards."

In one of 17 letters read into the record, another resident said he wanted nothing to do with Wheeling. "Let me make it very clear that neither I nor the bulk of my neighbors want any part of Wheeling or the quality of life and government it offers," said Joe Massarelli, 10 N. Mandel Ln., Prospect Heights.

Zoning board member Hugh Sommerfeld responded to these charges by saying they were "not in the spirit of what the United States was founded upon."

"SEVERAL OF THE letters saw fit to indict an entire community and imply some of the unfortunate things that have been in the newspapers," he said. "We have courts and we must utilize those or we will bring out country to a position that is untenable to all of us."

Frank Wojek, zoning board chairman, said that while he thought Sommerfeld's remarks were justified, he noted that the Prospect Heights residents are entitled to their own opinions. "It is a matter of opinion in their minds and they are entitled to it," he said.

Most of the residents, however, objected to the rezoning because of increased traffic, sewer problems, reduced property values and the fact that the area is now residential.

"No one person or petition has the right to upset my privacy or profit from what would be a disturbance to me and my family," said Otto Solymosy, 207 N. Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights.

In another letter, Patricia Bialik, 125 Mandel Ln., Prospect Heights, said "The rezoning affects me and my neighbors more than it affects you and the Village of Wheeling."

SMETANA TRIED to dispute the residents' argument by citing examples of other businesses being operated in areas homes. "Everyone is objecting because I want to have it zoned and done in a legal way," he said.

The zoning board, however, said pictures and telephone books submitted by Smetana did not prove that the area is not residential.

While the zoning board was receptive to the residents' objections, they based their rejection of the zoning request on the fact that Smetana's home would not meet village set back requirements as an office building.

A Wheeling resident charged the village board with losing its credibility for refusing to comment on the recent indictment of six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials.

Harold Fagan, who was defeated in his bid for trustee in the 1973 village election, asked how the trustees could have been unaware of those matters which led to the indictments. The indictments followed a year-long federal grand jury investigation into alleged shakedowns in Wheeling.

"I find it incredible from time to time that you sit up there and on advice of legal counsel you refuse to answer," Fagan said.

When the trustees replied that they were unaware of any of the alleged shakedowns of developers in the village, the accountability session at Mark Twain School turned into a verbal sparring match.

Fagan charged that the village attorney's advice should be questioned since it apparently led to the indictment of Building Director William Bleber and Environmental Commission Chairman Michael Valenza.

IN ADDITION, Fagan questioned the fact that the campaign finances of the To Overall Progress Party (TOP) have still not been released, despite the fact that their disclosure was promised immediately after last April's election.

Trustees Al Lang and William Hein, both elected on the TOP ticket, said they had not been involved in the finances of the campaign. "We did the part we were supposed to do, which was talk to the people," Hein said.

When Fagan pushed the question, Lang responded "I'm sick and tired of all this self-righteous people harping on this."

"In other words, you're just a bunch of brass monkeys sitting up there," Fagan replied. "How can you be so blind?"

The trustees in turn accused Fagan of

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report

The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebienski, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday, but since then business has been slow. Grzebienski expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

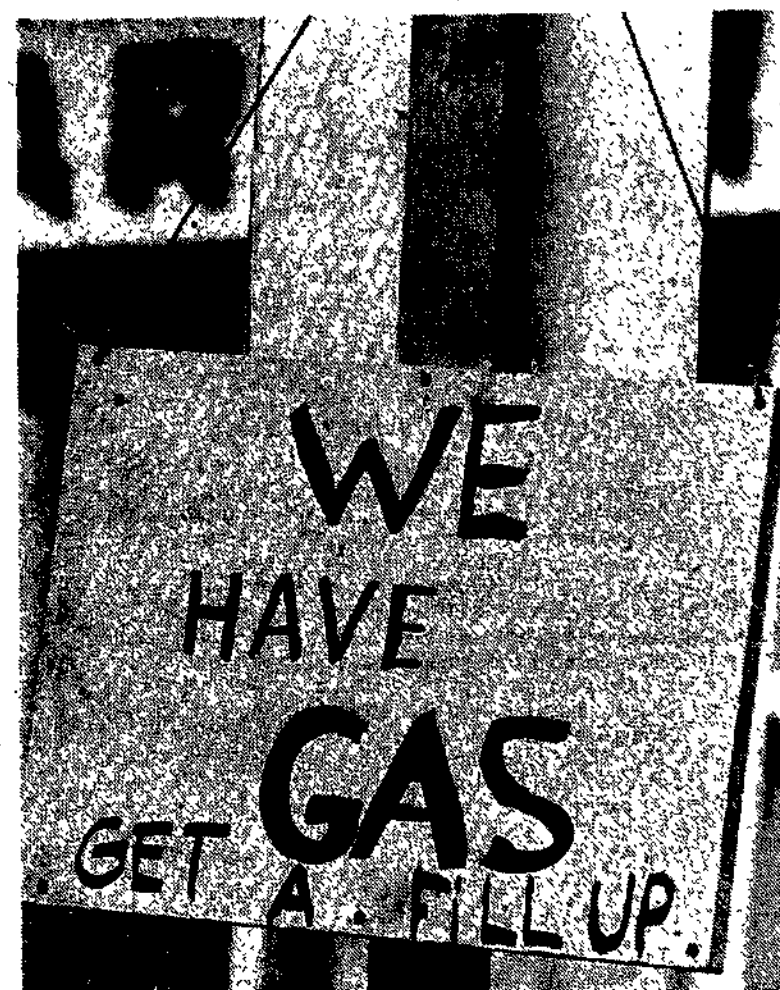

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 56 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

Walser is hoping to fill the two-year unexpired term of former Buffalo Grove school board member, Jack Landau, who resigned last fall.

Clayton picked up petitions several weeks ago, but did not file them yesterday. He could not be reached for comment on whether he intends to seek re-election.

Anyone wanting to run for either the Dist. 21 or 96 school board may still obtain petitions, which must be filed before March 22.

Dist. 21 petitions of candidacy may be obtained in the administration office, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Petitions of candidacy to participate in the Dist. 96 school board election are available in the administration office at Kildeer School in Long Grove.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

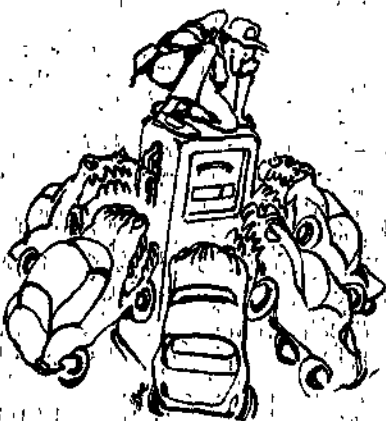

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

President coming to Chicago the 15th

President Nixon will speak at a luncheon of the Executive Club of Chicago March 15, his first major appearance in the Midwest since last summer.

Nixon will answer questions by the club's members after the luncheon at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The appearance will be available for live broadcast by radio and television, Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said yesterday.

Warren said the invitation was extended by Arthur R. Steward, executive director of the club of 3,500 Chicago business executives. The last time the president appeared in the Midwest was last summer when he traveled to Pekin, Ill. Most of his appearances since then have been in the South.

Warren said Nixon will address the annual convention of the National Assn. of Broadcasters in Houston March 19 where he will also answer questions from members.

Transit bill debate

Six state legislators will debate the merits of the Regional Transportation Authority bill at 8 p.m. March 12 in the Lancer Restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg.

Arguing in favor of the RTA will be representatives Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, and Harold Katz, D-Glenview. Speaking against it will be Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Representatives Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates. Schlickman and Totten are leaders in the know RTA committee.

The public is invited to the debate, which will follow a social hour and dinner meeting of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce. Dinner seats will be by reservation only, and are $7.25 per person. Requests for seating at a legislators table will be honored on a first-come, first served basis.

Questions will be allowed from the audience following the open debate.

Tax refunds in mail

The first batch of 1973 state income tax refund checks will go into the mail this week, state comptroller George W. Lindberg said yesterday.

Lindberg said the first mailing will be about 100,000 checks of an estimated total $2.5 million.

This will be the first year his office has processed the checks, the comptroller said. In the past, the Department of Revenue — which collects taxes — also has processed the refunds.

Meadows weighs bus study

The tentacles of the Metron bus service are not reaching out to include Rolling Meadows. Metron Systems Corp., a suburban-based local bus service, has offered a proposal to Rolling Meadows to provide six specialized bus services for city residents. City officials are now taking a look at the proposal to decide if they should spend $4,000 to undertake a study of the idea.

Among the possible services offered by Metron are a commuter run to the train station, in-city shopping routes, a route to Harper and dial-a-bus service to home pick up. Metron currently runs suburban bus service in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, and East Chicago, Ind.

Meanwhile, a commuter bus line for Elk Grove Village residents begins Monday. The service will run for a six-month trial period with a major portion of the expenses paid for from the Village's share of federal revenue sharing money. Two local buses will offer dial-a-bus and commuter service.

Housing fight likely

The director of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. yesterday gave strong indication that his organization will continue to fight in court the decision by Arlington Heights to prohibit construction of low-and moderate-income housing in the village.

Salvatore Ferrara, head of the private housing development organization, said the recent decision by a federal court upholding the Arlington action was "eminently appealable" and his board of directors will meet shortly to decide on an appeal.

Gas woes to be studied

Yet another community is putting its official foot in the gas business. Service station owners and Elk Grove Village officials may get together this week to discuss hours of operation for the local businesses.

Last night station owners in Mount Prospect met with Mayor Robert Teichert to talk over their problems, and in Des Plaines a similar meeting has taken place.

Walker in 1976? That's dream of Dem Don Norman

by BARRY SIGALE

Donald L. Norman has officially begun a campaign of one to push Gov. Daniel Walker for President in 1976 even though Walker doesn't know anything about it nor do the people he will ask to help him.

The Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman said he is setting out to propel Walker into the White House as Illinois' favorite son candidate as a result of a vision that came to him over the weekend.

Norman admits that he has no backing for such a crusade yet, that he doesn't have any money to promote his idea and that he is taking a big risk that Walker, himself, will scrap his proposal before it gets off the ground.

"This is not known to the governor, the mayor or anyone else," said Norman. "If the governor wishes me to cease and desist I will do so immediately. But if he does not stop me I will form a committee of 100 to campaign for him for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States in 1976."

NORMAN SAID he was speaking for no one but himself when he announced his decision at a press conference yesterday in his Arlington Heights law office. He has had 250 posters printed and will soon ask state and local elected officials to work on a planning committee. He has tabbed State Rep. Eugene Chapman of Arlington Heights to head "Women for Walker," but she has not made her decision to lead the organization.

The committeeman said he will not be able to give full attention to the campaign until after the March 19 primary. He was appointed to the post last year when former committeeman James McCabe resigned. He is being opposed by Nathaniel Leighton.

Norman was very solemn and reflective during the press conference, perhaps revealing his new place in politics. Some of it was about Walker but most of it was about Mayor Richard J. Daley.

"I am a Democrat. I always have been and I always will be," he began a lengthy statement. "I think for myself, I ask no one for advice. And being a regular Democrat, perhaps with a question mark (because most Democrats don't make big decisions unless Daley OKs them), I want to say I believe in the

Therapists to attend workshop at hospital

Sixty-five physical and occupational therapists from Chicago area hospitals will attend a workshop on the diagnosis and therapeutic treatment of stroke patients conducted by members of the rehabilitation team of Alexian Brothers Medical Center Saturday.

Stroke is characterized by many different manifestations of brain disorder and these manifestations will be discussed in relation to total rehabilitation. Addressing the group will be E. E. Gordon, MD, chairman of the department of rehabilitation medicine and director of the rehabilitation unit at Alexian Brothers; Perry Chonochas, MA, psychologist; and Lori Frank, MS, speech pathologist.

River basin group to meet next week

The Des Plaines River Basin Steering Committee will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Northlake City Hall, 55 E. North Ave., to continue work on flood prevention plans for the area.

The committee is attempting to consolidate data relating to flooding in the Des Plaines River watershed and tributaries, including Buffalo Creek, McDonald Creek, Lower Salt Creek and Saw Mill Creek.

Nixon seeks minimum wage increases

President Nixon, hoping to avoid another confrontation with Congress, called for enactment of minimum wage increases provided they did not fuel inflation and contribute to unemployment. Wheat survey plan set aside

The House Agriculture Committee yesterday set aside a Senate-passed resolution calling for a government survey of wheat supplies to determine if the nation might face a bread shortage this spring. At the same time, Rep. Robert O. Tierman, D-R.I., announced he would sponsor legislation to set up an export marketing stamp system which he said could drastically reduce the price of wheat and "give the consumer a break."

Dairy co-op wants donation back

The chief attorney for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative, said in a letter released Wednesday that AMPI made a $100,000 "illegal" contribution to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and wants the money back. The attorney also said AMPI gave $5,000 to People's United for Good Government and "we understand this money ultimately wound up in the hands of the Ellsberg burglar."

The Ethiopian cabinet resigned Wednesday as a military rebellion spread through the mountainous African kingdom. Rebel army and navy units demanding higher pay seized the Red Sea port of Massawa and air force personnel joined mutinous soldiers who took over the northern city of Asmara on Tuesday. When negotiations between high-ranking generals and rebel soldiers collapsed, Premier Akilu Habte-Wold and 18 other ministers quit.

Breakthrough: Israel gets POW list

JERUSALEM (UPI) — In a major diplomatic triumph, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Wednesday delivered to Israel a list of its prisoners of war held in Syria and opened the way for talks on disengaging the forces of the two countries.

Kissinger handed over a list of 65 names to a tearful and grateful Prime Minister Golda Meir soon after he arrived from seven hours of talks with President Hafez Assad of Syria.

In turn, he got assurances that he can take back to Syria the Israeli ideas for disengaging troops in the disputed Golan Heights.

The Israeli prisoners will be released as part of the disengagement agreement, a high U.S. official with the Kissinger party said.

"On March 1, we shall give Dr. Kissinger our ideas concerning an Israeli-Syrian separation of forces so that he personally can pass them to the Syrian government," Mrs. Meir said in a five-minute speech on national television.

Kissinger said Mrs. Meir had tears in her eyes when he handed over the list of 65 names written in Arabic and that the chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, wept when he was called in to get the list.

Mrs. Meir said 62 of the names were those of Israeli soldiers and airmen and the others Arab civilians.

Kissinger obtained Syrian assurances that the International Red Cross would be permitted to visit the prisoners beginning Friday morning, the day Kissinger will take the Israeli disengagement plan back to Damascus.

A high U.S. official disclosed that the basic plan had been worked out through intermediaries before Kissinger ever undertook his fourth mission to the Middle East on Monday.

The official said the United States made the basic proposal about 10 days ago — that Syria release the list, that Israel present the disengagement plan and that talks then take place.

While agreement is close on the forum, it is still far away on the actual terms of the disengagement, the official said.

Kissinger is expected to return to the Middle East later to help with the actual disengagement.

After delivering the Israeli proposals to Damascus, Kissinger will fly to Saudi Arabia on Saturday to report to King Faisal. On the same night he will fly to Amman to report to King Hussein of Jordan.

And on Sunday, he will fly to Bonn to talk to West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel and Chancellor Willy Brandt. Monday he will be reporting to the NATO Council of Ministers in Brussels and fly back to the United States the same night.

The pace was breathtaking.

One meeting will be lacking, however. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko arrived in Damascus soon after Kissinger left and in turn should leave shortly before Kissinger gets back there. The U.S. official said they would not meet.

THE LATEST frantic whirl of Henry Kissinger took him from Syria to Israel Wednesday, as he made an early breakthrough in the impasse between the two countries. Kissinger, shown here at his arrival in Tel Aviv with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban (center) and U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Keating (right), won release of a POW list from Syria.

Energy bill passes; veto expected

From Herald news services

Congress finally completed action on the emergency energy bill Wednesday — expecting it to be vetoed — while the Federal Energy Office moved on two fronts to increase gasoline supplies by boosting imports of crude oil.

The energy bill, battled around in Congress for four months, cleared the House 258-151 and headed to the White House for a certain veto by President Nixon.

Nixon announced in advance that he would veto the bill if it passed with a provision to roll back crude oil prices. That was the version that passed, and the American Petroleum Institute immediately denounced it as a "serious disservice to the American consumer," because it will reduce corporate profits and thus discourage production of new crude oil supplies.

House members first struck down a debate rule that was designed to gut the bill, then approved on separate votes its three main portions — authority to ration gasoline, authority to order a long list of conservation measures and a ceiling on oil product prices.

The so-called "price roll back" would set a base price for domestic crude oil of $5.25 a barrel and allow Nixon to raise it to a ceiling of $7.09 a barrel, which is a lower price for some oil in today's market, but higher than other.

Meanwhile, FEO Director William E. Simon asked Congress to remove what he called "disincentives" for oil companies to bring in foreign crude, which under law they must share with competitors even though they may lose money on the deal.

And as an interim step, Simon's aide John C. Sawhill, announced an import incentive will be offered in the form of a regulation exempting from domestic price restrictions any oil a company imports in excess of its 1972 base-level allocation.

Under the import allocation law Congress enacted last year, the government can direct oil companies to divert parts of their imported supplies to competitors to assure all refineries operate at about the same capacity.

This has made some of the big companies reluctant to import, since the prices they pay for crude on the world market may be well above what they are allowed to charge, under U. S. price ceilings, when forced to resell it.

In other energy developments:

• The House Interior Committee defeated a strip mining control bill generally supported by the mining industry and began work on another version favored by environmentalists, which would have tougher demands for reclaiming land.

• Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley charged that General Motors, Standard Oil of California and Firestone acted together in "calculated fashion" to dismantle the electric railway system that served the metropolitan area in the 1930s and 1940s.

• An official of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce — Raymond Bodnar — said federal gas rationing could have a disastrous effect on the state's economy.

• Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., introduced a bill to require that top government and oil company "big shots" wait in line like everyone else to gas up their cars.

See Nixon-Senate crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Department lawyers Wednesday held out the possibility of a "constitutional confrontation of the highest magnitude" if President Nixon were to withhold evidence demanded by the Senate for an impeachment trial.

But they also concluded there is wide support for the idea the Senate can convict a President on any charges it sees fit, because of the "political power" it enjoys through the lack of any constitutional provision for judicial review of a Senate impeachment vote.

The scenario for a historic conflict between the President and the Senate was contained in a summary and two additional memoranda prepared by the department's Office of Legal Counsel in its study of legal and historic impeachment precedents.

Nixon has invoked executive privilege in refusing to surrender subpoenaed tapes and documents to the Senate Watergate committee. "We are not aware of any impeachment involving a federal official . . . where executive privilege was invoked," the Justice lawyers said.

If a President refused to provide information Congress wanted in an impeachment proceeding, they said, the Chief Justice presiding over the Senate trial might rule on the executive privilege issue. But no matter how he ruled, they said, "the Senate has the last word on admissibility of evidence."

Meanwhile, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman refused an offer to plead guilty to one count in the Ellsberg burglary in exchange for dropping charges against him in the Watergate break-in, his lawyer said Wednesday.

Ehrlichman now expects to be indicted — probably within 48 hours when major indictments are expected to be handed down — on more serious charges, the lawyer, Frank Strickler, said in an interview.

British to polls today

From Herald news services

Britain's voters, in the midst of the country's deepest crisis since World War II, will choose a new government today.

Prime Minister Edward Heath put his leadership and the Conservative Party's control on the line less than a month ago, when he dissolved Parliament in the midst of the country's troubles, including a national coal strike, browned-out cities, crippled industry, soaring inflation, a three-day work week and threatened layoffs for millions of workers.

Heath and the Conservatives are being challenged by Harold Wilson and his Labor Party and Jeremy Thorpe and his Liberal Party.

All three radiated confidence in the last day of campaigning, with polls showing the Conservatives holding a narrow edge, but Thorpe is regarded as the country's most popular party leader.

Heath took the grim approach in his last appeal, promising only "hardships and sacrifices" in leading Britain out of its crisis. Wilson charged government anti-labor union policies caused the troubles, while Thorpe bubbled about his chances.

French premier out and in

From Herald news services

French Premier Pierre Messmer — under criticism for what has been described as less than dynamic leadership — quit Wednesday, then was promptly reappointed by President Georges Pompidou to form a new government.

The entire 22-member cabinet, some of whose members had criticized Messmer, resigned, and Messmer was expected to replace it with a smaller and more unified team.

The whole idea of the shuffle, apparently, was to reaffirm Messmer's authority, and it's believed that forming a more elite cabinet will do it.

For Messmer, it will be the third consecutive term as premier, but the first time he or any French premier since 1958 resigned under crisis pressure.

Messmer, 57, is seen as an unswerving disciple of the late Charles De Gaulle, sharing his view of French military independence from the United States.

Like Messmer, Pompidou has been under criticism for his leadership, and under pressure because he has been ailing for more than a year.

FOR THE FIRST time in 35 months, Army Lt. William Calley was allowed freedom Wednesday. Calley, confined to his bachelor officer quarters at Fort Benning, Ga., since his conviction for murdering 22 people at My Lai, was ordered free on bond by the Columbus, Ga., U.S. District Court. He currently is trying to have his 20-year sentence set aside.

pect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), pointed out that the village requires a 50-foot setback for all office buildings. "This gives him a four-foot strip to build on because the lot is 104 feet," he said.

ALTHOUGH SMETANA argued that the lot is 110 feet wide, the zoning board said this did not make a significant difference.

Zoning board member Neil Brant said he could not vote for the rezoning since the building would not meet village codes. "Why should I vote for a B-5 (office) zoning when I know the building will not meet the B-5 regulations," he said.

Ron Potter said that if the zoning was approved, the board "might be opening up a Pandora's box for him to come back for variations."

Since the zoning board is only a recommending body, Smetana will have the chance to further argue his case when the matter comes before the village board.

Zoning denied; Prospect Heights group happy

using the accountability session for political purposes. "We know that you are trying to be a pseudo-political figure," said Trustee John Koeppe, noting the fact that Fagan was defeated in the last two village elections.

KOEPPE ALSO maintained that no developer had ever approached him about the alleged shakedowns. "No builder has ever come to me and said he's had a problem," he said.

After about 20 minutes of verbal battle, several residents in the 17-member audience asked that Fagan hold his questions so that others present might have a chance.

I. V. O'Reilly, 603 N. Wayne Pl., then questioned the village's requirement that a building permit be purchased for the replacement of shingles. The trustees explained that the permit was designed to protect the homeowner by providing a building inspector to review the work.

Mrs. O'Reilly, however, said a building inspector never inspected her shingles, despite the fact that she purchased a permit. "If you are going to encourage people in the maintenance of their homes, don't penalize them by making them get a permit," she said.

The trustees said they would look into the matter, but noted that many people have expressed appreciation for the protection provided by the permit system.

WHEN SEVERAL residents said they had problems getting action from the village on their complaints, Trustee Ed Berger suggested that the village initiate a standardized complaint form.

Berger said that by having a complaint form filled out in triplicate, the resident would have a better chance of getting an answer. He said one copy would go to the responsible department head, a second would go to the village manager and the third copy would stay with the resident.

The residents again questioned Hein's interest in Wheeling Auto Parts, a firm that does business with the village. Mrs. O'Reilly asked if Hein were not faced with an ethical conflict by voting to approve expenditures to that company.

Hein replied that he does not own any part of Wheeling Auto Parts and therefore is not in any conflict.

THE ROBOTS, like Radius (Bill Kelly, left), attack their masters (Matt Knupp) in the Wheeling High School production of "RUR, Russom's Universal Robots," a drama set in the 21st Century. The play will be Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the school.

Food stamps reinstated at opportunity center

The food stamp program at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been reopened, and officials are looking for a formal agreement that would give them a say in the future of the program.

Food stamp distribution at the center ended abruptly last month when state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent out to the center and six other suburban distribution outlets because of a manpower shortage.

A formal agreement would give the center a voice in the future of the program, Newton said. "The program would not be withdrawn until we have had a say and have seen what can be worked out," he said yesterday.

Opportunity Center Director Bruce Newton said he will be meeting with state officials early next week to work out the formal agreement and discuss the possibility of setting up an outpost in this area for people who are applying for public aid for the first time and people who are having problems with their case-workers.

PRESENTLY THOSE people have to go downtown to a Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first come-first-serve basis.

Food stamp counselors in the past went out to the center twice a week and served around 40 people each week. They returned Tuesday for the first time since last month. Officials at NOC are setting up appointments for future interviews.

Last month, the center had about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps. Many families now in the program also need appointments because they must be re-certified every two to six months.

Affected along with Rolling Meadows Center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, the Argo Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights. All except Argo Summit have been reinstated, Newton said.

Despite warning, hospitals will go with construction

Financial trouble for Northwest suburban hospitals and the warning that a new hospital facility now planned "could get hurt badly," were predicted yesterday by Ben Squires, executive director-Comprehensive Health Coordinating Commission of Illinois.

He said the board of directors for hospitals planned in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Wheeling should seriously consider a decision not to build.

Available spokesmen from the hospitals said, however, they plan to proceed toward construction of their facilities.

SQUIRE'S WARNING is based on a Health Facilities and Service plan the state's Comprehensive Health Planning Agency is finalizing so that it may join with the U. S. Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) in controlling health care costs in Illinois.

The plan is based on a formula showing 1,625 hospital beds now available in northwest Cook County will serve the area's needs until 1979.

The formula states that additional facilities for under 200 hospital beds should be built as additions to the existing hospitals — Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove; Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge; and Resurrection Hospital, Chicago.

Contrary to the state's formula, Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital plans a 180-bed branch facility in Schaumburg at Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard. Amerivan Medicorp Inc. plans a 312-bed proprietary hospital at Higgins and Barrington roads, Hoffman Estates; and Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital in Chicago is seeking land for a 223-bed facility in Wheeling.

STATE HEALTH authorities predict "if they all go ahead they will up the cost of patient care without proper compensation," Squire said.

There is nothing the state can do, under current law, to stop construction of the hospitals if they get necessary permits before May or June, said Squire. By then the statewide health plan, subject to public hearings starting next month, should be approved. HEW regulations will be applicable under federal law and the state's formula for allowing new hospital construction will have some teeth, he added.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital hopes to have its permits by April, according to Norman Davis, consultant to the hospital. He expects to have a difficult time getting approval if Franklin Boulevard's plans are not ready before then.

The warnings from the state of financial dangers "don't concern me particularly," he added.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator for St. Luke's in Schaumburg, said his institution is committed to the community to build its facility. RSPL already has all necessary permits.

TOLD OF THE state's warning, Buhrmann said his facility was planned based on extensive study done by RSPL and was collaborated by a publicly funded study done by Ernst and Ernst.

Both showed the need for more hospital beds and the number of doctors they would attract to Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and the surrounding area, he added.

Lace turns in petitions for school board election

The official filing period for candidates who wish to run for the Dist. 23 School Board opened yesterday with one candidate submitting petitions to be on the ballot in the April 13 election.

Melvin Lace, school board president, turned in his petitions yesterday to seek reelection to his third term on the board.

Vincent Battaglia, who is also an incumbent, did not file yesterday but he has taken out filing petitions. Battaglia will be running for his first full term on the board, having won election to a one-year term last year.

All candidates in the district run as independents since no caucus group exists in the district.

Battaglia, 2024 Northwood lives in Arlington Heights, while Lace, 3 Garden Ct., lives in Prospect Heights.

The filing deadline for the election is March 22.

Women have been in a 'rut'

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The help-wanted sign is out for more women in management.

There's room at the top, but climbing up there calls for women in business and industry to get out of their specialization rut and for men to assess women's abilities in a new light.

Two women, who have left behind the specialization syndrome, examine the problems of women moving ahead. They report that, in working with many companies who want to find more women managers, "again and again we find that women tend to get trapped within a narrow, specialized hierarchy . . . we've begun to see that specialization represents not just a skill but a psychological investment.

"THEY EQUATE their own security and value to the company with their particular specialist skills, and they fear the risks involved in giving up those skills to learn a new job even at a higher level.

" . . . Men sort of feel that women are more competent, more productive in a specialized field. Women find that's where they find their security, their recognition. They reinforce each others assumptions."

The two who have written "Women in Management: What Needs to be Done?" are Drs. Margaret Henning and Anne Jardim. Both have served on the faculty of the Harvard Business School and have done extensive consulting work with corporations in the area of educating and upgrading women managers.

THEIR DUAL writing appears in the current issue of Context, DuPont's house publication.

The two say they're not talking about the five per cent who are the "stars" and will blaze through anything. "We're referring to the average, competent woman . . . who could be successful at the middle management level in the same way that the average competent man is."

"When men look at women in management, they tend to see the best of the women as the average. When they look at men, they do not look at them in same way.

"For the average woman to make it, she is expected to be as much like a man as she can. Yet . . . to bring out her real skills and abilities, she can hardly afford to spend the time it takes to be like a man."

Low-cost 'luxury' motels are booming

by JERELYN EDDINGS

ATLANTA — Three years ago a Savannah, Ga. businessman decided to give vacationing American families an alternative to high cost luxury motels, and the idea has blossomed into a multi-million dollar motel chain.

Cecil Day, 39, creator of Days Inn of America Inc., decided to cut some of the luxuries — not the color television or the shag carpeting, but the cocktail lounges, convention halls and plush lobbies — and sell a motel room for $8.

THE SAVANNAH builder and chairman of the board of Days Inn, pooled resources with David B. Kenney, company president, who had motel-restaurant experience, to build the first 80-unit Days Inn motel in Savannah Beach in 1970.

Today, the company owns 143 motels, has 71 franchises under construction and has sold an additional 300 franchises.

Business today

Days Inn currently is building, developing or planning motels in 33 states.

After the first motel in Savannah, the second one was opened in Forsyth, Ga., on I-75, a busy route to Walt Disney World, which had become a family vacation spot in Florida. Two more were built in small Georgia towns before one was opened in Atlanta where the company is based.

"We were amazed by the popularity of the motels," said Kenney, a native of Boston, who attended the restaurant-motel school at Michigan State, then worked for Howard Johnson before joining forces with Day.

"IT JUST SORT of caught on — just sort of happened," he said. Kenney explained that they began by building motels off interstate highways to attract vacationers.

"We're very much family oriented," he said, noting that they attract "people who want the same luxuries" but need something economical.

The motels soon began springing up in areas where the man in town on a business trip was out all day and just needed a place to spend the night.

"He just wants a good, clean room where he can get a decent meal," Kenney said.

He added that the motels are built so that customers can get many services with one stop — gas stations, gift shops and a few of the motels, cafeterias.

AS ENCOURAGEMENT for families afraid to travel because of the energy crisis, Days Inn instituted a program of reserving gas for motorists from their homes to Florida.

Kenney said the gas stations were added to help promote the motels at first but have turned out to be "a real plus."

He said the energy crisis, which has dealt a hard blow to the tourism business, has slowed down construction of Days Inn motels. But Kenney says that also may be helpful because it "keeps us from growing too fast" and gives the company time to digest its progress.

(United Press International)

Energy crisis is top topic

The energy crisis will have a serious impact on world trade, say business leaders participating in the upcoming World Trade Conference in Chicago. The conference is being held at the Palmer House.

In a preconference survey of executive and advisory committee members, 10 of 22 respondents said the crisis may cause a worldwide recession. Some feel the shortage problems will end this year with an agreement between oil producing and consuming nations, while five gave varying opinion on the fuel situation.

Robert McLellan, vice president, FMC Corp. and general chairman of the conference, stated flatly that the crisis would have four results: (1) cause a European recession; (2) re-establish Japanese export competition; (3) accelerate U.S. energy development and (4) cause a U.S. balance of payments deficit.

A Robert Abboud, vice chairman of First Chicago Corp. and conference co-chairman, said "In this regard, it is my firm belief that the resolution of the energy question must be this country's first order of business."

Multigraphics sales reach high

Sales for the Multigraphics Division of Addressograph Multigraph Corp., Mount Prospect, reached a record level during the first week in February.

According to E. C. Bruning, division vice president and general manager, sales of $3.9 million in equipment during Feb. 3-9 were the highest recorded for a single week in the history of the division. Equipment ordered on a rental basis reached near record levels, Bruning said.

The Multigraphics Division manufactures offset duplicators, addressing and mailroom equipment and related supplies.

Universal Oil

A 49 per cent increase in earnings for 1973 was reported recently for Universal Oil Products Co. (UOP), Des Plaines.

UOP issued final, audited figures showing that its operating earnings for 1973 rose to $18,792,000 or $1.88 a share, compared to earnings of $12,567,000 or $1.26 a share for 1972. An extraordinary credit of $2,778,000 or 28 cents a share in the first quarter of 1973 further increased net income for the year to $2.16 per share, the highest in the company's history.

Gross revenues for 1973 were up 27 per cent to $635,958,000, versus $498,707,000 for 1972.

Galaxy Carpet Mills

Galaxy Carpet Mills, Inc., Elk Grove Village, reported net income of $253,000, or 15 cents a share, for the 13-week period ended Dec. 29. Net sales were $11,563,000.

One year ago, the carpet-producer had first period net income of $454,000, or 26 cents a share, on net shipments of $9,442,000.

According to Irwin M. Harvey, president, pre-Christmas volume was not up to the level necessary to fully cover the higher operating and overhead expenses emanating from recent plant and market expansion projects and continuous, almost daily price increases of raw materials.

"Based on the exceptionally high volume of incoming orders and commitments obtained during the recently-concluded round of winter home furnishings markets, and having recently raised our prices, we expect to achieve sales levels during the remainder of the year that will enable us to substantially improve profitability," he said.

Teacher pay talks 'closed'

by LUISA GINETTI

Negotiators for the Prospect Heights Education Assn. (PHEA), which represents teachers in Dist. 23, reluctantly agreed Tuesday to hold closed-door contract bargaining sessions with school board negotiators.

Contract negotiations for the past two years have been open to the public.

The decision to have private sessions was made at an open meeting Tuesday in which ground rules for contract talks were set. The PHEA agreed to the decision only after getting assurances that the public and the press would be allowed "free and open access" to any information which either side cares to release.

The board negotiating team, comprised of school district attorney Henry Valley, assistant superintendent Tom Rich and board member Alan Krinsky, said if the PHEA had not agreed to closed sessions, the board would have declared an impasse.

If an impasse had been reached, outside mediators would have been in to settle the dispute.

PHEA SPOKESMAN Ken Bates said the teachers did not feel the matter of closed versus open negotiations should become an issue in the talks. Therefore, to "facilitate" the start of bargaining, they agreed to the board's demand.

The board contended that open meetings cause negotiations to drag on for months because issues become clouded or obscured by the personalities of the negotiators. The board cited the fact that when open sessions were held in the past two years, contracts were not settled until November and August respectively.

"It's easier and more efficient for the teams to work in a private session," Rich said in explaining the board's position. "The personalities of the negotiators effects how negotiations go, and in open sessions upmanship enters in with the feeling that if you score on a point, I have to come back and score."

Krinsky added that last year during open sessions "things were said in public that caused reactions that would not have happened if negotiations were private."

BATES, ONE OF four members of the PHEA team which also includes Dave Kessler, chairman of the team; Dennis Krebs, PHEA president, and Carol Van Heitebrake, disagreed with the board.

"We have nothing to hide. Everything we want is fair and reasonable," Bates said. "We are not cats and dogs who are going to be at each others' throats. We are professional people and we think open sessions have worked well in the past."

The issue was resolved after both sides had private caucus sessions to try and work out a compromise. The PHEA finally agreed to the demand after the board agreed that no information blackout would take place and that either side would be free to release whatever information it wanted to the press and public.

BOTH SIDES also agreed to eliminate Supt. Edward Grodsky from having a role in negotiations.

The board had sought to include Grodsky in on the sessions as a neutral resource person who could provide information to both sides on matters such as the budget. When the PHEA requested it have its own resource person while Grodsky serve only as the board's resource person, the board suggested eliminating the resource person completely. The PHEA agreed.

OTHER GROUNDRULES agreed to include:

- Weekly 2½ hour meetings.
- Allowing each negotiating team the power to negotiate items and make decisions on behalf of their entire group.
- Counter proposals will be presented to each side by at least the afternoon before a meeting.
- Both the board and the PHEA have the right to call a caucus at any time during meetings.
- An agenda will be established for each meeting.

• Procedural and substantive items shall be exchanged simultaneously.

• All summaries of meetings will be typed and summaries will also be typed and distributed by the administration to both negotiating teams.

• A representative of each group may be present when the other group makes its presentation to its entire body.

• The agreement or any phase of it shall be considered tentative until the entire agreement is negotiated and ratified by both the board and the PHEA.

• Additional meetings shall follow the same procedure as regular meetings.

Both sides will exchange tentative contract packages on March 12 and scheduled the first negotiating session to discuss those proposals for March 19.

School board elections

Oakton College

Rabbi Harold Stern of the B'nai Emenah Congregation in Skokie entered the race for the Oakton Community College board of trustees yesterday challenging incumbents Stephen Loska and Griffith MacDonald.

Three candidates filed for the college board yesterday, the first day nominating petitions were accepted for school elections April 13. They are Rabbi Stern, Loska, and Harriet Ritter, 5830 Lincoln Ave., Morton Grove.

MacDonald, Robert Doyle, 10073 Linda Ln., Des Plaines, and Thomas Roeser, 200 Cherry St., Park Ridge, have also declared their candidacy but have not yet filed petitions. Two three-year terms are open on the college board this year. Candidates must file by March 22.

Rabbi Stern came out against building the college's permanent home on a site along the Des Plaines River during a public hearing on selection of a permanent campus on Feb. 14. Last week the college board of trustees selected the 170-acre river site for a permanent campus and is now seeking approval of the site from the Illinois Community College Board.

Rabbi Stern said he favors a high rise college on the temporary campus, what he calls "a tower of learning", similar to Loop College in Chicago.

RABBI STERN, 50, of 9309 N. Tripp, Skokie, is married and has three children. He has a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Nebraska, was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York and is now a doctoral candidate at Northwestern University. He has been Rabbi at the B'nai Emenah Congregation for 15 years.

Loska, of 1694 Van Buren, Des Plaines, was elected to the Oakton board in 1971. A senior scientist in research for Kraftco Corp., Glenview, Loska has a masters of science degree in cereal chemistry from Kansas State University. He and his wife have seven children.

Loska said yesterday he is running for re-election "to make this the best community college in the State of Illinois and to make it the envy of a few community colleges outside the State of Illinois."

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1964 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

day. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fister and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fister was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs.

Fister. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

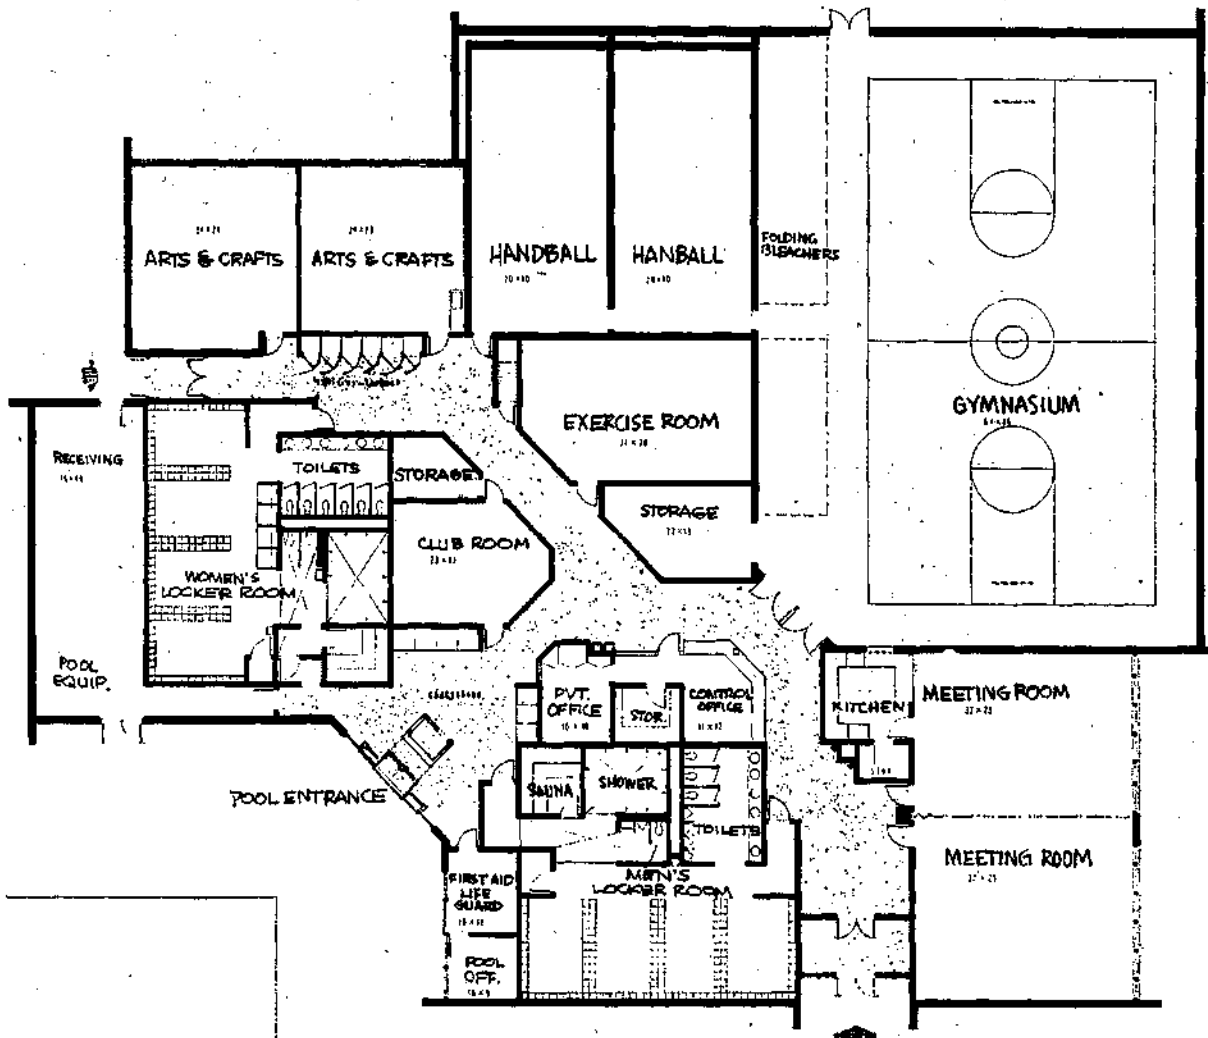

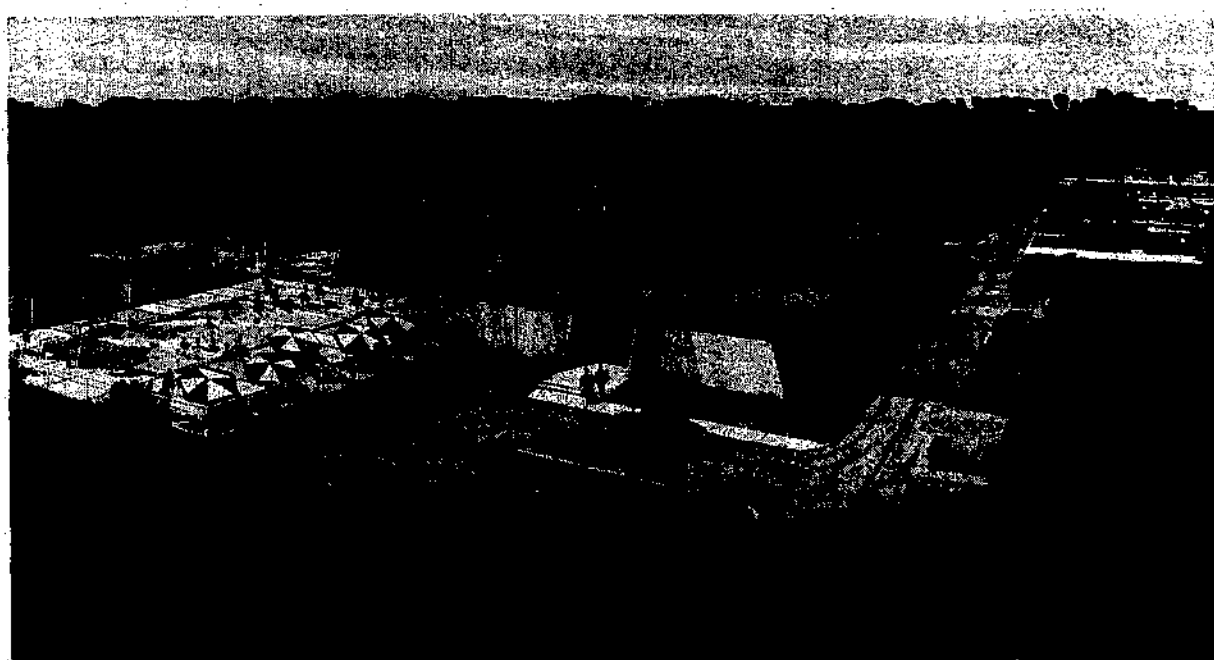

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fister has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fister, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 918 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsmen from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

THE PROSPECT HEIGHTS Park District's proposed pool set. The pool and baseball diamond already exist. The floor plan below details what will be in the new building. The property is bounded by Elm Street and Camp McDonald Road.

Parks preparing campaign to sell new center, pool

by TOM VON MALDER

The Prospect Heights Park District now knows what its new community center and renovated Lions Park pool will look like. In accepting preliminary plans this week, the park commissioners voiced their approval of the plans. The task ahead is to make the voters of the park district like the plans.

Commissioner William Kuhns said he is putting together a slide presentation of various park activities and facilities to be shown to groups. The publicity campaign for the referendum cannot really be started yet, however, as the exact amount needed has not been determined.

Gerald Page, who with James H. Deal drew up the plans, said the cost of the proposed center is not final yet. New figures are still coming in, he added. In earlier discussions of the referendum, however, park officials estimated the referendum could be as high as $1.1 million. Part of the money would be used for other park projects.

THE 19,000-SQUARE-FOOT building will be constructed of tan reinforced concrete with light brown metal siding on some sections. At its highest point, the building will stand 23 or 24 feet. This will be at the northeast corner where the gymnasium will be located.

The section of the building closest to the pool, which will be one-story in height, will mainly house pool offices and locker rooms. There will also be a large meeting room, which can be divided in two at the front of the building.

Other facilities will include two arts and crafts rooms, two handball courts, an exercise room, a club room, concession area and kitchen for the meeting rooms. Added to the outside will be six tennis courts, two practice tennis courts, a playground area and a children's wading pool.

VISITORS WILL BE able to enter and leave the center from Camp McDonald Road and will be able to exit only onto Elm Street. Parking spaces for 32 cars will be located mostly in a strip running north-south to the east of the building.

According to Page, the entire plan was built around the pool as the old pool will still be used. However, the pool will be renovated, including a relining and raising of it. The pool will be raised by filling in the bottom of the existing pool and rebuilding the deck area.

In other action Tuesday night, the park board said it would like to lease all 40 acres of the High School Dist. 214 property, west of Wheeling Road and north of Camp McDonald Road. The two districts are negotiating for the land, which is now leased by a farmer.

A strong possibility exists that, should the park district get the land, a portion will be set aside for small gardens which would be cultivated by families who live in the district. These latter-day "Victory Gardens" could be used to grow vegetables or flowers, the park board said. The rest of the land would be used for football and baseball fields.

Crossroads fund drive to make up lost cash

Workers at the Crossroads venereal disease test and birth-control clinic in Palatine will turn to fund-raising efforts to compensate for $5,000 in funding that was stopped by Palatine Township Monday night.

Township officials froze the allocation to the clinic until a court can rule on a Feb. 7 opinion from Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott that may ban the funding. Under the attorney general's opinion, townships may only use revenue sharing to support agencies which could normally be budgeted for by the township. Townships currently have the power to fund mental health agencies and services for the poor.

"We certainly fully understand their position," said clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin yesterday. "No definite plans for the fund-raising have been formed yet, and no goal has been set.

"We will survive," Mrs. Michelin said. THE CLINIC, which tests and treats for venereal disease in teen-agers and gives contraceptives without requiring parental consent, fell under heavy criticism in January, when township officials came under pressure to reverse their earlier decision to fund the clinic.

Palatine Township auditors stuck by the $5,000 allocation after a lengthy forum on the funding in January. At their meeting earlier this week, the officials acted to withhold the money, but did not rescind their decision to support the clinic if the courts rule in their favor.

No court ruling is expected for several months. The $5,000 was to be used for equipment and supplies at the clinic, with the provision that none of the funds be used for the actual distribution of birth control methods to teens.

Planners to study industrial subdivision

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will review plans for an industrial subdivision on Hintz Road west of Glenn Avenue.

The Galtor Corp. is seeking a subdivision for industrial development. The matter was previously presented to the plan commission, but was delayed because of a proposed roadway designated on the official map for that property.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Changing boundaries—a sure way to draw attention

Boundaries . . . boundaries . . . boundaries . . . The issue that constantly faces school boards

Maybe someday when all the land in the Northwest suburbs is covered with buildings or set aside permanently for parks, school districts may be able to draw their attendance boundaries and leave them unchanged forever — but don't count on it.

High School Dist. 214 is expecting to hear next Monday from people who live in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 south of Well-er Creek. One proposal before the board of education is to move the Forest View High School boundary south so those people's children would be transferred to Prospect High School.

THIS PAST WEEK, the board heard from residents of the 8th Ward of Des Plaines. Another proposal before the board involves transferring part of the ward from the Forest View area to Elk Grove High School. The Des Plaines resi-

The board plans to make a decision on how to relieve overcrowding at Forest View March 11, but they will also meet next Monday to hear anyone who wants to give an opinion on the proposed boundary changes.

No one has suggested that the Dist. 214 Board has arranged to discuss boundaries now in order to drum up interest in the April school board election, but that may be the result of the present debate.

Filing started yesterday for all the seats on all the school boards which will be filled on April 13. Filing will end on March 22 and sometime before the election you will see interviews with all the candidates for local school boards in The Herald. Later still, just before the election, we'll endorse candidates.

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember at school board election time is that this is your annual chance to have some direct influence over your children's education. Even if you don't run (and few people have the time, dedication and nerve to do that) the candidates will be at forums and out campaigning. If you have something to say, they will surely listen.

Education today

denis said they didn't like that transfer, but thought that transferring the Mount Prospect residents would be a good idea.

The reason the Dist. 214 Board is considering changing the boundaries is that Forest View High School, built in 1962 for 2,500 students, is now over capacity and enrollment is projected to go up to over 3,000 in a few years. Prospect High School, meanwhile, is below its 2,500 student capacity and Elk Grove is operating right near its 2,500 capacity.

Clearly, the board has to do something — and the options are limited. Either the board transfers students out of Forest View or it holds a referendum to raise funds to build an addition to the building — a move that might not be too popular since some schools in the district have extra space.

CHANGING attendance boundaries is the one sure-fire way for a school board to draw a crowd. They can discuss all sorts of other things like curriculum, student discipline or budgets, but the question of school boundaries impinges directly on family loyalty to a school.

The meeting this week remained friendly, as board members convinced the worried Des Plaines residents that they understood the problems families face when their children are shifted back and forth.

Deductions for dependents important to working parent

Editor's Note: This concludes a series of articles providing guidelines designed to help in preparation of your 1973 federal income tax return. The material comes from the Commerce Clearing House of Chicago, an authority on tax law.

The deduction available for child and dependent care expenses under the federal income tax law can be one of the most important itemized deductions for many working parents.

This is especially true in these days when more and more mothers are entering or returning to the business world. The deduction can go as high as $400 per month, which on an annual basis, adds up to a $4,800 deduction on a tax return.

Despite its popular label, the deduction is not limited to expenses for the care of the taxpayer's children. If the taxpayer maintains a household for one or more of the individuals listed below, he may deduct up to $400 per month of expenses paid for household services and for the care of such individuals.

Qualifying individuals include:

1. a dependent under the age of 15 who may be claimed as an exemption; 2. a disabled dependent of any age and; 3. a disabled husband or wife. An individual in the second category is eligible even if the taxpayer cannot claim him as an exemption because his gross income exceeds $750.

THE EXPENSES must be incurred for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to be employed. Therefore, the deduction is available to a married couple only if both husband and wife are working or seeking work, unless one is unable to work because of disability. A couple who is married on the last day of the taxable year must file a joint return to qualify for the deduction.

The form for claiming child care expenses is Form 2441.

If a disabled person other than a child under 15 receives disability payments under social security, workmen's compensation, private insurance, etc., the expenses that are solely for his care must be reduced. Expenses for general household services, however, need not be reduced. For a dependent over the age of 14 the amount of the reduction is the excess of the disability payments plus the dependent's adjusted gross income over $750. In the case of a husband or wife, the reduction is simply the amount of disability payments.

After expenses have been reduced for disability payments, if any, a monthly limitation is applied to the remaining expenses. The most that may be deducted under any circumstances is $400 per month, regardless of the number of qualifying individuals involved. Except for the case of dependents under 15, the expenses must be for services in the home.

Services outside the home for care of dependents under 15 are subject to a separate monthly limitation: one dependent, $200; two dependents, $300; and three or more dependents, $400.

WHEN EXPENSES are incurred for both in-home and out-of-home services, the in-home limitation is in effect (the difference between the allowable out-of-home expenses and $400.)

Following application of the dollar limitation, there is still a further reduction of 50 per cent of the excess if adjusted gross income exceeds $18,000.

"Don't pay more tax than you owe" is good advice, and a fair amount of knowledge of the correct rules in filing federal income tax returns usually pays off for the average taxpayer.

THE FOLLOWING miscellaneous tax items could affect the amount of taxes you pay and should not be overlooked.

For instance, you have the opportunity to "average" income for tax purposes if you had a big jump in income in 1973, including income from capital gains, wagering, or gifts or inheritances. And in so doing, you can get a lower tax bill. The privilege applies if your 1973 adjusted taxable income is at least $3,001 greater than 120 per cent of your average income for the preceding four years.

Example: If your average income for 1968-1972 was $18,000, you need adjusted gross income of $24,001 in 1973 to qualify for averaging benefits (120 per cent of $18,000 plus $3,001.)

AN ALTERNATIVE benefit to the above is the tax rate ceiling that the law permits an individual to use for his earned income — wages, salaries, professional fees and other compensation for personal services. Under the ceiling, such income is taxed at not more than 50 per cent which contrasts with the highest possible tax rate of 70 per cent. Thus, only high-income taxpayers benefit — a single person with earned taxable income over $38,000, a married person's joint return is necessary with earned taxable income over $52,000, and a head-of-household taxpayer with earned taxable income over $38,000.

For smaller taxpayers, a point should be noted for medical expense deductions. Don't overlook the fact that the law permits one-half of medical insurance premiums with the total deduction limited to not more than $150 per year to be deducted outside of the 3 per cent floor on other medical expenses. Also, don't forget that transportation expenses in connection with medical care — for example, the cost of bus, train, taxi fares and gas, oil, parking fees, etc. — are deductible medical expenses.

Instead of taking your actual car operating expenses, you can take a standard mileage rate of 6 cents for each mile you use your car for medical purposes. Parking fees and tolls may be deducted in addition to the 6 cents per mile.

ANOTHER ITEM worth checking is the timing on casualty loss deductions. Losses by fire, storm, shipwreck, etc., are usually deductible only in the year they occur.

A loss by theft, on the other hand, is generally deductible in the year it is discovered, not when the theft actually took place.

But disaster losses from floods, hurricanes and the like rate special treatment if they occur in areas subsequently declared by the President to be disaster areas. In such cases, the taxpayer can take the loss either on the return for the disaster year or on his preceding year's return. Thus, under the option, he can take the loss in the previous year when his income was higher.

Bakalis to ask $102 million state aid hike

by WANDALYN RICE

State School Supt. Michael Bakalis has announced he will ask for a $102 million increase next year in the amount of money provided for general state school aid — an amount which will be at least $38 million short of the amount needed to fund the state's year-old school aid formula.

However, Bakalis said he hopes to propose changes in school business management practices which "could free as much as $38 million for use in instructional programs."

In an announcement yesterday, Bakalis said that in addition to the $102 million for the general state aid formula, he will ask the legislature for a $28 million increase in the appropriation for the state teacher retirement fund and an $8 million increase in the amount of money available for special purpose grants to schools. All the increases will mean a 12 per cent increase in state spending for education over this year's expenditure of $1.2 billion.

THE STATE SCHOOL aid formula which was adopted last year includes a "resource equalizer" provision which calls for providing all school districts in the state with $1,260 per pupil. The resource equalizer is to be phased in over a four-year period with many school districts being required to cut back property tax rates as increased funds became available.

School officials have said the resource equalizer will be of particular help for school districts which have little industry and a large number of students.

Robert Clark, director of legislative research for Bakalis, said yesterday he estimates that providing all the money called for by the resource equalizer for next year would cost about $140 million more than this year. However, Clark said the proposals for improving business management in the schools, which were made by a state task force in 1972, would make up the difference between the $102 million proposed by Bakalis and the $140 million.

IN A PREPARED statement released with the recommendations, Bakalis said he expects some educators to criticize him for not seeking a higher level of funding, but added that as enrollments decrease across the state, "I think we're going to have to think in terms of retrenchment kind of psychology. This means you take a much more careful look at the increase you're proposing."

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a supporter of the resource equalizer when it was passed last year, said yesterday that she approves of the idea of improving business procedures in order to save money, but said many of the proposals made by the task force in 1972 would be hard to implement.

"What could theoretically be done and what can actually be done are two different things," Mrs. Chapman said. "I will be very interested in seeing Dr. Bakalis' specific proposals."

In addition, she said that state officials should remember that in funding the state aid formula "we do have a commitment and we should live up to it."

No bank can offer you more. So our bank won't offer you less than...

Now that the Federal Government has set the highest legal bank interest at 7 1/4% on all four-year certificates of deposit for $1,000, that's exactly what we will pay you. Because that's exactly what your money deserves — the highest possible bank interest rate it can get. Anywhere. A rate that's guaranteed — not subject to any upward or downward fluctuations. And, if you prefer, we'll send you regular monthly interest checks. Of course, 7 1/4% isn't quite as impressive as some of our previous offers on four-year certificates of deposit. But it is the most we can legally do for you at the moment. And all our other savings plans offer you the highest bank interest rates allowable. Because, basically, our bank figures the most is the very least we should ever offer.

Standard partners frustrated

Underneath the vacant driveway and silent gas pumps, huge gasoline tanks bulged in the moist darkness.

It could have been a sunny winter day in 1970 — the good old days — except one could see the gasoline station across the street, where a line of cars snaked onto Busse Road.

The empty driveway is part of K & W Standard Station at Algonquin and Busse roads in Mount Prospect. The gasoline was available after the company released extra allocations this week, but motorists were not in the habit of finding gasoline there, and continued to line up across the street, where a gallon was selling for six cents more.

service station owners go, but the gasoline crisis has had a lasting effect on them.

"We have pretty much a neighborhood trade despite the busy intersection," Wirth said. "We've worked to build business in the backshop. We went into this business ourselves so we could do a decent job and get to know people."

ALL AVENUES of defense have been tried in dealing with a gas-hungry motoring public.

"We've gone about every possible way," Wirth said. "We didn't have any big problem until the government came out with the news that you have to serve everyone."

"When you're allocated you almost feel it isn't free enterprise anymore," Wirth said. He is still working to maintain customer relations, however, because "when this whole thing is over, those are the people who will be back."

Limited hours have given the owners a little more time with their families, and a little less cash in the register. "We've laid off nobody," Wirth said. "We've kept kids on as much as we can because they need the money."

"Our attitude toward people has

THERE IS GAS in the tanks, but few customers on the driveway at K&W Standard station at Algonquin and Busse roads in Mount Prospect. Owners Al Karg, left, and Joe Wirth say they have more gas now, but the past months put a crimp in business as they struggled to allocate fuel fairly.

changed. I'd be lying if I said it didn't," Wirth said. "When we think we're doing the best we can, we don't expect to be called every name, to get obscene gestures. We're not getting paid to take the abuse we're getting."

He explained that the abuse is coming from a small percentage of customers, but that is enough to take some of the fun out of being in an independent business.

"Some dealers are giving people a rough time, but go back to them if you have trouble," he said.

AT AGE 28, Wirth has more than his share of problems, because his station opened only a few months before 1972, and he had little time to build up a clientele before then.

Now, allocations are being distributed on 1972 figures, and K&W displays a sign in front apologizing for the gas shortage, claiming they have been cut 40 per cent. Wirth said they arrive at that figure because of the circumstances, and because growth of the station is not being considered in their allocation.

Even without gas, the hours have been strenuous as Wirth and Karg adjust hours to best serve their customers. Wirth said they have tried to stay open a few hours on Saturdays, and more hours on Mondays and Fridays because of the weekends. Despite that, they have had to sit and watch the small independent station across the street pump gallon after gallon.

That is frustration. It isn't free enterprise. Ask Joe Wirth.

Shell station owner can't give 'service' like he wants

There may be a part of Bill Hunter in every gasoline station owner. That part is competition, and the satisfaction that comes from operating your own business successfully.

The satisfaction is fading, however, as fuel supplies dwindle. The single word that sums it up is "frustration."

Hunter is a former Shell Oil Co. territory salesman who saw greener pastures as a franchise dealer. In September, 1969, he opened a new station at Old Wilke and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows — familiar territory for Hunter who taught for three years at Kimball Hill School and Carl Sandburg Junior High, Rolling Meadows.

As a territory salesman, Hunter said, "I was preaching the idea to dealers that balanced sales and taking care of customers' needs is the whole secret. So then I decided to apply it."

"There's a difference between a service station and a gas station. This is what's frustrating. Today I've become a gas station," he said.

HUNTER'S THEORY is that courteous service will pay off in the long run, particularly with backshop business. He explains that after rush hours in the morning, business is usually limited to housewives and salesmen. "Get a place where a lady can be treated right and her husband will let her take care of service."

The search for a friendly neighborhood station you can trust is endless for many drivers. "Everybody's been burned," Hunter said. "That's why they need such a station."

"Now that there's a lack of product, we're almost all gas stations. This is what makes me frustrated — I'm no different than any other dealer. I can't shine over someone else. You know you can get rid of gas."

He adds, however, that customer relations is important now because it will make the difference when the shortage ends. "A lot of people think we're getting fat on the shorter hours, for example, but we're not."

TO FIGHT THAT, Hunter said he does his best to stay open hours that are most convenient to his regular customers. His lease allows him to remain open from 6 a.m. to midnight, and he used to take advantage of most of that. Now he opens around 6 a.m. and is closed for gasoline sales by 9 or 10 a.m.

Even though the dealers are allowed to raise prices once a month to offset increased wholesale costs of gasoline, not much of that goes into their pockets. Even at higher prices, "You're not going to make as much money as you did," he says.

EXCITEMENT of competition is being destroyed by the fuel shortages, says Southland Shell owner Bill Hunter, who left a job with Shell Oil Co. to become a dealer. He has even applied to the government for additional supplies of precious gasoline.

At first, Hunter was skeptical of the oil companies, but he said he has been convinced they are not making excessive profits. "They're concerned about me making more money. If I do, they do."

The oil companies have abandoned the advertising techniques that urged customers to buy their gas because it was better. Now they are trying to convince people that they are concerned about the environment, that they are drilling for more oil. Hunter said this does help him in the long run, because it will build goodwill that will reflect on him.

HIS WORRIES now include how to be fair to his own employees, how to avoid laying anyone off, and how to keep a positive attitude about being in business.

Before, he could set hours, decide on services, and make a lot of his own decisions. (continued on page 13)

'More Gas for Less' rally set at Maine East

More than 1,500 consumers are expected to attend a "More Gas for Less" rally Sunday in the auditorium at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., will head the list of speakers at the rally to begin at noon. The rally is sponsored by the Illinois Education Association (IEA), the United Auto Workers (UAW) and the Amalgamated Meatcutters.

The three labor organizations, representing nearly 200,000 Illinois workers, are inviting congressmen from around the state to attend the rally and work for passage of Sen. Stevenson's energy bill.

Stevenson's Consumer Energy Act calls for price rollbacks on gasoline, public reforms of the oil industry and public disclosure of oil industry information.

Two weeks ago members of the IEA demonstrated in front of the Standard Oil of Indiana building in Chicago demanding a gas price rollback. Currently the IEA is involved in a petition drive in the 796 school districts represented by IEA locals. The petition calls on all Illinois congressmen to support oil industry reform legislation.

The public is invited to the rally at the school, 2601 W. Dempster St.

CHANGES IN business are inevitable because of the new fuel situation and those who can't change won't make it, Hunter says. "It used to be a guy had to be a mechanic. Now he has to be a businessman. Too much money is involved, and you have to turn your money over."

But in the meantime, Hunter faces the business problems of fuel allocation. He is scheduled to receive only 70 per cent of his March, 1972, allocation this March. With that 30 per cent cut, plus the 10 per cent normal growth a station achieves each year, Hunter is getting more like 50 per cent of his needed supplies.

The government says extra fuel allocations are on the way, but Hunter's "partner," Shell Oil Co., says it isn't available.

It's confusing, but more than that, it's frustrating because the spirit of the independent businessman is being stifled.

sions to give him better profits. "I don't like anyone telling me what I have to do," Hunter said, "but now the government tells me what prices I can have, how much I get, and who I can sell to."

The latter is particularly irritating to him. He feels his regular customers should be able to count on him and get a good deal from him when possible. He was emotionally crushed recently when a woman came into the station asking a favor.

A regular customer, she said she needed to be sure she could get gasoline over the weekend because her husband had died and they were driving downstate to bury him. Hunter said the idea that she should have to worry about gasoline at a time like that shocked and angered him.

Herald editorial

Saluting our gas pumpers

It's time to say something on behalf of the gas station operator.

Certainly, we've all had our bad times in the never-ending quest for gasoline, all the worse since the first of the year when the panic and long lines set in over where the next gallon's going to come from.

We've all had our aggravations from waiting in those lines, bucking fellow drivers for position, getting squirts when we need fill-ups and getting no service at all.

Some of us even have had rude treatment from station operators.

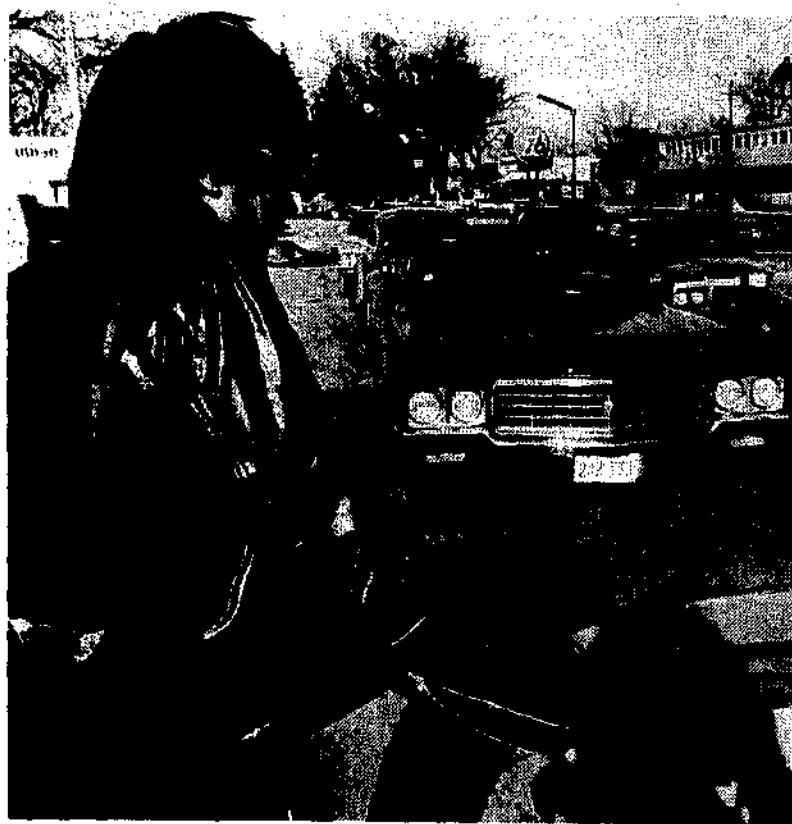

But before we go any further in taking out our wrath on the guys doing the pumping, let's get it in perspective.

They may be the bearers of the bad news, the dispensers of $3 limits or daily allocations, but they're not to blame, even if some of them may have gone overboard in how they're applying the rules.

Instead of abuse, they really deserve a little sympathy, because in many ways they have it as bad as the millions of victimized motorists.

In some ways, they have it worse, because they're in the middle between desperate and angry drivers on one hand and the government and oil companies on the other.

All of us as drivers have witnessed that. At the Herald, we took an even closer look by dispatching one of our reporters — Joe Swi-ckard — to man the pumps himself, and see what it's like out there on the battle lines.

His report smacked of man's indignities to man — little vignettes of drivers refusing to take "No" for an answer, running around barricades and into exits and over lawns and curbs to get to the pumps, making vague threats to attendants trying to keep some order.

Actually, it was milder than some of the reports coming in from around the country — tales of attendants being cursed and spat upon, beaten up and — as in Gary last week — being shot in the passion over gasoline.

That's bad enough, but the gas station operators also have the problem of being almost cut adrift in getting guidance from above on how to meet their daily challenges.

Many of them have had to go it on their own in trying to find fair solutions for their customers, only to have the government undercut them. The most crushing blow was having the Federal Energy Office tell them they can't give preferential treatment to their loyal customers, opening up a free-for-all in which they stand to lose their regulars while not cultivating any new ones.

They also have the unenviable role of having to charge those larcenous prices while getting little of the benefit, which is mostly showing up in the well publicized oil company profit margins. In fact, it's an irony that many operators are losing money in a time of panic demand, because they're forced to sell less gas, and are losing service business besides.

The point of all this is that we — drivers and gas station operators alike — are in this thing together, more than it may seem. And some of our fellow drivers are reducing themselves to a new level of boorishness and savagery, when they should be showing a little compassion for the man in the middle.

There's really not much to do about it while government and Big Oil thrash around, except wait to see if the new allocation system helps, hope for some miraculous better day and give your station operator the smile he used to have for you.

Bob Lahey's column

Illinois GOP in danger

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

While Democrats are licking their chops over the results of the special Michigan election in which Vice President Gerald M. Ford's vacated congressional seat fell to their party for the first time in 62 years, Republicans are trying to convince themselves that 5th Congressional District of Michigan is no bellwether for the national elections in November.

One Republican with a high stake in a congressional race in November pointed out a couple of things which he said — perhaps wistfully — distinguish the Michigan race from others.

For one thing, there was no incumbent Republican defending the seat.

For another, the Democratic victor, Richard VanderVeen, while attacking hard on Watergate and demanding the resignation of President Nixon, was at the same time telling voters who had been loyal to Ford for 25 years that the deposition of the President would open the way for their former congressman to succeed to the White House.

That of course is a ploy that won't be available to other Democrats in the November election, but just what it might have done for VanderVeen remains problematical.

One thing that seems agreed upon by most observers is that Watergate and the impeachment-resignation issue was a big factor in VanderVeen's victory.

Another disturbing thing for Republicans is that the election bore out — whether it was an adequate test or not — the prediction of Sen. Barry M. Goldwater that the Watergate scandal will cost Republican candidates 10 per cent of the vote across the board. And Goldwater meant not an average of 10 per cent, but 10 per cent off the top.

What Goldwater's prediction, which he based on a private poll, spells for the

Samuel Young

Robert P. Hanrahan

Illinois congressional delegation is nothing short of disaster. After having broken a longstanding 12-12 split with the Democrats in the 1972 Nixon landslide, the Illinois GOP took a 14-10 advantage in Congress.

But if Goldwater is right, his estimate means that all 10 of the seats held by Illinois Democrats must now be considered "safe" for 1974, while Republicans can count only six seats in that category.

Four must be considered in imminent danger to the Democrats, and the other four no more than marginal.

Prominent among those in danger, of course, is the seat of Rep. Samuel H.

Young, R-10th. Even without Watergate, Young knew he would face another close battle with former Congressman Abner Mikva, who has been campaigning diligently ever since election day, 1972.

According to the Goldwater rule, Young's 52 per cent margin in 1972 would disappear.

Like Young, the other three Republicans considered in most danger are freshmen, which give them the added problem of having had less than two years to consolidate their positions with their constituencies.

They include Rep. George B. O'Brien of Joliet, who won with 56 per cent in 1972; Rep. Edward R. Madigan of Lincoln, who got 55 per cent; and Rep. Robert P. Hanrahan of Homewood, who had the most comfortable margin among the freshmen, 62 per cent.

Those seats which must be considered marginal in Goldwater's estimate are now held by such old familiar names as Les Arends of rural Melvin, dean of the Illinois delegation, Robert Michel of Peoria, Robert McClory of Lake Bluff, and Harold Collier of Riverside.

Collier and Michel have both been in Congress since 1956, and won their last elections by 61 and 65 per cent, respectively. McClory, first elected in 1962, won in 1972 with 61 per cent.

Arends has been in Congress since 1934 and is calling it quits. His once overwhelming biennial victory margin dwindled to 57 per cent in 1972.

Among the 10 seats now held by the Democrats, Republican challengers face nine incumbents whose margins ranged from 53 to 93 per cent in 1972.

In the other district, the 24th, Rep. Kenneth Gray is retiring after 20 years in Congress. Gray however pulled a whopping 94 per cent in 1972, and is expected to be succeeded by former Lt. Gov. Paul Simon in the heavily Democratic district of far Southern Illinois.

RTA inquiries praised

letters to the editor

In a lengthy and sometimes heated debate, the Des Plaines City Council recently considered a hastily prepared and unreviewed resolution to back the adoption of the presently proposed RTA bill on March 19. Considerable discussion took place regarding apparent reservations in the minds of some of the aldermen and a need for further study of the resolution before voting. Finally an amendment expressing these concerns was offered by Alderman Abrams, and seconded by Alderman Ward.

During the debate on the amendment, the council was told, "You will only confuse the issue, the people won't understand." Hogwash! The people understand concern. The people are well aware of the inequities in the present RTA bill and the people expect to hear the full story.

That would have been leadership and I give the voters much more credit than some of the councilmen. At least 50 per cent of the proceedings involved comments and exchanges by the mayor who is supposed to preside as moderator and must relinquish the chair in order to debate an issue!

Ultimately, in their eagerness to adopt a resolution prepared by the clerk without more objective study, the "majority," while generally agreeing that the issues of concern raised were indeed valid, nevertheless voted against the feelings of the "minority" and defeated the amendment by a 9-6 vote. It was then suggested that now everyone should get behind the resolution and pass it unanimously. On the vote for adoption, four stood their ground and voted for the "full story," RTA with reservations and concern!

I commend Aldermen Sarlo, Meyer, Seitz and Abrams for their position and I view the attitude of the others with dismay. All too often in our country's recent politics, "people have gone along," no one has spoken out, restraints have been brushed aside, and becoming a "team man" has been all important. Heaven forbid that this be our destiny. The dedication on principle to disagree with sincerity, the demand for a view of the "full story," the moral obligation to present a minority position, however unpopular, and above all, the courage to stand up and be counted, are but some of the personal qualifications that our people have a right to expect, yea demand, of their public officials.

RTA and its cost to the taxpayers, the extent and scope of authority vested in its administration and its admitted defects are a matter of justifiable concern in the community. Recognizing the overall potential value of some regional transportation system to satisfy the need, I for one am presently undecided and like many other voters await possible legislative corrections and further development of the facts before voting on March 19.

The people of Des Plaines are not going to vote for or against the present RTA bill simply because the city council adopts a position one way or the other. I believe they will examine the benefits and the faults of the issue, measure them against their own feelings and experiences, and then vote their convictions. Obtain all the facts possible, exercise your obligation and vote!

Abortion ruling blasted

To The Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court:

Congratulations are in order on the anniversary of your January, 1973, judgment of the legality of abortion. Who else could have given the blessing to eliminate an estimated 800,000 to 1.6 million Americans a year? Just think! In a mere 10 years you have approved/blessed the murdering of 4 to 16 million Americans.

What you have initiated by this decision could not be accomplished by anyone in less stature than an Adolph Hitler himself. Where you, the Supreme Court, and Hitler differ is in your basic philosophy. Hitler was trying to build a "Master Race" whereas you are just trying to eliminate the "Unwanted."

It is a biological and psychological fact that over 80 per cent of all pregnancies are unwanted in the first three months. Yet these same unwanted (unborn) children have become the loved and cherished sons and daughters of millions of Americans. The other astonishing fact is that the majority of the wanted pregnancies become the battered abused children that the court originally was seeking to eliminate from society by relaxed abortion laws.

What kind of society are you wishing to create? On the one hand, you seek to kill those unborn who would provide a bright future for America while on the other hand continue to overburden our already distressed social services. What a future the Supreme Court is preparing for America.

Let us view the abortion ruling as a planned attack on a class of Americans — the unborn. They are the easiest prey because of their frailty and defenselessness against attack. Their only protection is the body of the person who carries them to birth. Now that ceases to be protection. Instead, the mother is the instrument used to deprive them of their right to life. Since when has an individual, regardless of relation to a person, had the right to take life "born or unborn." The right to life is the supreme right of God to give or to take away. No mortal man or group, such as the Supreme Court, has been given the right over life or death. If you have this right, please let me know promptly.

We, as Americans, have been dedicated to the principle of protecting life and providing justice for all. Every grade schooler learns that his God-given right is "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" protected under American law.

Has the Supreme Court changed this basic principle of American law? Now that statement seems to read "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness providing you have been born, born white, born of proper ethnic stock and wanted by your mother or some other member of society."

The Supreme Court has removed these basic rights of 800,000 to 1.6 million Americans annually. Justice! Maybe the Court should now define justice, truth and the pursuit of happiness.

I hope my letter can stimulate public disgust at the injustices being committed against un-born Americans. Maybe it is not too late to amend our Constitution in order to correct the error of the Supreme Court. I find it beyond comprehension that in an age of ecology/conservation of resources that we, Americans, waste our greatest resource "human life" through thoughtless acts of murder.

Gas flowing here again...

Service Station in Des Plaines. "Everybody's relaxed now because they think there's a lot of gas. I believe it (the panic) will start again next month."

Shell dealers appeared most worried about next month's gasoline supplies. Norb Nissen, owner of Village Shell in Elk Grove Village, said he was allocated 120,000 gallons in January, 81,000 this month and 35,000 for March.

"I'm just going to pump it all out as I get it and close down (the pumps) the rest of the time," said Nissen. He predicted that pumps would be closed 90 per cent of the time next month.

SHELL DEALERS have been told next month to expect 70 per cent of the amount they sold in March 1972, although this month they were supposed to get 85 per cent of February 1972 sales. William Devereaux, Shell spokesman, yesterday said the company has been ordered by the Federal Energy Office to sell 6.7 million barrels of crude oil to other refineries by April 30.

The loss of that crude means

Shell's refineries will be operating at only 70 per cent capacity, Devereaux said. In addition, Shell has been ordered to sell 180 million gallons to the Defense Department, further reducing its available supply, he said.

Devereaux said delays in delivering emergency allocations this week to Shell stations were caused by a "breakdown in communications" between the company and state officials. Shell couldn't make the deliveries until it received directions from the state, he said, and those directions for some reason were not received.

Detroit motorists can get all the gas they want at good price—in Canada

DETROIT (UPI) — One mile from downtown Detroit, there is no gasoline rationing, no waiting in line and prices are going down, not up.

But there is a snag — motorists must go to Canada.

Once there, they can take advantage of an old-fashioned price war that has driven down the price of regular grades to 43 cents a gallon.

Even though it costs $1.50 in tolls to make the round trip, gasoline at that price is still a pretty good deal, especially for owners of big cars.

The average price of regular grades in Detroit ranges between 48 and 53 cents a gallon — even higher at times. Prices will go up two cents more on Friday.

"BEFORE THIS thing started, regular was selling at 60.9 cents a gallon," said an attendant at Coates Sunoco station on Howard Avenue in Windsor.

"That's an Imperial gallon, meaning it figures out at just over 48 cents a gallon U.S."

An Imperial gallon contains five quarts while a U.S. gallon contains four quarts.

Howard Avenue is the center of the price war. Several blocks near a major highway intersection are lined with stations — Sunoco Beaver, BP, Shell, Econo and others.

Only Sunoco did not jump into the price cutting competition.

"If those guys want to lose their pants," a Sunoco station operator said, "Well, that's their business. I'm not going to go broke just to sell a few more gallons."

IN ADDITION to cutting prices, most stations are giving away glassware coupons and offering 50 cent car washes with every fill-up.

The price cuts began about 10 days ago with stations reducing by a penny here and a penny there until most stations more or less agreed to bottom out at 53 cents an Imperial gallon — about 43 cents a U.S. gallon.

"We get a lot of big American cars," a Beaver station manager said. "For the little cars, there isn't that much saving by the time drivers pay the toll."

One returning American was stopped by a customs agent on the U.S. side of the border and asked if he purchased anything in Canada.

"A tank of gas," the American replied.

"You aren't the only one doing it," the customs man said.

In a fight, the small guy is damage prone

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — Senate hearings on auto safety have produced the startling revelation that when a large car and a small car are involved in an accident, the small car is more vulnerable to damage.

In shock value, this finding ranks with a scientific study financed some years ago by the Agriculture Dept.

By way of carefully controlled experiments, agricultural researchers discovered that the farther an egg falls when it is dropped, the more likely it is to break.

The lighter side

If your nervous system can withstand yet another stunner, permit me to introduce you to the works of Dr. Boris McCopus, an anatomical safety expert.

HIS STUDIES have established that when a big guy and a little guy are involved in an altercation, the little guy is more apt to get hurt.

McCopus, who is willing to testify before the Senate Commerce Committee when the auto safety hearings end, accumulated his data by setting up a movie camera across the street from a bar and grill.

By filming dozens of altercations in front of the tavern, he demonstrated that little guys were flattened 77.4 per cent more frequently than big guys with whom they came to blows.

Subsequent examination of hospital emergency room records showed that little guys also sustained 84.9 per cent of the black eyes, fat lips and bloody noses.

"THERE'S NO DOUBT about it — small bodies are relatively unsafe," McCopus told me in an interview outside the hearing room.

He said he was prepared to recommend that Congress fix six feet and 180 pounds as the minimum standards for anatomical safety.

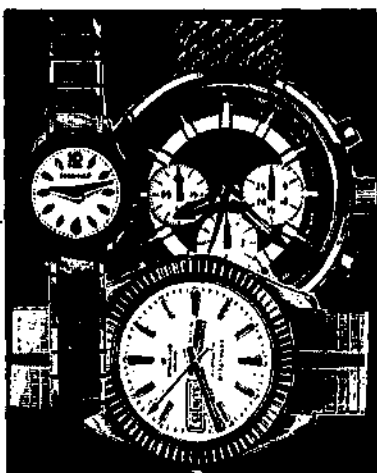

I pointed out to McCopus that small bodies are reputed to have a number of advantages that make them particularly desirable at the present time.

In their favor is statistical evidence indicating that small guys consume less food, take up less space in elevators and other crowded places and can fall into a lake without causing it to overflow.

I also noted that big guys have a number of obvious disadvantages. They are more prone to have heart attacks, to suffer from ailments associated with obesity and to fall through thin ice.

"Many Americans are switching over to smaller bodies," I said, citing the heavy demand for diet and exercise books.

High hopes for area swimmers at state meet

Swimming Editor

The state swim meet — it's a numbers game.

Of the dozen swim schools in the Herald area, seven are sending 20 individuals and three relay teams to the preliminaries this Friday at Evanston High School.

If these local swimmers and divers could combine forces, they could put some pressure on perennial state champion Hinsdale Central. The Red Devils qualified 18 individuals and both relay teams.

However, Hinsdale — looking for its eighth straight team title — would probably win anyway. The Devils are much stronger than last year's team.

Athletes from St. Viator, Arlington, Elk Grove, Hersey, Maine East, Wheeling and Maine North will be trying to make it through the prelims. Diving will start Friday morning at 10:00 with swimming beginning at 4 p.m.

The most successful area swimmers and divers along with most of the Hinsdale athletes will advance to the finals on Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m.

Last year's championships saw the Mid-Suburban League and St. Viator make a major breakthrough. Prospect's Rick Fox and St. Viator's Mike Salerno won state titles.

Since they proved it possible for this area to compete with the best, others have emerged as state threats this year. Specifically, St. Viator's Ed Fitzsimons, Elk Grove's Scott Bolin and, possibly, Forest View's Doug Schlak.

Here is what each coach has to say about his team's chances in the 43rd annual state finals:

ST. VIATOR

The Lions of Coach John Fleck have proven to be the most talented team in the area this year. Coming back from sickness which cost them the Suburban Catholic Conference championship, the Lions captured their second straight Highland Park District title.

After finishing ninth last year, Fleck said he always wanted to see his team somewhere in the top 10 in the final standings.

"It's still there," says Viator's coach of their goal. "We should score more points than we ever did before. The goal this year is to be among the top six teams."

One of the big reasons for Fleck's confidence is 6-foot-3 senior Fitzsimons.

"We think he can be a double state champion," says Fleck of his 50-yard and 100-yard freestyler. "He's got an equal chance in both events."

"He's improved a lot in the last couple of weeks. He starts faster now."

"Fitz" turned in the fastest time in the state in the 100 freestyle with 48.9. He was edged out of the top spot in the 50 by another district winner, Bob Lukas of Bremen, 22.30 to 22.35.

"I think he can go as low as 48 (seconds) in the 100. He might have to win it. I'm hoping he can break 22 for the 50."

Ed competed in the 200 and 400 freestyles last year before concentrating on the speed events this year. Those who haven't gone head-to-head with him could get fooled by his appearance and physique.

"He's long and lanky and doesn't look muscular," says Fleck. "He's very quiet. You don't know that he's around until he hits the water."

Fitzsimons' greatest challenges will come from Lukas in the 50 and Naperville's Bob Latta in the 100 (49.0).

As far as his other qualifiers, Fleck is hoping that Rick Yasky (200 and 500 frees), Kevin Szarabjka (breaststroke) and the 400 free relay of Yasky, Chris Kenney, Mark Rohl and Fitzsimons will finish among the top six. He also has high hopes that Rohl, only a freshman, can crack the top 12 in the 100 free.

ELK GROVE

Coming off a sparkling 2:02.4 individual medley at the MSL meet, Scott Bolin slipped to a 2:05.9 at the New Trier District. Quite a few IM'ers, including Peoria Richwoods' Jim Bucher (2:01.7) and Quincy's Curt Matter (2:02.1), did much better.

"It's hard to say," admits Grove coach Pete Weber of Scott's chances. "It's up to him."

"I think it's sort of a mental thing. He must think that he can do it... positive thinking."

Bolin was third behind Bucher in '72 with a 2:02.7. The winning time was a speedy 2:00.4. A two-minute mark might win it again.

Weber says that if his senior has the super day he had in the MSL meet, the IM title isn't out of reach.

Bolin also will go in the backstroke where he hopes to finish in the top six.

Weber says his medley relay of Scott and Brent Bolin, Jim Henry and Mark Fournier "can go faster. We only had one real dynamite split — Fournier with a 22.8. The other guys were a little off, but not too much."

Elk Grove qualified with a 1:45.2. Weber's foursome is shooting for somewhere in the mid-40s.

ARLINGTON

Cardinal coach Don Andersen says he has "two kids that are goal oriented" in Charlie Dunn and Joe Nitch.

Dunn, who qualified in the IM and the backstroke, has a good chance of finishing in the top six in both. If he succeeds, he'll improve upon his efforts last year — seventh in the back and eighth in the IM.

"He's right on schedule," says Andersen. "Charlie knows he's got to go 2:04 or better (in the IM) and in the 50s in the backstroke."

"Joe swam somebody else's race in the 200. He's not a sprinter. He's got to swim his own race. We're hoping for the top 12 in the 200 and the top six in the 500."

As for Jeff Munk, Arlington's diver, Andersen says this:

"Our diving coach (Wayne Oras) feels that after the first six divers, it's pretty much of a wide open race."

FOREST VIEW

Coach John Hillary has just one young man to work with this week — Doug Schlak. His senior sprinter was the only one to qualify at New Trier East.

"Doug didn't swim well at all. We're hoping that he was just looking through it (district), just wanting to qualify," says Hillary.

The MSL's conference champ in both the 50 and 100 slumped to seventh in the district 50 free (23.1). He bounced back with a more respectable second in the 100 (50.2).

"In the 50, he had trouble with his turn. Usually he picks up a lot of ground in his turn. The walls weren't good for him in the 100 either."

Hillary sees his youngster getting down in the low 22s in the 50 and breaking 49 in the 100 this weekend.

Forest View hasn't had an individual in the finals since Doug's brother Cliff finished ninth in the consolation finals in 1972, competing in the 400 free.

HERSEY

Highland Park's diving competition wasn't considered top flight by many coaches, but even Herb Parsons, Hersey's head coach, admitted that he was surprised a score of 309.15 could win the event.

Jeff Speakman, who along with fellow junior Tim Brennan qualified for state, finished first with 309.15 points. Brennan had 296.45 for fourth.

Although the caliber of competition wasn't the best, Parsons also pointed out that the pool was very cold, causing divers to have difficulty controlling their bodies.

"Speakman and Brennan will be much better in the state," promises Parsons. "There will be better facilities, better conditions and more competition."

APPEARING TO HAVE the edge at the start of (middle) over St. Viator's Ed Fitzsimons (left). taking second. Both qualified for the state meet the 50-yard freestyle is Wheeling's Paul Lindquist. However, Fitzsimons won the event with Lindquist this weekend.

Divers must open up with three required dives and two optional ones in the first round. Parsons will have his young men go with their best dives early so that they'll have a better chance of advancing.

Allan Zasady finished 22nd out of 41 divers last year. He was the first athlete to qualify from Hersey.

Why is Hersey consistently good in diving?

"We've been lucky," says Parsons, the diving coach, modestly. "We've got some good talent. I've learned an awful lot. I went into it knowing nothing and I'm creeping up the ladder a bit."

So is Hersey's improvement.

WHEELING

Paul Lindquist, Wheeling's first state swim qualifier, is somewhat of a rarity. Before he enrolled at Wheeling, he hadn't had any prior competitive swimming experience.

This Wildcat senior, a member of the first graduating class that's gone through the four-year Wheeling swim program, qualified because "he works really hard," according to his coach, Doug Cotner.

Lindquist finished second to possibly the next state champion — Fitzsimons — at Highland Park, registering a 23.2.

"I think he can drop some time from his 22.9 (his best ever)," says Cotner. Possibly as much as a half a second. "He didn't have a very good turn (at Highland Park)."

"Realistically, approximately 30 qualified in the state (in the 50 free). I feel his chances are as good as anybody's of getting into the finals."

Cotner calls Lindquist's big achievement "a great benefit to our team. We have some great young boys. Now I hope they'll see it's possible to get into the state meet. Now that they've seen it, maybe they'll set their goals."

MAINE EAST

The Blue Demons have qualified their 200 medley relay team of Wayne Westman, Greg Erickson, Scott Strauss and Carl Anderson plus diver Chris Dickson.

East finished fourth (1:45.387) in 200 IM last weekend at its own district. Head coach Ron Davitt gives his relay little chance of winning but figures they can finish among the top dozen.

"As far as the relay goes, 1:44.8 was 12th place last year in qualifying," Davitt said. "The kids think we can do it. It's only a couple more tenths. If we'd put the best times together from the last two weeks for each kid, we'd be at 1:43 something. It's just a matter of everybody doing it at once."

Dickson, East's senior diver, wasn't beaten in dual meet competition this year and won the Blue Demon district last week with 373.55 points. He's hoping to make the final cut at state finals.

"(Diving coach Art) Belmonte figures Dickson for 16th or so," said Davitt. "They make three dives and cut to 32, then two more dives and cut to 16. Belmonte figures Chris can make that cut."

MAINE NORTH

The biggest surprise for Jim Tonkovich's Norsemen came when Don Polz failed to qualify in 100 breaststroke at the New Trier East district.

Polz swallowed water and could recover only quick enough to finish in 1:06.6. State qualifying in the breaststroke is 1:06.255.

He came back in Monday practices and clocked 1:04.8. "We about cried," Tonkovich said. "We're two days too late."

Asked whether Polz's emotions were crushed after his failure at New Trier East, Tonkovich responded, "That's not the word for it."

He'll get a chance to redeem that unfortunate incident by swimming the second leg of Maine North's 200 intermediate relay team. Dan Larson leads off, followed by Polz, John Monaghan and Mike Vernon. That group swam a 1:45.6 for fifth place at New Trier East.

Tonkovich is hoping for more improvement, especially from Polz. "That's where we've got to get it," he said. "If the other kids can hold and Polz can improve, we'll really move."

He hopes for a time below 1:45.0 and expects the Norsemen relay team to finish among the top 12 teams.

Monaghan will return in the 50-yard freestyle. He swam 23.0 at New Trier East and finished fourth. Qualifying is 23.455.

"John wasn't tapered at all for districts," Tonkovich said of Monaghan. "We're hoping for a tremendous improvement. He missed his turn, hit his rear end on the wall and still went 23 flat. He's feeling real good and has a lot more speed than anybody realizes."

HEAVY DUTY. Conant's Bob Zepeda tries valiantly but vainly to turn over burly Downers Grove North heavyweight Terry McCarthy. Zepeda won anyway three matches but lost two of them at Elgin's sectional to finish in fourth place.

Rolling Meadows Sectional offers gymnasts a ticket to state finals

Gymnastics Editor

It's the high school gymnastics version of the "Pit and the Pendulum."

Beginning tonight at 7:00 and resuming Friday at the same time, 18 teams will enter the sectional gymnastics "pit" at Rolling Meadows High School in hopes of surviving the impending "pendulum" whose swing is unmercifully guaranteed to shred their numbers.

Neither reputation nor potential will mean a thing once these sectional qualifiers scramble for the top three "ranked" berths and 12 "at-large" positions, the latter of which will be a composition of all four sectional's top scorers.

This is the ticket to state. It is essentially what every prep strongman dreams about beginning with the first day of practice in early November.

Herald area teams will be buoyed by 113 berths at Rolling Meadows with the host Mustangs and Hersey firing the big guns with 20 positions apiece.

Arlington has 18 entered, Prospect 15, Conant 10, Wheeling nine, Fremd seven, Schaumburg and Buffalo Grove five and Palatine four.

The three events of floor exercise, side horse and horizontal bar will be featured in tonight's session while trampoline, parallel bars, rings and all-around will be determined Friday.

Off its amazing district performance which would have established a new high school national dual-meet scoring record of 155.31, Hersey has a chance to land the individual winners in the first four events.

Ron Mitso's 8.95 ruled the floor, Bruce Freedman's 8.67 lassoed side horse, John Ludwigsen's 8.65 cut down high bar and Mike Krop's 8.45 tamed trampoline.

The favorite on parallel bars, on the basis of district scores, is Conant's Tim Dorn who netted an 8.2 while Meadows' Mike Godawa has a shot at becoming a double winner after boasting the top score on both rings (8.6) and all-around average (7.96).

Those who survive the anticipated stiff sectional standards will receive an invitation to compete March 8 and 9 at Prospect High School for the climactic Illinois High School Association's State Gymnastics Meet.

Qualifiers from Elk Grove Forest View, Maine West, Maine East and Maine North will compete in two sessions at 1 and 7 p.m. Saturday at Niles West.

Roger Sander's 235-pound bulk lay sprawled on the Arlington hardwood. The big senior clutched at his ankle and grimaced in pain. A Conant cheerleader cried.

Several minutes later, the same cheerleader had her arms wrapped around Roger as best she could. Sander's Cougar teammates were trying to hoist his heavy frame onto their shoulders.

Roger Sander had picked himself up off the floor after a late third period injury — much as the Conant Cougars had gotten up off the proverbial floor — to score the deciding basket in Conant's come-from-behind 64-63

Mid-Suburban League championship win over Arlington Tuesday night.

"I guess I just went up there like an animal," said the 6-foot-6 Sander, after rebounding his own attempt with just two seconds left in the game.

While the evening's hero was being carried aloft by ecstatic fans and players, Cougar captain Steve Irion was busy cutting the nets from the rims.

The 6-8 Conant center never had thoughts of throwing in the towel, even when his team was down by eight points with but 3:15 to play. "I felt like we'd make it," said Irion, as he performed the traditional cord cutting. "I was tired, but not tired enough to give up."

Tuesday night, Irion's freckled face was a perpetual grin, as were the faces of his many mates.

Cougar coach Dick Redlinger, not ordinarily given to bursts of joyful emotion, found it hard to contain his glee. He too, was treated to an airborne tour of the congested court area, and he seemed to relish every minute of it.

"I thought Arlington played one helluva ball game," the gracious winning coach said later, after gaining an opportunity to collect his wits. "But when you're up by eight in a title game, the pressure is on you. You can't afford to make mistakes, and the other team can take chances on defense."

Keyed by Tom Bowen and Dave Sutherland, the Cougars fought back from a 63-55 deficit, with Sander's winning bucket coming on a pass from Jeff Ironside.

"We just tried to get a guy open," Ironside explained. "That was the play. Sander was in there between (Dan) Donahue and (Jeff) Cleveland — he was wide open."

Redlinger had called a timeout with :29 to go after Sutherland had stolen the ball with Arlington ahead by one.

"We were trying to get it in and work it to someone," Sander expanded. "They were in a 1-3-1 zone with one guy high and the other on the outside. They both collapsed on me inside."

The Arlington dressing room was quiet after the game. Dan Donahue sat in a corner, contemplating the wall of lockers in front of him. "I don't know how it got away," the 6-10 center said, his voice cracking.

Donahue replayed the final :29 in his mind: "I was supposed to stay underneath the basket and make sure they didn't get a lay-up — and they got it."

George Zigman, the Arlington coach, shrugged off the last-second play as one of those things.

"I thought when they got the ball with :29, if we went to a set zone, they'd go for the last shot," the coach said. "We came out and put pressure on the ball, and they slid inside and moved us over."

Zigman was realistic in his appraisal of the new MSL champs. "They got a good game out of Sutherland and Bowen," the Arlington coach noted, "and they had balance tonight. That's what it takes."

But the Cardinal coach faulted his own boys for a last-minute letdown. "The momentum swung to Conant in the fourth quarter. We slowed down. In the last three minutes we quit running — we played too careful and we threw the ball away."

"But you've got to give Conant credit," Zigman continued. "They came back when they were eight down. They put the ball in the hoop. We didn't."

Some finish!!

Last-second shot gives Conant basketball title

by KEITH REINHARD

With one minute and 53 seconds to go in the third period Roger Sander was on the floor in obvious pain.

While his coach, managers and trainers hovered above him in concern a hush fell over the Conant half of the Arlington gym and all of the Cougar cheerleaders could be seen fighting back the tears.

It was a melodramatic moment to be sure. Conant trailed by three at the time but could hardly have been expected to keep pace with the torrid Cardinals while their burly rebounder and inside scoring ace watched from the sidelines.

But Sander wasn't through for the evening... not by a long shot.

Exactly nine minutes and 50 playing seconds later with the scoreboard showing 6:03 it was the Arlington side of the gym falling into stunned and silent disbelief. Sander had just plunked in his own rebound to give the visitors their only lead of the night, and a 1974 Mid-

Suburban League basketball championship.

The final verdict read 64-63. It was fashioned, to a large degree, by a nine-point Conant flurry at game's end. Arlington had pretty well dominated up to that point.

"We just stopped running," a dejected Card coach George Zigman shrugged in the silence of the post-game locker room. "The tempo of the game slowed down more to their liking and they were ready to take advantage of it."

The guests also took advantage of a costly turnover, a steal actually by Dave Sutherland with 30 seconds to go in the game after Arlington had elected to slow things down on their own.

"We hadn't intended to freeze the ball," Zigman recounted. "But we did want to hold out for the good percentage shot. Sutherland hurt us though... in fact he and (Tom) Bowen both hurt us a lot... they both played outstanding games."

The big hurt was applied by Sander however. Coming right back into action at the outset of the fourth period, he was the one the Cougars went to as the final moments of the contest dwindled away. Following a timeout at 0:29, Conant held on until six seconds remained and then Sander drove the left baseline, fired once and missed, rebounded and then just barely flipped one over the outer rim to the accompaniment of bedlam in the west side of stands.

The hurt was intensified by the fact that Arlington had led all the way through the game. Jeff Cleveland went on a scoring rampage for the hosts in the first quarter, connecting for 14 points in all shapes and sizes.

That spree helped the Redbirds burst into a quick 10-4 lead and maintain a six-to-ten point gap through most of the first half.

Two free throws by Steve Irion and an inbounds pass that Sutherland converted from the key trimmed the difference to five just before mid-game, but Arlington's Steve Loughman, who had sat out a good portion of the second stanza in foul trouble, came out with two quick 20-footers to open the final half.

Conant then reeled off three straight field goals, Irion banging in a pair of 12-footers and Bowen grabbing back a blocked shot and hitting from close in. That pulled the visitors within one point, 38-37.

Loughman countered, this time from even farther out. Jerry DeSimone added one from the side and Doug Betters struck from underneath on a beautiful 25-foot pass up the middle by Loughman.

So the Cards were back in control and they stayed up three to five points right into the fourth quarter. At 5:14 Dan Donahue connected on a 10-foot turnaround and Cleveland worked a steal 11 seconds later, converting it into a three-point play for a commanding 61-53 lead.

There was still an eight-point difference at the three-minute mark but Cleveland's layup about then turned out to be Arlington's last score of the game. At 2:48 Bowen connected on the front end of a one-and-one to make it 63-56; at 2:35 he zeroed in from ten feet out to put the scoreboard at 63-58.

With 1:28 remaining Sutherland chipped in a pair of gratis pitches. Arlington had no more than brought the ball down the court afterwards when Sander zoomed out of nowhere to pilfer a pass and head up in the other direction.

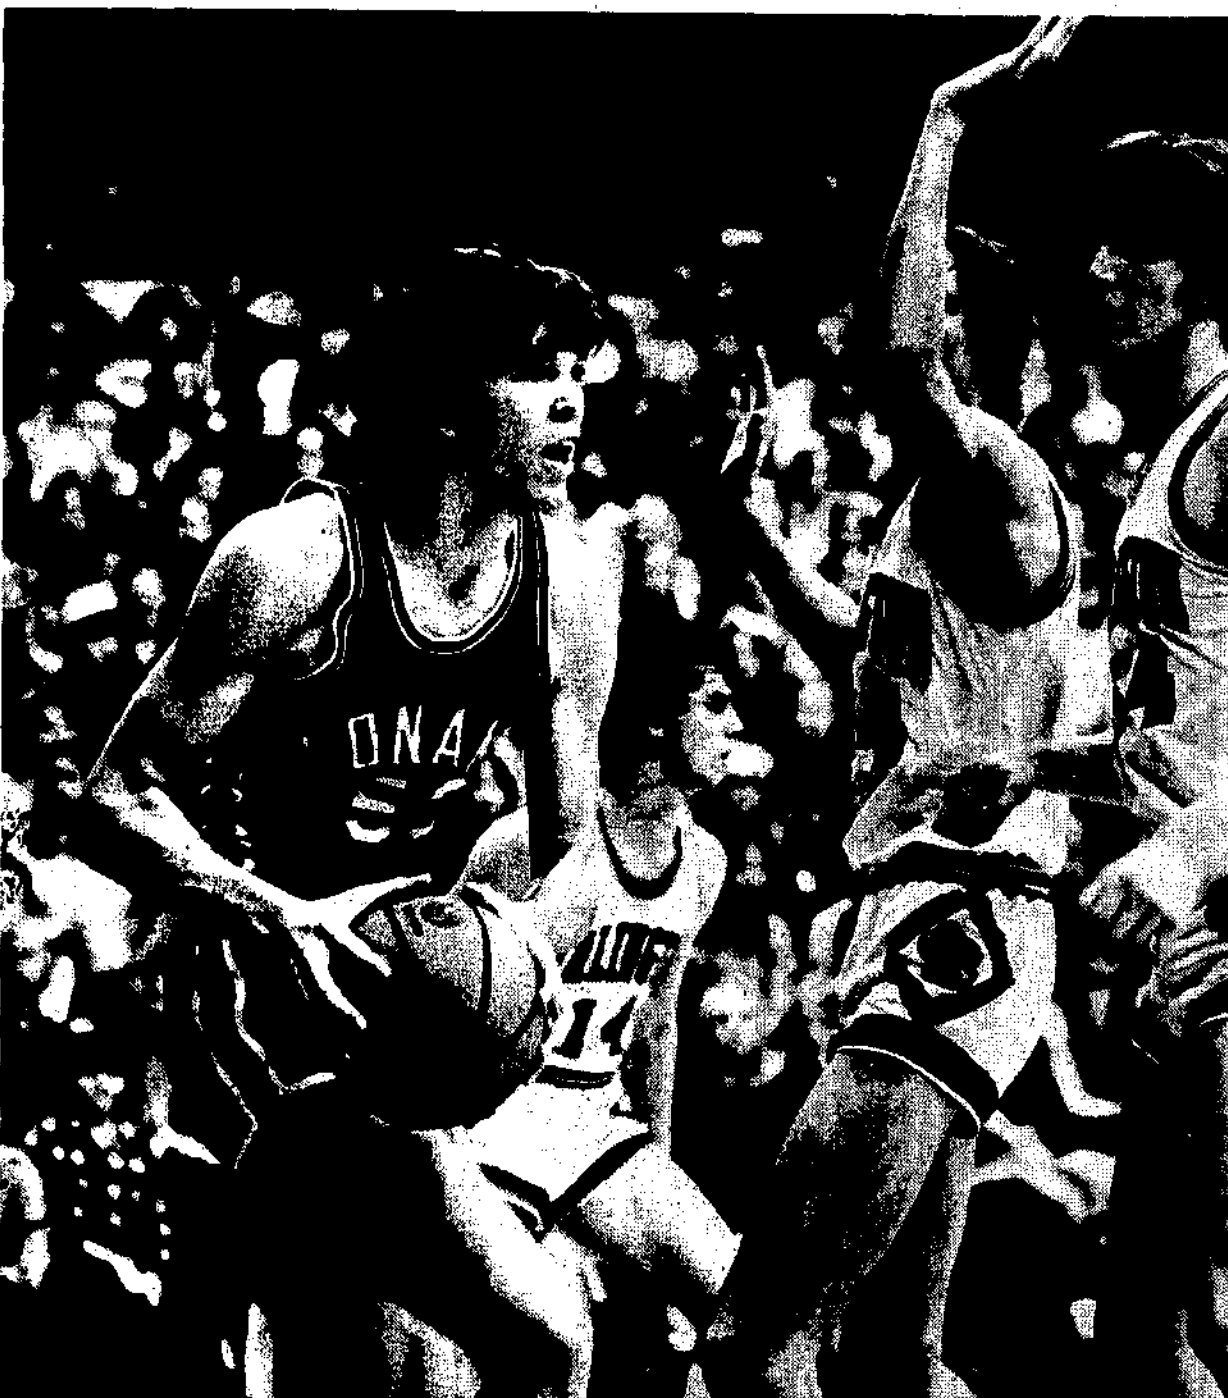

And after 20 more seconds had elapsed, Bowen drove the lane, tripped, but managed to scoop in a seven-footer as he fell to the floor. It was a 63-62 contest, Bowen by then had a career high 21 points, and the stage was set for

It was the second straight year that Arlington had scrambled their way to the top of the North Division standings only to be knocked off in the title bout.

That further diminished the solace for Zigman as he sat in the nearly empty locker room, still recounting the last moments of the match.

"They led for only three seconds of the game," he shrugged. "But those were the ones that counted."

Forest View wins in overtime; Hersey nips Prospect

Wheeling had their fun, Forest View had their fun, and then it was down to business.

In the battle of the Mid-Suburban League runner-ups, both Forest View and Wheeling got so wrapped up in their business that they worked overtime.

Forest View came out on top, 60-56, coming back from a 12-point deficit.

The Wildcats started out strong in the opening quarter, outscoring the Falcons by 12 points, 14-4.

Then they lost play-making guard Scott Keenan, who was suffering from the flu. Keenan scored four of the Wildcats' first period points.

Wheeling kept their lead up until 5:21 in the second quarter when the Falcons started to come back.

With 5:37 left to play in the first half, the Wildcats owned a 24-12 lead. At this point, the loss of Keenan started to have its effect on the Wildcats.

The Falcons then had their fun, running up 10 straight points to pull within two points of the Wildcats with 55 seconds left in the half.

Forest View had shut out Wheeling for almost four and one-half minutes.

"We rushed some shots there in the second period and Forest View started to come back," said Ted Ecker, the dismayed Wildcat coach after the game.

"We missed Scott (Keenan) because he takes his time. He doesn't rush."

Both teams were now down to business.

Wheeling led at halftime, 24-25. It was back-and-forth basketball from this point on. The Falcons took the lead for the first time on a five-foot basket from behind the net by Larry Monroe at 7:51 in the third quarter.

Wheeling's Bob Westrich quickly scored two field goals to give the Wildcats the lead again.

Holding on to the three-point lead, the Wildcats still led 33-35 with 3:26 left in the third period.

For awhile it looked like George Kaage was the man to see for a hot tip. The Wildcat center tipped in three shots in a three-minute span to keep the Wildcats in control.

At the end of three, the Wildcats still only led by one point, 44-43, both teams scoring 18 points in the quarter.

With 5:00 left in regulation play, the Wildcats owned a 52-47 lead. Forest View coach Ted Wissen wisely called a timeout.

The Falcons then shut out the Wildcats again, this time for almost four minutes while also scoring seven points of their own. With 1:40 left in the fourth period, the Falcons had the lead, 54-52.

Kaage's eight-footer with 1:12 on the clock sent the game into overtime.

A three-foot hook by Monroe and a five-foot turnaround shot by Mike Meyer in the overtime period won the game for the Falcons as all the Wildcats could manage were two free throws by Keenan.

Monroe added two free throws with only four seconds left to play to clinch the win for the Falcons.

Bad passes proved to be the Wildcats' downfall. Of the Wildcats' 18 turnovers, nine were due to errant passes.

The Falcons committed 14 turnovers. "We're two pretty even teams," said Wissen. "We hustled and scrapped and it was a real good effort."

The reason the Wildcats pulled out to an early lead was the cold shooting of the Falcons, who only hit three of 13 shots in the first quarter.

The Wildcats out-rebounded the Falcons, 40-32, pulling down 20 from the offensive board. They converted nine of those offensive boards into field goals.

All five Falcon starters finished the game in double figures. Monroe led the way with 17 points. Craig Brinkman collected 13, and Mark Russo, Meyer, and Karl Hauland each had 10.

Kaage led all scorers with 18 points. He was followed on the Wildcats by Bill Pickler (16) and Westrich (10).

The win gave the Falcons an overall record of 18-5, while the Wildcats are now at 17-6.

The Hersey Huskies Tuesday night narrowly escaped the onrushing Prospect Knights 52-51 in the final hectic seconds of their conference playoff game.

Dave Corzine, 6-11 center of the Huskies, turned in another outstanding performance for his team. Corzine made his presence felt not only offensively, contributing a game high total of 22 points, including 10 for 14 from the field, but also defensively, blocking seven shots and intimidating Knight shooters on several occasions.

The senior also snared 13 rebounds to round out his night.

Ironically, however, Corzine nearly wore goats horns in the contest as he missed three of his last five shots from the field and two successive free throws, both the first ends of one and one situations in the final 16 seconds of action.

Two key rebounds after Corzine's charity misfires and a heads-up defensive play by sophomore Clyde Glass helped preserve the victory for the Huskie cagers.

During the first period, the Huskies, who came into the game as slight favorites, fashioned a nine-point lead at 15-6 before Al Black, the Knights' leading scorer with 20 points on 10 baskets, cut the margin back to seven at the end of the stanza with a two-pointer.

Converting both ends of a one and one just before halftime, Paul Withey brought Prospect within six points at 30-24. The 6-9 Prospect center was the second leading scorer for the Knights with 17 points.

The third period went to the guests by five points as Withey poured in seven and Doug Bonthron and Black each added four and the stage was set for the frantic fourth period.

For the first time since early in the initial stanza, Black captured the lead for his teammates at 45-44 with a hoop after Withey had blocked a Tim Conrad jumper on the other end of the court. Corzine countered that shot by another of his own.

The Knights missed their first of several opportunities to put some distance between them and their opponents by losing possession of the ball the next two times upcourt.

Corzine missed a shot, and Black, who finished the fourth quarter with five baskets for six tries, put the Knights on target again at 47-46 with 3:21 left, and once more at 49-48 after trading baskets with Corzine at the 2:25 mark.

Both teams began straining under the pressure of the one-point contest. Conrad missed a field goal attempt. Corzine fouled Bob Thompson and then Thompson missed his free throw effort with 2:08 left. Still trailing 49-48, Corzine missed the target for the third and final time from the floor with 1:54 remaining and the Knights grabbed the rebound.

Almost a minute rolled off the clock before Glass made a lunge at the ball as the Knights played keepaway. The ball bounced out of bounds to Prospect with 53 seconds still showing. Although the steal attempt was unsuccessful, the effort paid off when the Knights tried to inbound the ball.

Mike Quade, hampered by the Huskies' defense, reached for the round object as it came in-bounds but he could not control it.

Eighteen seconds later, Corzine tallied a two-pointer, making the count 50-49. Back on the Knights' side of the court, the massive Huskies' center stole a shot off the hands of Withey with 16 seconds to go and the Knight junior immediately fouled his counterpart.

Corzine missed his attempt at the line, but Glass kept the ball in play and it came out front to Corzine. Again Corzine was hacked and again the center missed his charity, but Glass beat the Knights to the ball and one more time got it in front to Corzine, where he was fouled for the third straight time.

The third time was the charm for the talented giant as he hit the target from the stripe on his final two tries.

Black swished a last second layup, but the two points were too little, too late.

PIRATES WIN OVERTIME

Individually speaking, it was Jim Arden's overtime and Ken Pollitz' game.

Arden, Palatine's flashy backcourt star, had only totaled 11 points after the regulation part of the game with visiting Elk Grove. Then, as Grenadier coach Bill Parmetier was to mention afterwards, Arden "just went wild."

The 6-foot-1 Pirate senior threw in two field goals and 4-for-4 from the foul line in pressure situations to lift his team to a 66-62 victory in overtime.

Although the Grove lost, the effort put forth by Pollitz helped make up for the setback. The 6-5, 223-pound Grenadier center did everything he could to help his team win.

Pollitz finished with 37 points, hitting 14 of 23 from the field and 9 of 10 from the foul line. He also pulled down 16 rebounds. As a team, Elk Grove hit 38 per cent. So without Pollitz better than 50 per cent shooting himself, those final figures would have been a lot lower. He personally accounted for the Grove's points in the first (6) and third (13) quarters!

ters! However, Palatine equalized Pollitz' brilliant performance with three players in double figures. Mark Mara led the team with 23. Arden had 19 and Scott Cole 12. No other Grenadier reached double figures.

Elk Grove, a team that prides itself on defense, had a letdown this night. Palatine became only the second team to go over the 60-mark against the Grove. St. Louis did it at the Edwardsville tourney, 64-61.

Palatine is now 9-10 overall. Elk Grove is 14-11.

FREM D WINS, 63-54

Take two fifth place teams with a combined record of 15-32 and put them on the basketball court at the same time — what do you get?

You get Fremd defeating Schaumburg, 63-56, in a well-played, tightly fought battle that went right down to the last minute.

Fremd, 4-9 in the North division of the Mid-Suburban League, took an early lead on its home court Tuesday night and they maintained it throughout the action, getting plenty of scoring help from Chris Senesac and Randy Weber.

"It wasn't a bad ball game for two losers!"

ing ball clubs," said Schaumburg head coach Joe Breaux. "It was a good game all the way."

Jon McIlraith led all scorers for the Saxons with 28 points. The sophomore forward hit 11 times from the field. Ray Kralicek had 12 points for Schaumburg.

But the big story was Senesac, a Viking second stringer who scored 16 points, one more than teammate Randy Weber. Ken Hanks, another Fremd substitute, netted eight for Leon Kasuboske's team.

But the Saxons, with a 1-12 South division record, didn't give up. "We got close, but we couldn't break the gap," said Breaux. "We couldn't get closer than three or four."

Breaux was impressed with the action. "It was a pretty rough game," he said. "Both teams pressed almost the whole time, and it was pretty rugged under the boards."

BREITBEIL KEYS MEADOWS WIN

Steve Breitbeil saved the best game of his career for the Mid-Suburban League playoffs Tuesday night.

Rolling Meadows' junior guard pumped in eight of nine shots from the floor and nine-of-nine from the free throw line while guiding the Mustangs to a 77-63 triumph over South Division rival Buffalo Grove.

"He just played a super game," Mustang coach Ken Arneson of Breitbeil's near-flawless performance that netted Meadows its third straight victory.

"I don't think any of his points came from closer than 10 feet away and his nine straight free throws makes him 24 of 24 over the last four games."

With Breitbeil contributing 25 points — the season high for the Mustangs — and Scott Green controlling the boards at both ends of the floor with 17 rebounds and 17 points, Meadows raced out to a 16-2 lead and never looked back.

Buffalo Grove whittled the count down to 16-11 at the quarter, 35-29 at the intermission and 53-45 upon entering the final eight minutes.

Bison Brian Allsmiller (17 points), Mike Ledna (10), Tom Stonebrook (10) and Barry Schuster (10) sparked a comeback that pulled Buffalo Grove within 55-51 midway through the final period.

But Meadows responded with an 18-2 scoring spree that produced a 73-53 cushion over the final minutes.

The Mustangs shot a lofty 52 per cent from the floor and held the upper hand in the rebounding department with a 36-20 edge.

Gary won a scholarship at Southern Illinois University but injured his shoulder in a fatal car accident en route to a meet in Iowa his freshman year.

Morava, who "has a very high pain threshold," according to Meade, recovered quickly enough to gain All-American credentials as a sophomore, hitting highs of 9.5 on the floor, 9.55 in vaulting, 9.5 on parallel bars, 9.45 on horizontal bar and 9.22 in all-around.

His 9.3 average for the year in vaulting, 9.326 on floor, 9.242 on p-bars and 9.423 all-around were the highest in the nation on the collegiate level. He was the NCAA's vaulting champ in 1972 — an event he had never worked in high school.

In 1971, Morava competed internationally against Rumania and France and also was a member of the U.S. team that took on the Russians in 1972.

Morava had just celebrated a homecoming by representing the U.S.A. team against the Polish National Team at Wilkesboro High School, Feb. 17, and was among the spectators at the Mid-Suburban League Meet the night before at Forest View High School.

Gary Morava, a junior at Southern Illinois University and perhaps the greatest athlete the sport of gymnastics has produced in this area, remained in stable, but critical condition at Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis as of 3:30 Wednesday afternoon.

According to Bill Meade, head coach of the SIU gymnastics team, "The tragic accident occurred Tuesday afternoon while Gary was warming up on floor exercise, using the mini-trampoline and crash pads."

"He was doing a trick he's done hundreds of times. It was a two and three-quarter somersault and he didn't quite make it," Meade said. "He fractured the third and fourth cervical vertebrae which has to do with the main nervous system through the body."

Morava is paralyzed from the neck down. His respiratory system is the critical issue right now. He's breathing with the aid of an oxygen tent and has never lost consciousness.

Morava was the sports' littlest giant while performing for Hersey High School under coach Don Von Ebers. He was the Illinois High School Association's state all-around champion in 1970 with an 8.7 in floor exercise, 8.95 on side horse, 8.6 on horizontal bar, 8.0 on parallel bars and 6.75 on rings for a 29.8 total and a 7.96 average.

"He was the best little gymnast we've ever had here," a shocked and dazed Von Ebers said of his former 5-foot-6, 125-pound standout. "I never knew a kid who worked as hard to be the best there is."

Crime is major social problem created by heroin

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, is devoted to the care of the mentally ill. Forest Hospital is a fully-accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

The major social problem created by the heroin addict population is its heavy dependence on crime to support drug dependence.

"Heroin addicts are very nearly forced to support their habit through illegal means," said Dr. Vernon Patch, associate professor of psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School and director of Boston's drug treatment program.

"Drugs are very expensive," Dr. Patch continued. "The average addict we see needs six bags of heroin a day at $10 a bag. That's almost $60 a week. It's nothing for an addict to need 10 to 15 bags a day, or even as many as 30. Where is anyone going to get that kind of money? Addicts move increasingly into crime as their hunger increases, involving themselves mostly in property crime — such as burglary, larceny, auto theft."

Dr. Patch's Boston drug treatment program is designed mostly to try to satisfy the addict's drug hunger and rehabilitate him back into what society considers a normal life, which is apparently what the addict himself wants, too. "They're really trying to lead normal lives like you or I," said Dr. Patch. "They can't if they're out on the streets chasing their daily supply of heroin. In our treatment program we use methadone, a replacement drug, to satisfy their hunger for heroin so that they can turn their attention to other things — jobs, school, getting back with their families."

"Methadone is addictive too, with side effects similar to heroin," said Dr. Patch. "The main difference is in the duration of the drugs. Methadone lasts 24 to 36 hours, whereas heroin only lasts four to six hours before the 'user' has to have his next supply. With methadone, the addict stops at our clinic, say, in the morning, drinks his daily supply of methadone, then is ready to go about a normal day's life without worrying about where his next fix is coming from, where he'll get the money, or whether he'll go into withdrawal. We prefer, then, to call methadone maintenance a rehabilitation measure, rather than a treatment or substitute," Dr. Patch said.

BOSTON'S PROGRAM now consists of six separate treatment units — four methadone maintenance units and two work training units, where an addict is rehabilitated into the work force of society. They deal only with heroin addicts, who come to the program voluntarily. Some come so that they can go back to leading a normal life and some of the older addicts (the average age is 25), because they've been injecting drugs for so long they no longer have any place left on their body surface to inject, come for the oral substitute.

A study of the criminal records of Boston drug addicts shows that, on the average, their criminal activities were progressive. In fact, looking at the two years preceding treatment, their criminal activities increased by 50 per cent the second year over the first year. In the year after they began treatment, their criminal activity decreased by 50 per cent.

"This indicates that, yes, the antisocial behavior hasn't been alleviated, but they aren't committing crimes to satisfy their drug hunger, at least," said Dr. Patch. "Fifty per cent of these addicts had records as juveniles resulting from antisocial tendencies and antedating addiction by two to three years. Thirty per cent have served time in jail and two-thirds have at least been sentenced, though they may not have served time."

IN BOSTON, with a population of 650,000, crime had been increasing over the years. In 1971 crime began to decrease, and in 1972 crime decreased 29 per cent over 1971. Dr. Patch believes, in part the drug treatment program, which was established in 1970, is responsible for this decrease.

"Many people feel that we're wrong in our approach to heroin addiction, our use of methadone maintenance. They think our purpose should be mandatory treatment and counseling for the addicted," Dr. Patch said. "But many addicts are not ready for talk treatment yet. They want to straighten out the physical aspects of their lives. Then, maybe in a year or two, they can start thinking about permanent treatment. Heroin addiction is an illness that stays with people for a very long time. Nearly all addicts who undergo detoxification treatment return to drugs in one to two years."

The National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse, in its second report, according to Dr. Patch, attempted to survey the drug problem throughout the United States for drugs other than marijuana. One major point they learned in regard to the heroin addict, Dr. Patch noted, was that "the occasional success in a residential or self-help treatment program showed that this treatment was effective for only a very few."

SALE 10 DAYS ONLY!

"88¢ FOR PADDING. 88¢ FOR INSTALLATION. THAT'S NOT A BARGAIN, IT'S PRACTICALLY CHARITY."

It's like having a brother in the carpet business.

When you buy jute back carpeting, the one thing most people don't realize is that the price you pay isn't all you pay.

Unless padding and installation are included (and they usually aren't) you can add about another $3.50 a square yard.

And that can turn a bargain carpet into not such a bargain carpet.

But for this sale, the pad and installation cost only 88¢ each a square yard.

Veterans' news

Switch to 'new law' pension OK

Q — The Veterans Administration pays me pension under the so-called "old law." Can I switch to pension under the "new law?"

A — Yes, if it would be to your advantage. It is suggested, however, that you first discuss it with a VA representative, since once you've made the change you cannot return to benefits under the "old law."

Q — Am I eligible for educational assistance from the Veterans Administration for service in the Army from July 1 through Nov. 30, 1949?

A — No, unless you were separated for a service connected disability. Otherwise, to be eligible for this benefit, a veteran must have served more than 180 days of active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, and he must have been separated under conditions other than dishonorable.

Q — A few years ago, my husband took out a government life insurance policy with the Veterans Administration, but I'm not sure I'm the beneficiary. Will VA give me this information?

A — VA is not authorized to provide this information during the insured's lifetime without permission from the insured or his duly appointed fiduciary.

Q — I'm a World War II veteran who never used his GI home loan entitlement. I hear the Veterans Administration will still guarantee loans for such veterans. Is that true?

A — Yes. In 1970, Congress removed expiration dates on all unused VA expired loan entitlement. Henceforth, veterans retain entitlement until used. Apply to nearest VA office if you want to use this benefit.

Q — What's this I hear about husbands of female veterans being eligible for the same Veterans Administration benefits as wives and widows of male veterans?

A — You heard right. Under PL 92-540 (Oct. '72), the term "wife," for purposes of benefits, includes husbands of female veterans and "widow" includes widowers of female veterans.

Artificial respiration—how to do it

I am wondering about the right and wrong techniques of mouth to mouth respiration and what the dangers are when done wrong?

I am elderly. I had been listening to a talk attentively and under tension for one hour. When I was standing upright after that I passed out.

When I soon became semi-conscious someone near me raised my head, pinched my nose shut tightly and pushed my lower jaw down tightly and began mouth-to-mouth respiration. It stopped my breath. It seemed like I was in torture. I pulled away and blacked out again. When I became conscious again my tongue got thick and my lower jaw was so stiff I could hardly answer questions.

When should mouth-to-mouth respiration be given and how?

I would imagine that mouth-to-mouth respiration would be very uncomfortable if you were breathing normally on your own.

Artificial respiration should be given when the breathing has stopped. If the breathing is very shallow and infrequent it might be difficult to be sure that a person is still breathing. If there is any

Mineral, gem show is coming

The Ninth Annual Gem and Mineral Show will be presented by the Des Plaines Valley Geological Society March 30-31 at Rand Park Field House in Des Plaines.

The show will feature exhibits on minerals, fossils, gems, lapidary and jewelry, as well as live demonstrations, and a silent auction. Dealers will man booths at the show. The demonstrations will include jewelry making, faceting and rock polishing.

SHOW HOURS ARE from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, March 30, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. March 31. Admission for adults is 50 cents; ages 8 to 16, 25 cents, and children under 8 are admitted free.

The Des Plaines Valley Geological Society was formed in 1968 by a group of Des Plaines area residents and has grown to almost 200 members. Its purpose is to study and promote an interest in the earth sciences — geology, paleontology, archaeology, lapidary and related arts.

Meetings of the club are held on the third Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at West Park Fieldhouse, 850 Wolf Rd., Des Plaines.

The public is invited to the Gem and Mineral Show. Rand Park is located at 2025 Miner St., Des Plaines.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

doubt then one can suspect that respiration is not adequate and it would probably be better to do it than not do it. Respiration does stop in some cases during a heart attack, a stroke, or other medical problems.

Properly done, the mouth is opened. A trained person might be sure that the tongue hasn't fallen back into the throat blocking the air passages or, if possible, see that food is not lodged in the windpipe.

The victim's head is tilted back. The nose is closed or pinched shut and the person giving the artificial respiration puts his mouth over the victim's and exhales into the mouth. Obviously, if the nose is not closed the air simply rushes out the nose and not into the lungs. Also, the mouth has to have a tight enough fit not to lose air. If the windpipe is not obstructed the exhaled air goes into the victim's lungs. The chest should expand as it does with normal breathing.

Next, the mouth is removed and the victim naturally exhales. Then the procedure is repeated so that the person giving the respiration exhales each breath into the victim's mouth. Basically each time the donor exhales his breath goes into the victim's lungs and when he takes his mouth off to get a new breath the victim is releasing the air from his lungs.

FORTUNATELY, respiration resumes normally in many people after a few breaths this way. If it doesn't then the process is continued until medical help can be obtained.

A handy little book on artificial respiration and other emergency first aid is "Save Your Child's Life!" by David Hendin. For your copy send one dollar plus 25 cents for postage and handling to "Save Your Child's Life" in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10022.

The danger in giving artificial respiration is minimal indeed. The danger is in failing to give it when needed. If the procedure is continued for a relatively long period of time some residual soreness of the jaw might occur and your mouth might not feel normal.

If you had a simple faint then you might not have needed artificial respiration but the only people who would know would be those present at the time and able to observe your breathing pattern.

When an adult is giving artificial respiration to a young child, then it is often possible and best, to cover both the nose and the mouth of the child with the adult's mouth.

Gold coin market is alive and thriving

by MONT REED

In today's coin market, gold is positively the most sought-after item. Almost every investor is looking to this area to fill his needs and expectations of the future. One of the best series of U.S. gold is definitely the one-dollar pieces issued from 1849 to 1889. In its 40 year history, this denomination changed design twice, resulting in three distinct types.

Collecting coins

The first type (illustrated) is the Liberty head minted from 1849 to 1854 at five different mints. Charlotte, N.C.; Dahlonega, Ga.; New Orleans and San Francisco. The most common dates were struck at Philadelphia.

All of the "O" New Orleans mint coins can be considered scarce. This is especially true in choice condition. The 1852-O is particularly underrated. This piece is much more difficult to find in uncirculated condition than some of the more highly valued dates.

SAN FRANCISCO minted only one of the Type I gold dollars. The 1854-S is, therefore, quite popular, especially in high grade. An uncirculated 1854-S is very rare and should prove an excellent investment.

All Charlotte and Dahlonega Type I gold dollars are very rare and highly recommended. Since many of these coins were poorly minted, a really choice piece is well worth a premium price.

One of the second most underrated of the Type I dollars is the 1854-D. Of the original mintage of 2,935, roughly 30 specimens still exist, making this much rarer than many people would believe.

All Type I gold dollars are much scarcer than their mintages would indicate. Between 1859 and 1861, nearly 70 per cent of these coins were melted by the mint in order to obtain the gold needed to produce other coins. Therefore, there are very few really choice Type I gold dollars available today.

This series should be given serious consideration as it has great investment potential. The following table is a study of the 20-year market performance of a Type I gold dollar.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Percentage play rewarded

A match-point duplicate player would probably go down at three notrump. He would look over dummy; decide that three notrump was a normal contract and take the diamond finesse in an effort to score as many overtricks as possible.

A winning rubber bridge player would make the contract. He would win the first spade and study the hand just long enough to see that if West held the king of diamonds three notrump would wheel in even though West made his king. Then he would see that trouble was in store if East held that very important card.

Applying the H of the Code word ARCH he would ask himself: "How can I make this hand if East holds the king of diamonds?"

Then he would see that the king just might be singleton. He would lead his 10 of diamonds at trick two and then rise with dummy's ace. Caution and percentage-play would be rewarded. The king would drop. South would run off the rest of the diamond suit and be sure of at least 10 tricks.

He would probably make it 11 although perfect discarding by East and West would stop that second overtrick.

Social security and you

Medicare Cost is questioned

I already had the doctor bill part of Medicare, but I wasn't eligible for hospital insurance until under a chance in the law I could buy coverage and pay a premium. I signed up for the hospital insurance part and started paying a premium of $33 a month. Can you tell me why it was set at $33.

Studies show that the average Medicare hospital insurance payment has been $33 a month per beneficiary. This is why the premium was set at $33 a month.

I'm getting monthly Social Security checks on my husband's work record, and I'll be 65 in 5 months. When should I apply for Medicare?

If you want to enroll in both parts — hospital and medical insurance — you don't have to do anything. You'll automatically be covered under both parts of Medicare the month you become 65. You'll get information about both parts of Medicare from Social Security a few months before the month your coverage starts. If you decide you don't want the medical insurance, you must complete the form you get from Social Security and return it.

I just retired a few months ago and started getting monthly Social Security checks. I plan to help out a friend in his repair shop this spring. How will the job affect my Social Security payments and when should I report my earnings?

If your annual earnings exceed $2,400, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $2 of earnings above $2,400. Regardless of total yearly earnings, no benefits will be withheld for any month you do not earn more than $200 in employment and do not do substantial work in your own business.

If you think you'll earn over $2,400 in 1974, you should report it to your nearest Social Security office as soon as you can. Then Social Security can withhold your benefits during the period when you have income from working and make payment accordingly. If you delay reporting your earnings to Social Security, you could be overpaid and have to pay back some benefits.

Also, if your estimate of earnings changes during the year — either up or down — you should report the change to Social Security immediately.

Six postmarkers to honor Aussie explorer Flinders

The Australian Post Office will issue a souvenir cover and six pictorial postmarkers (cancellations) on March 16 to commemorate the bicentennial of the birth of explorer Matthew Flinders (1774-1814).

Flinders circumnavigated the Australian continent in the H.M.S. Investigator and charted large sections of the coastline which were previously unknown. He is also credited with being the first man to use the name "Australia" for the new continent.

The postmarkers will be used at six points which have some association with Flinders' voyages — Whitemark, Flinders Island (Tas.), Lake Illawarra (N.S.W.), Pinalba (Qld.), Albany (W.A.), Port Lincoln (S. Aust.), and Arthur's Seat (Vic.).

Collectors have three purchase options:

- Set A. Six Matthew Flinders covers each bearing a $1 Flinders stamp. One postmarked cover from each of the six points. Price per set is $6.54.

- Set B. One Matthew Flinders cover bearing a $1 Flinders stamp and postmarked at any one of the six points chosen by the collector. Price per cover is $1.09.

- Set C. Six Matthew Flinders covers each bearing a 7-cent stamp. One postmarked cover from each of the six points. Price per set, 96 cents.

Send your requests to Flinders Covers, Philatelic Bureau, 12th Floor, 374 Bourke St., Melbourne, Australia 3006. Your remittance must be in Australian funds.

THE PHILATELIC sales division will withdraw the following U.S. postal items from sale in March:

- $1 Airlift (not tagged)
- $5 John Bassett Moore (not tagged)
- 6-cent Eisenhower coil (not tagged)
- $3 Cinnamon Teal Migratory Bird Stamp (1971-72)

These are the last of the untagged stamps on sale at the division except for postage due stamps.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine Rechner

THE SWEDISH Postal Administration will participate at COMPEX 1974 (Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicago-Land) for the first time. COMPEX will be held Memorial Day weekend, May 24, 25 and 26, 1974, at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago.

An official government exhibit, as well as a wicket where their stamps will be sold at face value, will be set up by the Swedish Postal Administration, under the direction of Phillip F. Robbins, philatelic marketing representative in the U.S. and Canada.

A STAMP swapping session and a mini-auction will be featured when the Northwest Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Mark's Youth Center, 205 S. Wille, Mount Prospect. Guests are welcome.

Address your questions in care of this column to Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

$6 Million Man co-star lives alone

HOLLYWOOD — Richard Anderson, who co-stars in the new adventure series, "The $6 Million Man," lives in Beverly Hills, but his three daughters live with their mother in Aspen, Colo., and that fact makes life hard for him.

Anderson is a slender, handsome, sensitive man who has been divorced about a year and is still trying to make the adjustment as best he can.

Some days it doesn't hurt as much as others.

Anderson lives alone in a three-bedroom home in Benedict Canyon, a sylvan setting with deer, coyotes, big trees and night creatures. He bought the house, a dozen years ago. It was the only home his daughters knew until the divorce broke up the family.

But he talks to his girls on the telephone every week. They are Ashley, 11; Brooke, 9; and Deva, 7. They also get to see their daddy every week on the ABC-TV series. He wishes the set worked both ways.

The Hollywood scene

by Vernon Scott

THE HOUSE IS simply but elegantly furnished. Since becoming a single man again Anderson has tried to enliven the place with some masculine touches — like a pair of snow shoes added to the fireplace.

"I've stayed in the house because it's still the homestead to the girls," Anderson says. "It gives them a sense of having roots, when they visit me this summer everything will be as it was when they left."

A woman comes in to clean the house twice a week — the same cleaning lady he hired before the girls were born.

Anderson is beginning to learn how to cook with indifferent success. He usually settles for broiling a steak and throwing a salad together. From time to time he eats at a restaurant. Usually alone.

HE HASN'T started dating other women. He has no explanation for this except to say he isn't ready to become emotionally involved with anyone.

Instead, Anderson devotes himself to sports activities. He plays tennis whenever he can — frequently at the Beverly Hills hotel court with a professional or at the homes of friends who have courts of their own.

He also has become a ski buff. He visited the girls in Aspen earlier this winter and skied with them. He prefers cross-country skiing to the downhill variety because it allows him to see more of the majesty of the countryside.

Anderson entered only one pro-am tournament, mixing celebrities and top tennis professionals. That was back in 1963 when he beat Charlton Heston for the championship. He quit while he was ahead.

THE ACTOR HAS two automobiles. One is a sleek Jaguar sports model, circa 1963. The other is a small imported van which he drives to work every day on various locations around Los Angeles. He keeps a bicycle attached to the van and is free to pedal around for exercise when he is not in a scene.

On weekends, Anderson jumps in his car and heads for the beach to go sailing with friends, plays tennis or drives out into the country. He also enjoys movies and the theater.

At home he takes time out to sit at a typewriter in his study working at a screen play he hopes one day to complete.

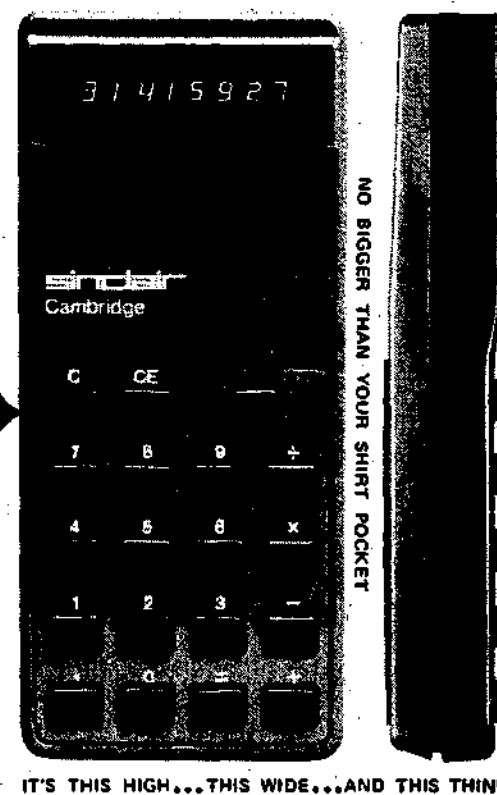

NOT INFREQUENTLY in the evening Anderson sits alone reading. His library is large and represents a wide range of books from history to biography to novels and plays.

The brightest element in his home is a spectacular collection of colorful posters from various parts of Europe. He wrote to several tourist bureaus asking if they would send him the large decorative posters. His collection includes beauties from Italy, Portugal, Spain and France.

"I've put them up since the girls were last here," he says. "When they come to visit, they'll be delighted."

The REAL ESTATE Professionals

Featuring this week:

Village Square, Realtors

125 W. Colfax, Palatine

359-7730

Village Square Realtors has announced its second expansion since the firm was founded in June of 1972 by Marge and Dave Yeats and Bob Lotka.

A branch office will be opened April 1 at 1650 N. Arlington Heights Rd. in Arlington Heights. The firm's first expansion, enlargement of its facilities across from Palatine's Transportation Center, took place early in 1973 before the company had completed its first year of operations.

The new Arlington Heights office will occupy leased space in the new 1650 North office building, now undergoing finishing touches. Other tenants will include an insurance company, two attorneys, an architect and a commercial Realtor, all offering related services available to the home buyer or seller at a one-stop convenience location.

Village Square's new office will be managed by Bob Lotka, the firm's vice president in charge of sales and training. Lotka will continue his over-all sales and training management functions in addition to managing the Arlington branch office that at full strength will include 10 sales associates and a secretary.

Marge Yeats expressed elation at the announcement of the opening. "We started the planning for this office in the fall of last year when real estate sales were at their lowest ebb in quite some time. We didn't know when the market would turn up, but we did not want to pass up the opportunity to have this location."

"The center of population in Arlington Heights is moving north and now needs a full-service Realtor. On Arlington Heights Road, only a stone's throw from Palatine and Rand Roads, and with a Route 53 expressway exit within a mile of our door, we knew this was a location that could conveniently serve a large part of the Arlington Heights market."

In Palatine, most real estate offices are concentrated within a few blocks along Northwest Highway. Arlington Heights, too, has its Real Estate Row along Northwest Highway and another along south Arlington Heights Road.

Village Square declined to "join the crowd" in Palatine when it established its office at 125 W. Colfax and is again bucking the trend in Arlington Heights. Commenting on what affect the Palatine location has had on business, Dave Yeats replies, "We have excellent exposure from traffic using the railroad station, the drive-in banks, the post office and the central commercial area; and we don't have to share it with 10 or 12 other Multiple Listing Service real estate offices. We were the leading listing office, among MAP members, of Palatine properties during the final quarter of 1973, so I think the results speak for themselves."

"I would expect the same results in Arlington Heights. We'll have excellent exposure there, away from most of the competition. With well-trained, concerned sales people and a good customer service program I'm confident we will build a good clientele. This is basically a people business. Our key to success is a well-trained sales staff with empathy and a good knowledge of both the market and the community."

The mortgage money crunch which began quite abruptly last August appears now to be over. Funds became steadily more available during the month of January, and Village Square officials are predicting that 1974 will be a generally good year for the real estate industry in this area.

New construction has been down for some time and is expected to remain sluggish in 1974, placing a greater burden on the resale market for satisfying housing requirements. Construction costs will continue to climb and this trend will tend to keep resale housing prices up. With inflationary pressures on the economy expected to continue, mortgage interest rates are not likely to decline significantly.

"This condition of continuing upward pressure on prices with only a nominal softening of interest rates predicted," says Yeats, "means buying today will cost less than postponing the purchase of a home. We think this will keep buying activity high. Some impetus is also coming as a result of the energy shortage, with a significant number of wage earners seeking housing closer to their employment locale."

Village Square wants to increase its share of the housing market beyond the nearly $8 million of real estate sales participated in during 1973. Aggressive marketing practices are followed by the firm to assure this growth. When mortgage funds dried up in the last half of 1973, Village Square paid to reserve funds and thereby had mortgage money available to its buyers and sellers throughout the difficult period.

In addition to growing advertising commitments to bring in prospective buyers, the company has membership in two relocation services and also has direct referral contact with more than 1,000 brokers throughout the country. January sales for Village Square were well over $1 million, including cooperative sales, and the firm expects that significant total will set the pace for 1974.

Drain your water heater often

Somewhere on your water heater tank there's a sticker or tag telling you to drain the tank at regular intervals. Or maybe in the booklet that lists all the parts it advises you to do the same thing. You may be told to do this once a month or once every six months. Then there will be a reminder that there's a drain valve at the base of the tank.

Presumably all you have to do is open the valve and let the water out. There's more to it than that.

The purpose of draining is to get rid of the sediment that accumulates at the bottom of the tank. A build-up of sediment makes the heating of water less efficient, shortens the life of the tank and can give you dirty water.

THE VALVE is threaded so that you can use a garden hose on it. Trying to drain the tank a bucket-full at a time is not practical.

Fasten a hose to the valve and run the hose to a basement drain or lead it outside. Remember that the end of the hose must be lower than the valve.

You can take off a gallon of water, a good monthly procedure, by just opening the valve briefly. But once every six months and never less than once a year the tank should be drained and re-filled.

There are two pipes and two valves at the top of the tank. One is the cold water inlet through which the tank is filled. The other is the one through which the hot water leaves the tank. Open a hot water faucet and get the water flowing and you can tell which pipe is which by just touching them.

Do it yourself

NEXT TURN off the heat. On a gas fired tank find the pilot switch which will be in the "on" position. The other two are "off" and "pilot." Turn it to "pilot." In this position the burner will be off but the pilot will remain on. On an electric tank the heat is turned off by turning off the nearby switch, or pair of switches.

With the hose in place open the valve and let the water run out. Not all of the sediment will come out with the water. To stir it up and get it out turn on the cold water valve full while the valve is open. Keep it on until the flow of water is full strength. Then turn it off. Do this several times and you will get rid of most of the sediment.

With the tank drained, close the valve and turn on the cold water. Open a hot water faucet and leave it open until the water comes out. Close it. Open and close each of the other hot water faucets the same way to get rid of the air that has accumulated in the pipes.

Remember to turn the pilot light back to on. Turn the electricity back on for your electric tank.

Honor Tony Cirone

Tony Cirone, of the Mount Prospect office of Continental Real Estate, Inc., has been honored for outstanding sales efforts in 1973, standing out with the top residential sales producers for the firm across its sixteen offices and nearly 200 sales personnel.

Location, space attract apartment dwellers

"I just like it. I don't know why — I just do."

Part of a song? No, that's the typical response of Chicago's single, young-adult apartment renter when queried as to rental preferences.

So observes Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Company, San Francisco, a national mortgage banking and brokerage organization.

Gaber notes that a recent study of the Chicago area's unmarried renters — age 21 to 30 — reveals that few can name the foremost attraction of their rental unit. Nationally, the unmarried renters in this age group represent approximately 30 per cent of the apartment rental population.

"Most feel the choice of an apartment is based on a combination of factors — ultimately on a judgment of just what is 'nice.' It appears to be the intangibles that really count," he says.

When urged to delineate their rating systems, Gaber explains that the majority of the single crowd cite the following:

Location and surrounding area — major considerations, closely followed by rental expenses. Nearly 85 per cent say they initially select locale and neighborhood — then examine rents.

Next on the preference list is spaciousness of the apartment, Gaber reports, and particularly popular today is the separate dining area.

Women renters — fully 93 per cent, in contrast to 47 per cent of the men, specify appliances as a determinant. But both desire complete laundry facilities — preferably on the same floor as their apartment.

Three-fourths of the singles see energy shortages affecting their attitude toward amenities. Now pools, tennis courts and lawn areas are vital due to elimination of higher and you weekend excursions.

Also energy-related is a growing concern about accessibility to public transportation. Gaber notes that "fully half of those questioned say this factor didn't matter a year ago — now it does."

He adds further that renters are evenly divided between those who opt for a "socially-oriented" building and those who select a complex where residents tend to keep to themselves.

There was virtually unanimous agreement, however, on "not too many young children — not too many retirees," Gaber notes.

On the question of pets in apartments — a resounding "yes."

Important to single women is proximity of stores, services and parks — a minor drawing card for male renters.

Of course, in a time of apartment shortages, most renters concur that simply getting an apartment would be their prime consideration.

He comments that "the Chicago area's young adults — quite obviously — are difficult to type cast — one man's 'dream apartment' is merely four walls to another. But that's what makes for diversity in design, neighborhoods and environment."

"In apartment living — for the younger crowd — it's a matter of 'to each his own,'" Gaber concludes.

JANET AND RICHARD Bosworth gave up their traditional private home in favor of a three-bedroom townhouse at The Crossings in Buffalo Grove. The Bosworth's may represent a coming trend of ongoing families in townhouses, traditional homes of recently marrieds and retired couples.

Townhouses must take new directions in design

If the house-hunting experiences of the Bosworth family are typical, some long-held beliefs about how the American family wants to be housed may be proving untrue.

Richard and Janet Bosworth and their four daughters may very well represent the vanguard of an important new market — the townhouse.

New townhouse developments have been springing up throughout the metropolitan area and almost without exception have been solely designed either for the newly-married couple or for the older established family with perhaps only one child left in the nest.

Townhouses, in other words, have historically not been built for the ongoing family, the one with several children at home and with parents in their middle years.

The Bosworths, however, serve as a sign that this townhouse tradition just may be out of date.

Dick Bosworth, 35, a systems engineer for Leasco Computer Corp. in Oak Brook, recently moved his large family out of a private home and into a three-bedroom townhouse at The Crossings, a new development in Buffalo Grove.

Bosworth, whose family happens to be the first resident of the new community, explained why he made the move: "Basically it is because of my job," he said. "I'm traveling on an average of three days a week and when I am home, I want to spend my time with the family — not out on the lawn picking weeds."

"And, I also didn't like the idea of my wife or daughters shoveling snow while I was gone," he continued. "We're an active family and they're hardly helpless, but the drudgery of home maintenance is not what I would call a great way of occupying one's time."

"We knew we wanted to get into a townhouse development where the outside chores were taken care of and which offered some recreational facilities," Bosworth said. "The problem we confronted was that we couldn't find a development designed with our type of family in mind."

Bosworth said that during the year search, his family visited no fewer than 25 developments, most of which were in the northeast suburban area where they were already living and where their friends were located.

"We found many homes designed for a young couple just starting out and many others for older or retired couples with well-established bank accounts, but until we found The Crossings, there was nothing in our price range that was adequate," he said.

The Bosworth's home is one of what eventually will be 748 units at The Crossings, developed by The Richards Group of Illinois, Inc., and located at the crossing of U.S. Highways 53 (Long Grove Road) and 83 (Mundelein Road) in Buffalo Grove.

Report record land sales for Centex industrial parks

Record land sales for the year ending December 31 for Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village, and Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, Schaumburg, have been reported by Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates, the industrial real estate firm which developed the two parks.

Total land sales of more than $15 million, representing 133 separate transactions, were reported by James Dana, manager of the two parks.

Land sales in Centex Industrial Park were about $11 million, representing 243 acres in 63 separate transactions. The major transactions in Centex in 1973 were 90 acres sold to Sears, Roebuck & Company, and 51 acres to the Halo Light division of McGraw Edison Co.

Centex is now occupied by about 850 different firms, and is considered to be the most successful industrial park in the United States. There are only 150 acres of vacant land remaining, less than six per cent of the total acreage.

In Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park, 1973 land sales totaled more than $4 million, representing 133 acres and 70 separate transactions. In one major transaction, the Earle M. Jorgensen Company purchased 52 acres; in another, KPC Corporation purchased a 21-acre site. There are now 161 firms in Centex-Schaumburg, which is 66 per cent sold.

Top record sales

Quilan and Tyson Realtors rolled up record sales in 1973.

Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president of Q&T, said that sales volume reached a new record high of $115.2 million.

The new record represents a 10 per cent increase over the previous high — $104.8 million in 1972.

Barth leads sales at Kunkel Realtors

For the second time in three months Edward K. Barth was sales leader of the month during January for Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

Barth achieved the largest number of real estate sales and listings not only this January but also last October.

Barth joined Kunkel's residential sales division in 1969. Previously he had been with Foote, Cone and Belding Advertising Agency and was in marketing and sales with Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

Barth lives in the Northshire section of Des Plaines with his wife, Elinor, and their two children.

No noise heating

Today's homeowner, already beset by huge heating bills, wants a heating system that is quiet as well as comfortable, and according to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, hydronic (hot water) heating fulfills both specifications.

Installed at ankle height on outside walls, it emits uniform comfort throughout the house. Since it doesn't have any noise producing blowers, hydronics is extremely quiet.

SINCE 1960 A LEADER IN HIGH QUALITY REAL ESTATE ASSISTANCE

To build motor freight terminal, industrial park in Wheeling

A $25 million combination industrial park and "satellite" motor freight terminal development that will siphon off heavy truck traffic from Chicago's inner city streets will be built in Wheeling, Chicago developer, Harry F. Chaddick, announced.

Chaddick said the new industrial park and terminal site, which will rival in size his Highway Freight Center on the city's southwest side, will be the first of a half dozen such areas he will develop in a semi-circle around Chicago, approximately 30 miles from the Loop. He estimated the total cost of all the projects at a figure in excess of $150 million.

Chaddick's new project, to be known as South Wheeling Industrial Park, will be located on an 83-acre tract of land on the south side of Hintz Road, about 1200 feet east of Wolf Road. The site had been used as farmland.

Chaddick said two major motor freight carriers already have signed contracts for terminal facilities in the project. They are Gateway Transportation Company, Inc. on a 10-acre site and McLean Trucking Company on 15 acres.

Chaddick said his proposed satellite motor freight terminal network is badly needed for a number of reasons. "Too many trailer trucks carry freight all the way into the heart of the city, where it is unloaded and transferred back out to the suburbs," he said. "This obviously contributes unnecessarily to city traffic congestion and is a waste of time, fuel and manhours."

"The satellite terminals will be meeting the needs of industry within an immediate area, affording shippers expedited pick-ups and deliveries," he added.

The Wheeling facility is being built by Chaddick's First American Realty Company, a diversified company specializing in the development of a variety of real estate enterprises.

Swim in comfort

If adding a swimming pool in your backyard is part of your home improvement plans, you'll enjoy it more if it has heated water, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

In homes with hydronic (hot water) home heating, the pool water can be piped through the heating system on a separate circuit, and you'll be able to use it from early spring to late fall.

WILLIAM N. ANNEN, secretary-treasurer of Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors, welcomed Linda Fischer, real estate editor of Padlock Publications, to the firm's annual sales dinner recently. Ms. Fischer presented Annen and Edward Busse with a framed reproduction of the Annen & Busse cover page which ran in The Herald last October. "Padlock Publications has been an integral part of the Annen & Busse advertising program during the entire 25 years Annen & Busse has served the northwest suburbs," Annen said.

Tyler Bluff features 5 models

Tyler Bluff, the townhome community in Elgin has five models. Three have a garage that forms the back wall of an enclosed courtyard, and in the other two, the garage is on the lower level.

All of the homes are built on three levels and have been planned as two homes in one. The main living level has a den with closet and adjoining full bath. The den can be used as a bedroom thus eliminating stair climbing for the couple who only needs additional space when the children and grandchildren are visiting.

Plan number five has a side entry leading into the dining room and living room with entry to the corridor kitchen and adjoining breakfast-family room. An enclosed patio opens from the family room. The living room has a cathedral ceiling, fireplace and entry to a 27' balcony overlooking the treetops. The den also opens onto the balcony.

Upstairs a gallery with a darkened wooden railing is large enough for a study or den. It overlooks the living room and the master bedroom, full bath and second bedroom open from it. At ground level is the two-car heated garage, utility room and an area suitable for storage or recreation.

Central heat, air conditioning, continuous cleaning double oven, frost free refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher, garbage disposal, lighting fixtures, carpeting, fireplace, and two-car heated garage are included with all homes. Plan 5 is priced from $46,400 with other models starting at $43,500.

More than $1,000 per unit is allocated for landscaping and planting the naturally wooded site. Only eight trees were removed from the eight acres of woodland. All others were retained and the town homes were built around and above them.

There are two recreation centers; one for adults, the other for children. The outdoor pool and sundeck has been built between the recreation centers.

L-G Associates of Chicago and Elgin are the builders and developers of the 60-home community which is located ½ mile south of the Route 31 south exit on I-90, the Northwest Tollway. Models are open from noon to dark on weekends and by appointment. The phone is (312) 697-6010.

The Ten Commandments of Good Business

A Customer is the most important person in any business.

A Customer is not dependent on us — we are dependent on him.

A Customer is not an interruption of our work — he is the purpose of it.

A Customer does us a favor when he calls — we are not doing him a favor by serving him.

A Customer is a part of our business — not an outsider.

A Customer is not a cold statistic — he is a flesh-and-blood human being with feelings and emotions like our own.

A Customer is not someone to argue or match-wits with.

A Customer is a person who brings us his wants — it is our job to fill those wants.

A Customer is deserving of the most courteous and attentive treatment we can give him.

A Customer is the life-blood of this and every other business.

Single men in suburbia

With right girl, married is better

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

MINISTER IN residence at International Village apartments, the Rev. Nic Christoff is very close to many of the problems experienced by singles. To combat loneliness he advises young people to join a club, get involved.

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(Second of two parts)

"Absolutely, everyone wants to be married."

The Rev. Nic Christoff doesn't hesitate to make a flat statement. As minister in residence for International Village, a new experiment in apartment ministry, he daily counsels young singles living both within and outside the complex. And many of the problems confided to him stem from loneliness.

Single himself, Pastor Nic often relates with his own experiences and feelings.

"Being alone is good at times, but there is the constant hustle to stay ahead of the game," he said.

This can show up in one's career as it is much easier to apply yourself to a job if the tension and frustrations of being single are not brought to work, he feels.

IT CAN HAVE the same effect as individuals experiencing marital strife.

"Loneliness is bad when one comes home alone and is too tired to do anything about it," added the Rev. Christoff. "One big disadvantage of being single is having to go out and find company."

"I can't think of any disadvantage to being single except coming home to an empty house or empty apartment. The nitty gritty things like laundry and cooking don't bother me," said Chuck, who is nearing 30.

"I'm always looking but not necessarily to find someone," said Al. "I suppose if I ever bumped into something, I'd change my mind."

"It's all right to make all these aloof statements until the right one comes along," he added with a laugh. "But make sure my last name isn't used. I wouldn't want people to think I'm in the market."

Is he?
"YES, I GUESS I am."

"Why haven't I ever married? That's simple, I haven't found anyone I want who also wants me," replied another man who recently turned 30, the age at which many men begin to seriously consider settling down. Making small talk and drinking with the boys begins to lose its appeal.

"As you get older, you do get pickier I suppose, more stable and much more realistic," he added.

"Marriage is still the way to go," continued Pastor Nic, who feels the divorce rate is over-glamorized and much lower than popular statistics might indicate.

And the women's liberation movement as a whole, many suburban male singles feel, has hardly dented the boy-girl relationship. Most of it, they agree, "is just talk."

"MEN ARE ALWAYS going to be attracted by the flighty blondes," laughed one male, though for keeps another young man listed his qualifications: "A woman with zest and a lot of spirit, a liberated woman who is cool and relaxed about it, someone who knows what's happening and is not at all old-maidish and most of all... someone who every once in awhile is not afraid to speak up."

"A woman who is secure and confident in herself doesn't scare me," said Mike, who admitted he was looking for a wife, "but I want someone who will make it easy for me, cater to my ego, even if the effort on her part is phony."

"A man's pride is his biggest asset and can also be his downfall. A woman who understands that is halfway home."

Rev. Christoff feels while most men desire "a partner rather than a maid," a marriage, to be successful, must have a give and take relationship of 51 to 49. Someone has to back down.

"WOMEN ARE GOING through a bewildering, confusing period of their life," said one man in his mid-thirties. "When they reach 25 they start thinking... what is it that I really want? A home and family? But that's not the thing to say today. They are more or less turn-coats if they don't go along with this lib thing."

"I don't think anything has changed relationships between men and women," added another young single. "Women's lib is mostly a conversation piece."

"A single as he becomes older begins to think about settling down though there is still more paranoia concerning parents' attitudes toward their unmarried children rather than a single's own ability to adapt as an unmarried person," said Pastor Nic.

The recognition of the single state in today's society puts less pressure on young men to find a mate though it is still not unusual for single men to experience discrimination in their jobs.

"PARTICULARLY IN business a wife is an asset, a sign of stability and responsibility," said Paul, 29. "She is expected to entertain for her husband and his associates even if she has a full-time career of her own."

A high school guidance counselor feels he wouldn't have landed his position if he hadn't been engaged at the time of the interview.

"They preferred a married man," he said though he now holds the same job after his marital plans were cancelled.

Dating patterns have changed somewhat. Girls are not hesitant to accept last minute dates. Fellows seldom find it necessary to call ahead anymore.

EVEN THE MOST attractive and desirable girls, if they are continually "dated up" but would love to go out "if you call me earlier next week," are dropped from the running. They are considered "too inconvenient." Just as women living too far out of the general area are "geographically undesirable."

"I don't mind the drive down to the city to see a girl as much as I do trying to find a spot to park," emphasized Bob. "But a different girl every night is pure fantasy. For one thing it is much too expensive," said Dave.

"When you first meet a new girl, you usually set up a nice show and dinner to impress her," said John, who added that a male single spends much more money carelessly than his married friend. "I'd rather date one or two different girls over a long period of time. It's much more comfortable and rewarding."

There are exceptions.
"I'D PREFER DATING a number of different girls and get out before any one of them gets serious," said a 35-year-old male who recently was divorced. "If by the third or fourth date they're coming on with this pipe and slippers routine, I'm running. I have no intention at this point of getting involved again."

But the general rule is "quality over quantity."
"The single environment is basically great, but if I found the right partner I suppose I'd settle down," said Van, 27.

"If you can really hack it with someone, that's the greatest."

GEORGE "BO" DEAN finishes up dinner. At International Village groups of singles take turns cooking meals for one another on occasion. It's friendlier, eating together and more fun, too.

Thanks to a pacemaker

His friend's still alive

by PAUL R. ALLERUP

Just about everybody has read about and knows that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of persons are being kept alive these days with the help of pacemakers — those remarkable little instruments inserted under the skin to regulate heartbeats.

With most of us, such wonders of science, when read about, bring an interested reaction but little else.

"Hey," you say to your wife, "you know what they're doing now? They've got this thing they call a pacemaker and..."

You accept the marvel and then tend to think no more about it.

Well, a friend of mine was fitted with a pacemaker and a few days ago I had lunch with him. He'd been hospitalized several weeks, but now was up and about again, bragging about his pacemaker.

"Feel it," he said shortly after we'd seated ourselves. He guided my fingers to a spot on his chest a few inches below his right shoulder. Under his shirt I felt an object which to my fingers seemed perhaps an inch or so wide.

THE IMPRESSION was it was about two inches long and perhaps a quarter of an inch thick. The dimensions are not offered as being precise. That's how the thing felt.

"Don't press," my friend said. "It hurts if you do."

In this case, my friend had suffered what his doctors described as a heart block. One day late last fall, his pulse dropped from 72 beats per minute — in the normal range — to 35. He became dizzy and weak. It was a Sunday and he could reach no doctor by telephone.

Wisely, he got himself a taxi and was driven to a hospital not too far distant that he knew had a good heart program.

He told the attendant about his terribly low pulse, and a doctor was quickly called. There was a swift examination and the doctor said, "We've got to get you a pacemaker, and fast."

My friend was about to start a new job that week. Couldn't the doctor give him something, he asked, to restore his pulse and keep him going at least long enough for him to launch himself in his new position?

"SIR," SAID the doctor, "if we don't get a pacemaker into you today, your chances of walking out of here alive are about one in a hundred."

My friend, weak as he was, and frightened, argued no more. And he got his pacemaker.

Today, he is walking about, working and in his own words "feeling just about normal." His pacemaker would last him about two years, he was told, then would have to be renewed.

"A new pacemaker is being perfected that'll operate five, perhaps 10 years," he was told at the hospital. "Maybe when you're ready for a renewal, you'll get one of those."

Meantime, my friend — he is not a young man; in fact, several years beyond normal retirement age — is back to his usual routine. The new exception is he has been told to be careful of over-exercising.

HE IS NOT TO take too many stairs; he is not to run. He is a lecturer by profession. He has been told not to spend more than two hours at any one time on the lecture platform "at least for the next few months."

But my pacemaker friend is full of wonder at how he has been restored.

"I was nearly dead, you know," he said.

I, too, am filled with wonder.

Meet the man responsible Pacemakers have saved tens of thousands from sudden and unpredictable death. Dr. Paul M. Zoll is the inventor.

The professor from Harvard Medical School described for laymen how a pacemaker works when he was named a 1973 Albert Lasker Clinical Medical Research Award.

"Prolonged direct electric stimulation of the heart involves wires placed on or in the heart and attached to small pulse generators," he said.

"This is so that reliable artificial rhythms may be aroused in the heart and maintained indefinitely.

"The use of cardiac pacemakers has prevented episodes of cardiac arrest..."

More than 60,000 have received pacemakers in America. An estimated 12,000 to 15,000 new ones are implanted annually.

Dr. Zoll also invented the closed chest cardiac defibrillator. It has helped save lives in cardiac arrest and in cases involving a fibrillating heart — one with a cockeyed rhythm.

Penney's lends the consumer an ear

It's frustrating to have a complaint and not know whom to call or write to... because if you don't reach the right person on the first try, chances are you and your complaint will be shuttled around endlessly — or just plain ignored.

But one national department store chain has now moved to solve this problem. Penney's corporate headquarters in New York has appointed Delores Jones to be its consumer ombudsman for all consumer problems involving all its stores.

Officially, her title is manager of customer relations — not a new office in the retail world, but carrying a somewhat new job description now.

The very articulate Miss Jones, who has been with Penney's for nine years and came to them with years of retailing experience already under her belt, will have full responsibility for handling consumer complaints. And it will be her sole, 24-hour concern, not a matter of dashing off a conciliatory letter now and then when time permits.

DESPITE HER solid background in both retailing and communications (she worked for the Philadelphia Bulletin at one time, and in public relations for a pharmaceutical firm), Miss Jones's primary qualification, she says, is "I am a consumer."

"I am compassionate — I have these things happen to me, too."

While obviously a firm believer in Penney's and especially enthusiastic about her new role, Miss Jones spoke forthrightly about weaknesses in the Penney system which she hopes to correct. She was in Chicago this week to visit Penney's at Woodfield and to discuss the ombudsman program.

"We have to rededicate ourselves to the customer and let them know it. For a long time people wanted things impersonal, they wanted self-service, so they could get in and out fast."

"NOW, THEY want personal attention," and, she said, that is exactly what she intends to give them. Her office will log every letter and phone call that comes in, and will contact the store manager involved, as well as communicating directly with the unhappy consumer.

"We don't use pre-printed letters," she added.

Noting that consumers often write directly "to the top" when they have a complaint, Miss Jones urged that Penney's customer contact their local store manager first with their complaint.

Then, if the problem is not resolved, they should write to her at Penney's, 1301 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019, to the attention of Customer Relations.

"BUT THE BUCK stops here," she emphasized. Even if the complaint concerns a product manufactured for Penney's by another company, "Penney's stands behind all our products."

And, if the local store manager proves recalcitrant in settling a problem, even though "it's not within my authority to reverse this decision — if we find he is concentrating too much on the cash register and not on the customer, I can go to his district manager," Miss Jones said.

Remedies for formula stain

Dear Dorothy: Please advise all mothers of new babies how to remove formula stains on baby clothes. They wear them once and they are ruined. Please save us some money.—P.B.

The surest way is to give a baby the formula when the infant is getting her/his bath. With the already stained garments, some mothers find that the enzyme-active products take care of them. In this method, it is important to thoroughly wash and rinse — as some babies seem allergic to the use of this material. With white things, there is always chlorine bleach (this, too, requires thorough rinsing). And then there's the mysterious one (it's never been explained to me why it works) and that is to wait for a nice sunny day and hang the laundered garments outdoors, sopping wet.

Dear Dorothy: Your comment about the tomatoes dissolving in chili rang a bell with me. My husband has always loved my chili, but he complained (for the first time) last month, insisting I'd gone too strong with the tomatoes.

What happened was that the store was out of the canned tomatoes I like so I bought a better brand — whole tomatoes. They just didn't dissolve. Got the cheaper brand quickly and tried again. Got warm compliments!—Priscilla Miller

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Is there anything I can use on a stainless steel range hood to clean it — and keep it clean?—Margaret S

I've been experimenting ever since the question was first raised. Every type of cleaner in the kitchen cabinet here takes off the grease and dirt, but the hood looks smudgy when polished with a dry cloth. The simplest method of all turned out to be wiping the hood with a damp cloth, then polishing with a dry cloth. As for keeping it clean, frequent wiping and polishing is the only remedy.

Early order gets the seeds

A recent Kiplinger letter — that's the financial soothsayer and pulsebeat of the business community — said that seed firms report heavy early season sales. We know this will be a boom year for gardening because consumers are anticipating real or imagined farm crop shortages. It also could mean that many of the choice seeds will be sold out early this year.

In mail ordering early, you take advantage of extra seeds, free seeds or discount savings from many of the mail order seedsmen.

If you're long on garden planning foresight, but short on cash, firms like George Park Seed Company, Greenwood, S.C. 29647; Farmer Seed Co., Fairbault, Minn.; Earl May Seed Co., Shenandoah, Iowa 51603; Stark Bros., Louisiana, Mo. 63383; and Spring Hill offer Master Charge.

CATALOG-BUYING is a good way to compare shop, too. In my observation, asparagus plants are selling for a low of 25 for $3.25 from Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis. 53956, to a high of 25 for $6.75 from Stark Bros. in the 1974 catalogs.

Two rhubarb roots sell for $1.95 from Jackson and Perkins, Medford, Ore. 97501; you can get three for $1.75 from Shumway Seedsmen, Rockford, Ill.; you'll pay $2.55 each from Stark Bros.

Comparing strawberries, you'll pay $5.25 for 25 plants if you buy from Stark Bros. down to $3.75 for 25 at Farmers Seed Co., Fairbault, Minn.

Many times you're betting bigger, more mature, quicker-crop plants when you pay the higher price (you get what you pay for), but the value depends on what you are looking for. Perhaps one gardener would rather buy a young seedling and wait two years for a crop if he can save a dollar; another gardener might be willing to pay more if he can have his vegetable this year.

THE IMPORTANT thing is to buy from a reputable merchant who tells you whether you are buying a one, two, or three-year-old plant so you can make an intelligent shopping choice.

Other important points to look for in shopping the mail order catalogs are the number of seeds in a package, use of the common or Latin name, use of a zone map or information to let you know whether or not a plant will grow in your section of the county, and an index. You'd be surprised how many catalogs do not have an index, or do not feature the plants alphabetically in separate flower and vegetable sections.

The better seed outfits package their seeds in hermetically sealed packets so the seeds don't dry out. Good color reproductions and helpful growing tips are

by Mary B. Good

trademarks of an excellent catalog.

Lastly, if a catalog makes wild claims such as "grows 20 feet a season with no care" or "produces 50 bushels of beans from a single plant," you can bet it is a "million-dollar advertising come-on" from which you should retreat.

Next week: The last in our series of spring previews, featuring wind power and other gadgets!

Flower Show School offers 3-day course

Flower Show School Course 5 will be presented by the Garden Club of Illinois next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Triton College, Faculty Lounge, College Center Building, 2000 Fifth Ave., River Grove.

State chairman Mrs. Dale E. Schafer-nak of Palatine is arranging the schedule of lessons. They include design of planting; growing and exhibiting forced bulbs, cacti, gladioli and apples; and artistic design.

The course will give credit for those taking the examinations, at a fee of $2.

Advance registration for the course is $11, one day $6. Mrs. Emil Pick of Mount Prospect, a member of the flower show school committee, can be called at 259-1277 for details.

No more pin pricks in marking hemlines

For seamstresses who'd rather go it alone in taking the length of a skirt hem rather than suffer pin pricks at the hands of a bungling hubby, there's a new skirt marker now available.

No clumsy stand to tip over at a flick of your skirt, the "Princess" marker clips to the edge of a door and stores in its own little pouch. Besides the clamp, there's a flexible tube, squeeze bulb and two vials of powder.

The marker is said to fire a clean, sharp line, and is so well constructed the manufacturer guarantees to replace, at no cost, any part you can manage to break.

From Praco, P.O. Box 555, Stevens Point, Wis. 54481, the Princess is $2.49.

The State of Illinois, Department of Transportation is planning to reconstruct the intersection of S.E.I. 58 (Golf Road) and Route 58 (Sutton Road) and also the E.J.E. Railroad structure over S.E.I. 58 (Golf Road).

The proposed intersection improvement will consist of reconstructing the Golf Road-Sutton Road interchange to a channelized at-grade intersection. Both facilities will be widened to provide two 12-foot lanes in each direction separated by a 16-foot median. Separate left turning lanes will be provided. This will include the demolition of the existing structure over Golf Road and also the construction of two (2) bridges over Poplar Creek.

The E.J.E. Railroad structure will be reconstructed to provide sufficient clearance for traffic along Golf Road beneath the structure. Maps, drawings, Negative Declaration (a report discussing the effects of the project on the environment) and pertinent information developed by the Illinois Department of Transportation may be viewed and copied at the office of the Department of Transportation, 300 North State Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Breakfast Memories

Old fashioned quick breads can put new life into tired breakfast menus. Today's recipes all begin with convenient pancake mix yet capture the wholesomeness and appeal of the breakfasts of yore.

Versatile pancake mix assumes many forms: from a variety of pancakes--foldover, roll-ups, stacks and a puff--to waffles and fritters. Also from the good old days come new, easy recipes for a spicy pumpkin bread and muffins flavored with honey and raisins.

PANCAKE PUFF ROYALE

Pancake Shell:
3 eggs
1/2 cup pancake mix
1/2 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Filling:
1/2 cup currant jelly, heated
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar

Heat oven to very hot (450 degrees). Beat eggs until foamy. Gradually add pancake mix alternately with milk, beating constantly with electric mixer or rotary beater until well blended.

Place butter in 9-inch oven-proof skillet; place in preheated oven (450 degrees). Beat egg mixture vigorously about 3 minutes. Pour into hot buttered skillet. Bake in preheated oven (450 degrees) about 15 minutes.

To remove shell from skillet, slide a spatula around edge; tilt skillet and gently slide shell onto serving plate. Pour warm jelly into center. Top with dollops of sour cream and sprinkle with brown sugar. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

NOTE: For variety, fill shell with 1 cup warm applesauce; top with dollops of sour cream and sprinkle with brown sugar.

CHEESEY BACON FRITTERS

1 cup complete pancake mix
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup finely grated sharp Cheddar cheese
3 bacon slices, cooked, drained and crumbled

Place complete pancake mix and water in bowl. Stir lightly until batter is fairly smooth. Quickly fold in cheese and bacon.

Drop batter by teaspoonfuls into hot deep fat (375 degrees). Fry 2 to 2 1/2 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

Serve with maple-blended syrup and sauteed apple rings. Makes about 16 fritters.

NOTE: Complete pancake mix must be used in this recipe.

PETER PUMPKIN'S LOAF

2 1/2 cups pancake mix
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 1/2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
1 cup canned pumpkin
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup melted or liquid shortening
2 eggs

Combine pancake mix, brown sugar, oats and pumpkin pie spice in large bowl. Combine pumpkin, milk, shortening and eggs; add to dry ingredients. Stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter into greased and floured 9 x 5-inch loaf pan.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 55 to 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool thoroughly. Wrap cooled bread and store 1 day before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

HONEY RAISIN MUFFINS

Honey Cream Cheese:
Two 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
3 tablespoons honey

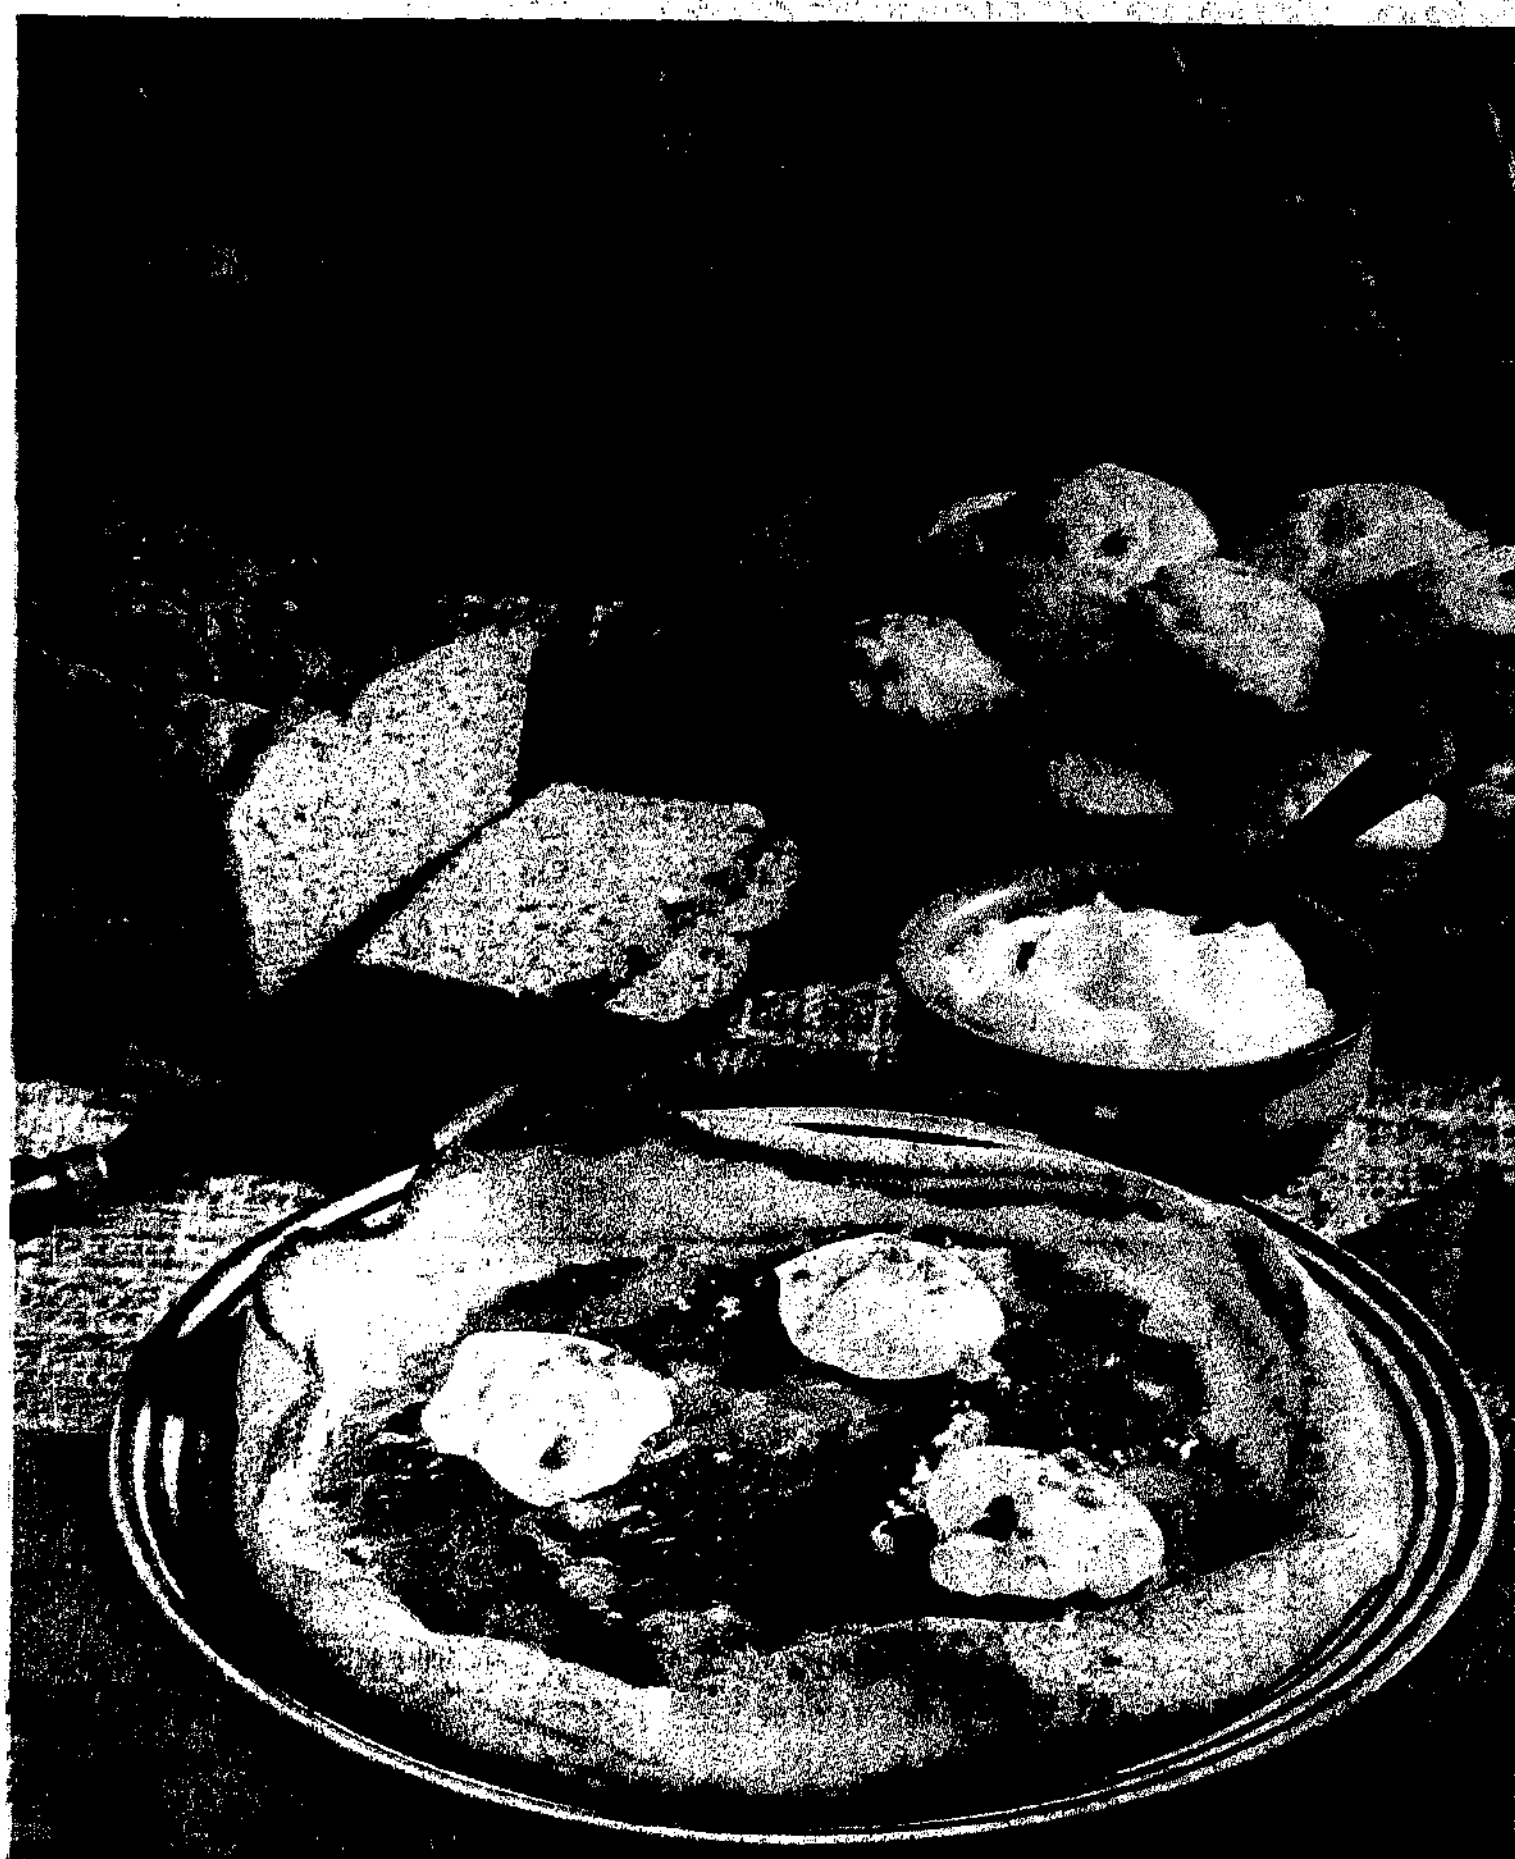

Muffins:
2 3/4 cups complete pancake mix
1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
1 cup water
1/2 cup honey
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla

For honey cream cheese, beat together cream cheese and honey until light and fluffy. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use.

For muffins, place complete pancake mix and raisins in bowl. Add water, honey and vanilla. Stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill greased muffin cups 3/4 full. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) about 15 minutes. Serve warm with honey cream cheese. Makes 12 muffins.

For cinnamon muffins, omit vanilla and add 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon to pancake mix and raisins.

NOTE: Complete pancake mix must be used in this recipe.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

BLUEBERRY STACK CAKES

Orange Butter:
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup confectioners sugar
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel

Pancakes:
2 cups complete pancake mix
1 1/2 cups water
1/2 cup fresh or frozen blueberries, thawed and well drained

For orange butter, beat together butter, sugar, orange juice and orange peel until light and fluffy. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use.

For pancakes, place mix and water in bowl. Stir lightly until batter is fairly smooth. Pour batter onto hot lightly greased griddle. Sprinkle each pancake with blueberries. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edges look cooked. Turn only once.

To serve, stack 2 or 3 pancakes on each plate. Top with orange butter. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Complete pancake mix must be used in this recipe.

PEANUT BUTTER BANANA WAFFLES

1 cup pancake mix
1 cup milk
1 egg
3 tablespoons melted or liquid shortening
1/2 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter
2 bananas, sliced

For waffles, place mix, milk, egg and shortening in bowl. Beat with rotary beater until batter is fairly smooth. Bake in hot waffle iron until steaming stops.

To serve, spread hot waffles with peanut butter and top with banana slices. Serve with maple-blended syrup. Makes 1 serving.

Mrs. Tom Kilpatrick

She takes advantage of beef sales

by LOIS BEILER

When round steak is on sale, Mrs. Tom Kilpatrick of Buffalo Grove buys it in quantity. She has the fat trimmed and the meat ground only once, preferring the coarser texture. At home she cooks it immediately, making several tasty dishes for the freezer.

If the meat is frozen then defrosted and cooked, it loses too much juice, according to Liz Kilpatrick. If cooked fresh, the meat retains its juice making a tastier dish.

Because her husband and children, Kevin, 15, Kim, 12 and Kerry, 7, like casseroles made with ground beef, Liz used her ingenuity to devise some tasty recipes. One, a Hamburger Pizza Pie, has all the flavor of a pizza but is minus the crust.

A meat mixture seasoned with oregano, onion, Romano cheese and Italian seasoned bread crumbs is patted into pie plates and topped with tomato sauce and mozzarella cheese. As the meat bakes it becomes firm and can easily be cut into wedges, yet there is enough moisture to keep the meat tender and spoon over the servings. The zesty pizza flavor makes this dish popular with children and adults. As accompaniments Liz suggests French fries or macaroni and cheese and a tossed salad.

The price of green peppers discouraged Liz from making stuffed peppers and prompted her to develop a method for Green Pepper Meat Balls.

ONLY ONE PEPPER is needed for this recipe. Liz liquifies it in a blender with onion and an egg. This is added to a ground meat mixture with bread crumbs, rice and seasonings. The mixture is formed into balls and baked in tomato sauce.

This dish is far more economical than stuffed peppers yet has the same appealing flavor, according to Liz. She recommends serving it over buttered rice or noodles, with a green salad and rolls as accompaniments.

Another recipe that Liz adapted to suit her taste originally called for bean sprouts and water chestnuts, but she substituted French-cut green beans. They are simmered with ground meat, onion and tomato soup and served over rice.

"This is a quick and easy recipe that I can count on whenever I don't know what to make for dinner," Liz said.

All of these recipes freeze well, so Liz always has them on hand for out of town guests.

HAMBURGER PIZZA PIE

2 pounds ground round steak
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup Italian seasoned bread crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
1 tablespoon Romano cheese
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 15-ounce can Hunt's Tomato Sauce Special
2 cups grated Mozzarella cheese
Thinly-sliced pepperoni

HAMBURGER PIZZA PIE has all the flavor of homemade pizza without the crust. Mrs. Tom Kilpatrick created this economical main dish which she bakes in a pie pan and often serves with macaroni and cheese.

(optional)

Lightly toss meat with eggs, bread crumbs, onion, Romano cheese and seasonings. Divide in half and press against sides and bottom of two 9-inch pie plates. Spread tomato sauce over meat and sprinkle cheese on top. Add pepperoni slices, if desired. Dust lightly with additional oregano. One pie may be baked and the other frozen, or bake both if you wish. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Place a cookie sheet underneath to catch the drippings. Cut in wedges to serve. Each pie makes 6 servings.

BLENDER GREEN PEPPER MEAT BALLS

1 whole green pepper
1 small onion
1 egg
1 1/2 pounds ground round steak
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
1/2 cup minute rice
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 15-ounce can Hunt's Tomato Sauce Special
1/2 cup water

Put green pepper, onion and egg into a blender and blend until liquified. Mix into meat with the bread crumbs, rice and seasonings. Form into balls two inches in diameter and place in a single layer in a shallow pan. Pour tomato sauce and water over meat and sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper.

Cover with Reveal Wrap or foil and bake for one hour at 350 degrees. Serve with buttered rice or buttered noodles. Serves 6.

FRENCH BEAN ORIENTAL

1 pound ground beef
1 small onion, chopped
1 can (15 ounces) French-cut green beans, drained, saving 1/4 cup bean juice
1 can tomato soup
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Brown meat with onion. Mix in green beans and tomato sauce. Add bean juice during cooking if mixture gets too thick. Add soy sauce and pepper and simmer for 30 minutes. Serve over cooked rice. Serves 5 to 6.

Easy hot muffins star at breakfast

Hot bread adds a touch of luxury to any breakfast. And peanut butter muffins are high on the taste scale for hot breads.

These muffins should please every member of the family, and they are a great way to start the day. The following recipe makes 12 muffins.

PEANUT BUTTER MUFFINS

1 cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup oil or melted fat
2 cups flour, unsifted

1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup peanut butter

After preheating oven to 400 degrees (hot) and greasing muffin tin, blend milk into egg and add fat. Mix dry ingredients thoroughly; mix in peanut butter only until mixture is crumbly. Add liquid and mix slightly, leaving batter lumpy. Half fill muffin tin with batter and bake 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Serve hot.

Breakfast of little import for many American families

Just as life styles change, so do eating habits. In many American families, meals have become more convenient than nutritious. But a good breakfast is still necessary to maintain mental and physical alertness throughout the morning, according to most nutrition experts.

Scientific research at the University of Iowa, Iowa City, has proved that people who eat a nutritionally adequate breakfast work more efficiently and are less likely to become tired, nervous and fatigued toward the end of the morning.

Another study reported in "A Source Book on Food Practices" published by the National Dairy Council provides further evidence that breakfast is of little significance in many households.

The most basic fact about American breakfasts today, they conclude, is that a substantial weekday morning meal, with all the family members eating together, is not important to most families in comparison with other desires and demands that occurs at the same time.

OTHER OBSERVATIONS from the nationwide study were:

Three-fourths of all American families do not eat breakfast together. One-third of all housewives and a quarter of all husbands eat alone. Ten per cent of the men do not eat breakfast at all. In one out of four households, one child eats alone without parental supervision. Six per cent of the children go to school without breakfast.

The average person spends less than 20 minutes at the breakfast table.

Breakfast is a do-it-yourself project. In one out of six families the housewife is just getting up when the first person begins breakfast.

Less than 20 per cent of all family members eat a breakfast that the housewife considers nutritionally complete; for children the figure is 60 per cent.

Despite these facts, most housewives have an ideal view of breakfast as a leisurely, social, nutritional meal. When there is less pressure on weekends, 40 per cent serve the kind of breakfast they think their families should have.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

PERHAPS THE importance of the study results lies in the fact that Americans should be more conscious of breakfast as an essential source of nutrients. Habits are hard to break, but the morning meal need not be a time-consuming chore. In general, nutritionists recommend a "good" breakfast for its contribution in food, such as the ascorbic acid-rich fruits that the family is not apt to eat regularly otherwise during the day.

Some investigators suggest that perhaps nutritionists need to consider selling foods such as fruits and vegetables as status symbols rather than sources of nutrients. A bowl of fresh fruit regularly available in the home might work a kind of magic in the morning hours, especially, with milk and cheese in the refrigerator.

Breakfast omelet has cereal bonus

To satisfy a variety of tastes, serve tasty Cottage Cheese Omelet made with cereal. The cereal adds a crunchy nut-like flavor and an unexpected but welcome texture.

COTTAGE CHEESE OMELET

1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
Dash of pepper
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
Dash of pepper
1/2 cup nonfat milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/3 cup skim milk cottage cheese

2/3 cup Grape-Nuts cereal
Heat tomatoes in a saucepan. Break up with fork. Season with 1/2 teaspoon onion salt and dash of pepper. Cover and keep hot while omelet is cooking.

Combine eggs, 1/2 teaspoon onion salt, dash of pepper, and nonfat milk; mix well. Melt butter in a skillet. Add egg mixture and cook over low heat. As omelet cooks, loosen edges gently with a spatula so that uncooked egg runs to the bottom. When mixture is almost set, spoon cottage cheese over top. Sprinkle with cereal. Loosen omelet around the sides and crease across the center with a spatula. Fold gently in half and slide onto a warm platter. Top with hot tomato mixture. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings — about 200 calories per serving.

Consumer hints

Remember: cooked foods must be refrigerated at 45 degrees or lower in clean, covered containers. Use these foods within 2 or 3 days, preferably within 24 hours, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Word to the wise cook: If an egg is cooked too long or the cooking temperature is too high, the protein shrinks and makes the white tough and the yolk mealy.

Surface skin is formed when milk is heated in an uncovered pan. It is due to drying out of fat, minerals and protein on the surface. The skin holds steam in, causing the milk to foam and boil over. You can prevent the skin formation by using a lid — or stirring the milk, suggests the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Welsh Pancakes

A tasty orange pour-on for late evening pancakes

When you choose pancakes for a late evening meal, it's a simple matter to give them a bright entertaining outlook. Just add an extra ingredient or two to the batter, and serve them with a special sauce. For instance, make Welsh Pancakes.

Pancake mix affords convenience, and the added touches are orange rind and dried currants or raisins. The delicious great pour-on complement is Orange Sauce, which is simply pancake syrup enriched with butter and a flavor echo from more orange rind.

These pancakes are not the dainty type; they're hearty ones, designed to be served in a single dramatic stack for later cutting into serving-size wedges. To complete the menu, serve them with sausages or Canadian bacon and a fruit compote, perhaps using the fresh orange sections remaining after you've prepared the grated rind for the batter and the sauce recipes.

WELSH PANCAKES

¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon melted shortening

1 egg, well beaten
1 cup pancake mix
1/3 cup dried currants or raisins
2 tablespoons sugar

Orange Sauce
Add milk, orange rind and shortening to the egg. Mix together pancake mix, currants and sugar; add egg mixture and beat until smooth. Bake on hot lightly greased griddle, using ½ cup batter for each pancake and turning to brown both sides. Stack pancakes on warm serving plate, spooning 2 tablespoons hot orange sauce over each. Cut in wedges. Serve warm with remaining sauce. Makes 5 large pancakes or 4 to 6 servings.

ORANGE SAUCE

1 cup pancake and waffle syrup
1/3 cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon grated orange rind

How to beat the high cost of food

SHOPPING

One way to cut down on the impulse buying of foods including snack foods which nibble into your total food budget in the supermarket is to eat before you shop. Also a shopping list based on meals planned for two or three days or a full week and include alternates to buy — such as canned fruits or vegetables, fresh vegetables, meats — if they are true money-saving specials. The real basic questions to ask when shopping in these times of higher food prices are: do you need it, will you or your family eat it and is the food item worth the price?

Americans wising up, cutting down

by JEANNE LESEN

Many Americans are wising up on cutting down. They're meeting the challenge of high food prices with new attitudes and practices in food buying and preparation. This is according to a magazine study.

Nine out of 10 told the magazine they're trying to curb impulse buying. Ninety-three per cent agreed that fancy packaging substantially increases the cost of a product.

These trends were spotted by Better Homes and Gardens magazine in tabulating the first 1,000 responses to a questionnaire printed in a recent issue. Readers were asked to answer 42 questions about food shopping and preparation.

One reader said she objects to fancy packaging not just for the initial cost but also for the extra expense involved in its disposal as garbage. She wants customers to take their own permanent carriers to market.

Sixty-seven per cent of the readers agreed there was no nutritional difference between store brands and nationally advertised ones, and 72 per cent said they had been buying more store brands because they were cheaper.

Forty-seven per cent said they spend more time planning meals. One reader said long-range planning is hard — due to shortages and the instability of prices.

THE STUDY showed recipe usage and cooking from scratch are on the increase. But one reader said she had given up making homemade bread. Her family liked it too much.

Seven out of 10 said they were planning a vegetable garden for this year. Two out of three families do some home-canning or freezing. One reader said her family does very little canning. Jars, lids and preservatives cost too much.

Nearly half said they were eating more casseroles and one-dish meals than before. But 72 per cent turned thumbs down on packaged dinners to which are added meat, fish or poultry.

Ninety per cent disagreed with the premise that frozen dinners are cheaper than meals prepared from scratch. Two qualified their answers with these comments:

"Some are, some aren't. Depends on how many are eating at home," wrote one.

"Two TV dinners are cheaper than cooking — but not seven," wrote another.

SIXTY-SIX per cent said they were skimping on meat at family meals. Forty-four per cent said they were serving it fewer times per week. Six out of ten said they encouraged the use of nuts, cheese, or peanut butter at both mealtime and snacks. Sixty-eight per cent cited certain vegetables as inexpensive alternates to meat as a source of protein. The only vegetable they mentioned specifically was beans.

One out of four said they had tried and liked synthetic meat products and only one out of three expressed willingness to pay more for beef than other meats.

More shoppers are looking for nutritional information on labels and packages. Sixty-eight per cent said they found advertising information helpful. But two out of three said they don't believe food manufacturers are conscientious about giving full value for their money.

The magazine said seven out of ten of the respondents are from households whose head is between 25 and 49 years old and 43 per cent of the households have incomes of $15,000 a year or more. It added that the preliminary response is not projectable to the total U.S. population.

All about nutrition

The B vitamins include B-1 thiamine, B-2 riboflavin, B-6, B-12, folic acid, niacin, pantothenic acid and biotin. As a group, B vitamins aid in good functioning of the nervous and digestive systems and also help the body release energy from food. Sources of B vitamins in general are meats especially organ meats, whole grain or enriched breads and cereals, beans, peas and nuts.

To learn about sources and functions of vitamins and minerals, readers may send 75 cents to Consumer Product Information, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Make check or money order payable to the U.S. Superintendent of Documents. Indicate that 30 cents is for the U.S. Agriculture Department's booklet titled Nutritive Value of Foods. The remaining 45 cents is for the Agriculture Department's booklet titled "Family Fare."

For unexpected guests

Meatballs in French dish

No need to panic when you find that company is coming for dinner, not next week, but tonight! Here are two new recipes, guaranteed to impress your guests without depressing either you or your food budget.

A quick and easy twist provides a classic French meal of Meatballs Bourguignonne, in a delicious yet simple to prepare Burgundy sauce. As in most recipes with a French flair, the sauce makes the meal and you can make the sauce using onion gravy mix, substituting Burgundy wine for part of the water.

Golden Noodles is the perfect complement to Meatballs Bourguignonne. Again, simplicity is the key — ordinary egg noodles are gilded with an easy to prepare sauce of mustard and butter.

Round out your menu with a tossed green salad, breadsticks, chocolate chifon pie, Burgundy wine with dinner and coffee with dessert.

MEATBALLS BOURGUIGNONNE

2 eggs
1 teaspoon garlic salt
¾ cup Burgundy wine or tomato juice
1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 to 2 tablespoons fat
1 envelope (1-oz.) onion gravy mix
½ cup water
1 teaspoon herb seasoning
Combine eggs, garlic salt, and ¼ cup of the burgundy. Add ground beef and bread crumbs; mix lightly. Shape into small meatballs using a rounded teaspoonful for each. Brown in fat in large skillet or chafing dish; pour off excess fat. Combine contents of gravy mix envelope, water, ½ cup burgundy and herb seasoning; pour over meatballs. Simmer uncovered for 15 minutes. Serve with Golden Noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Meatballs Bourguignonne with Golden noodles.

GOLDEN NOODLES

8 ounces egg noodles
3 tablespoons butter
1 can (2 or 3-oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
Parsley flakes
Cook noodles until tender as directed on package; drain. Melt butter. Add mushrooms; cook 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in mustard and drained noodles; toss lightly until noodles are well coated. Sprinkle with parsley flakes. Makes 6 servings.

Fresh berries prompt creation of new omelet

Home grown strawberries, big and beautiful, were abundant on a recent visit to Florida which led to creation of the Flynn strawberry omelet as I sought something quite different to serve at a brunch.

Omelets, of course, are extremely versatile in that they are as acceptable for breakfast or brunch as they are for lunch or dinner. For the inexperienced chef, stay with small omelets made with two to four eggs for ease in handling.

I made individual two-egg omelets with the strawberries. First, for each omelet slice four to six strawberries and sprinkle with brown sugar. Break two eggs into a bowl and whip, adding salt and pepper, about a teaspoon of half and half and a dash of cold water.

Using a small seven or nine-inch skillet, heat a tablespoon of butter, turning skillet so that bottom and sides are coated. When skillet is hot (but not smoking) add egg mixture and reduce heat slightly.

As the eggs begin to cook use a spatula or wooden spoon (the latter is easier on Teflon cooking ware) and lift edges allowing uncooked egg to run under. When omelet begins to set and brown underneath, lay the inner slices of the strawberries on one half and fold over. Cook about one minute then turn, so that strawberries are heated through. Slide onto a serving dish and decorate top with outer slices of strawberries, making a pleasing and colorful dish for the table. Serves one.

ON A TRIP TO Matlacha Oyster

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

House, described last week, one member of the group elected an unusual three-egg lobster-omelet. You also can follow a similar method for a tuna, shrimp, or crabmeat omelet.

In a saucepan melt one teaspoon butter, add one small onion diced and cook for five minutes over low heat. Add one stalk celery diced, a pinch of sugar, two tablespoons chicken stock, one teaspoon soy sauce and one-third cup cooked lobster meat, cut small.

Turn this mixture into a heated skillet, buttered as indicated above. Add three lightly beaten eggs. Spread mixture evenly, then cook until set. Turn and fold. Serve on a heated dish.

This makes a man-sized omelet and enough for two lesser appetites.

Do you have a favorite omelet recipe, or a questions about food?

Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Promising yield of winter cabbage

Favorable growing weather over several weeks has resulted in heavy yields of excellent quality winter cabbage from Florida and the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Light supplies are originating in Arizona and the Imperial Valley of California. Storage cabbage is available from upstate New York.

Cabbage salads lend themselves to numerous possibilities for variety. Shredded or chopped cabbage teams well with other vegetables to give winter menus a refreshingly crisp boost. Choose from shredded carrots, grated onion, cut spinach, diced celery, chopped green pepper, or sliced cucumbers.

Fruits and nuts give a happy look and flavor to raw cabbage salads, too. Add diced apples (with the skins left on and mixed with citrus juice to prevent darkening) to the shredded cabbage. Or try pineapple chunks, fresh grapes, nut-meats, orange or grapefruit segments. Dried fruits such as raisins or diced prunes also go well with cabbage.

Of course, a crisp wedge of raw cabbage or even a mound of shredded cabbage, is superb served with any one of the zesty bottled salad dressings available, or your favorite homemade dressing.

Cabbage cooked in milk is a tasty dish that's easy to prepare. Add 1 quart shredded cabbage (about 1 pound) to one and one-half cups milk in a saucepan and simmer for two minutes. In a small pan melt two tablespoons fat, mix in two tablespoons flour, then add a little of the hot milk, blending to make a smooth paste. Stir into cabbage and cook for three to four minutes until thickened, stirring constantly. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Yields six servings, a half cup each, about 85 calories each.

Agreement must be reached with Wheeling

Fire protection referendum could be five months off

A referendum to put all of Buffalo Grove under one fire department could be five months away, Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said yesterday. Officials earlier predicted the referendum would be this month.

The village board more than two months ago voted to support a referendum that, if passed, would put the entire village in the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

The move would eliminate the present situation in which the village is covered by three fire districts.

However, before the referendum, the village and the Wheeling district must work out an agreement pertaining to the transfer of equipment, firemen's salaries, personnel policies and fringe benefits once the village takes over control and forms a municipal fire department.

Village officials have said the transfer to the Wheeling district would be only a temporary move until the village can afford its own department. It is predicted a municipal department is at least two years away.

ARMSTRONG SAID he plans to meet with Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter to work out an agreement. A contract already was considered, but village and fire officials could not reach agreement. Armstrong was directed to meet with Winter in an attempt to work out a compromise.

The reason for disagreement is because the village wants to assure it does not meet resistance from the Wheeling district when it decides to form a municipal department. The fire district, on the other hand, does not want to sign over all its equipment to the village when there is no guarantee a municipal department will be formed.

Winter said his department is willing to take in all of the village's area, but will only agree to do so if the village comes up with an agreement that is acceptable to the department. "We are willing to compromise things we feel we can afford to, but we're not going to give up everything," he said.

"If we can absorb Lake County and still maintain the same level of service, that's all right. But if it's going to hurt our service, we're not interested," he added.

ARMSTRONG SAID it will probably be at least four or five weeks before the agreement is reworked and can be brought before the village board. By the time the board reviews it and the referendum is advertised for, it probably will be at least August, he said.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the referendum should be held by the second Tuesday in September so the fire districts involved can adjust tax levies.

In order for the referendum to pass, a majority of those voting in the affected area must approve it. Most of the Lake County section of the village is now in the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District, while a small part is in the Vernon Township Rural Fire Protection District.

The Long Grove district is opposed to losing part of its area to the Wheeling district.

Village hopes for annex of Lake County project

by JOE FRANZ

Village President Gary Armstrong said yesterday he would like to see the Bugner Farm townhouse development planned to Lake County ultimately become a part of Buffalo Grove, but does not think annexation is possible at the present time.

The Chesterfield Development Corp. plans to build the 464-unit project under county zoning ordinances. Fred Hillman, executive vice president of Chesterfield recently told The Herald the farm does not adjoin the village and therefore cannot be legally annexed.

Armstrong said while that is the case at the present time, the situation could change. The Bugner Farm eventually will be contiguous with the village, he said, after property between it and the village is developed and annexed to Buffalo Grove.

Hillman said his firm is anxious to develop the property now and does not feel it can wait until it becomes contiguous with Buffalo Grove. It could be a considerable time, he said, before Chesterfield's property adjoins the village.

"There is a need for this type of housing (townhouses) in that specific area at the present time," Hillman said. "We are there to supply that need and want to move as fast as possible."

ARMSTRONG SAID even though the village apparently cannot annex the 45-acre farm at the present time, he feels the village probably would want to annex it at a later date, possibly after it is developed. "It is in the village's sphere of influence. It has been proposed that the property eventually be annexed to the village," he said.

While the village would rather annex the property before it is developed, Armstrong said it might not have a choice in this case. If the property is developed before it becomes part of Buffalo Grove, he said the village probably will attempt to exercise its influence to assure the project complies with its master plan for that area.

He said he plans to attend a meeting next month of the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals at which time the development will be considered. Since the area could become part of the village, he said he would like to be assured that all village ordinances and standards are met.

THIS IS particularly important in the area of school and park donations, according to Armstrong and Village Mgr. Daniel Larson. The village has a resolution that asks developers to make cash or land donations to the school and park districts, while the county has no such law.

Michael DiVincenzo, superintendent of Aptakisic-Tripp School Dist. 102, has met with Chesterfield, but the donation question has not been resolved.

Before Chesterfield can start building, it must get approval from the county zoning board and the Lake County Board of Commissioners.

ONE POSSIBLE way the farm could become contiguous with the village is through the proposed sanitary landfill nearby. However, with the Soo Line Railroad's refusal to allow the village to annex its right-of-way, it may be difficult to make the landfill contiguous.

The development, which will be called Indian Head, is on Weiland Road, south of Busch Road. Hillman said he hopes construction can begin by spring, 1975.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report

The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebieniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebieniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

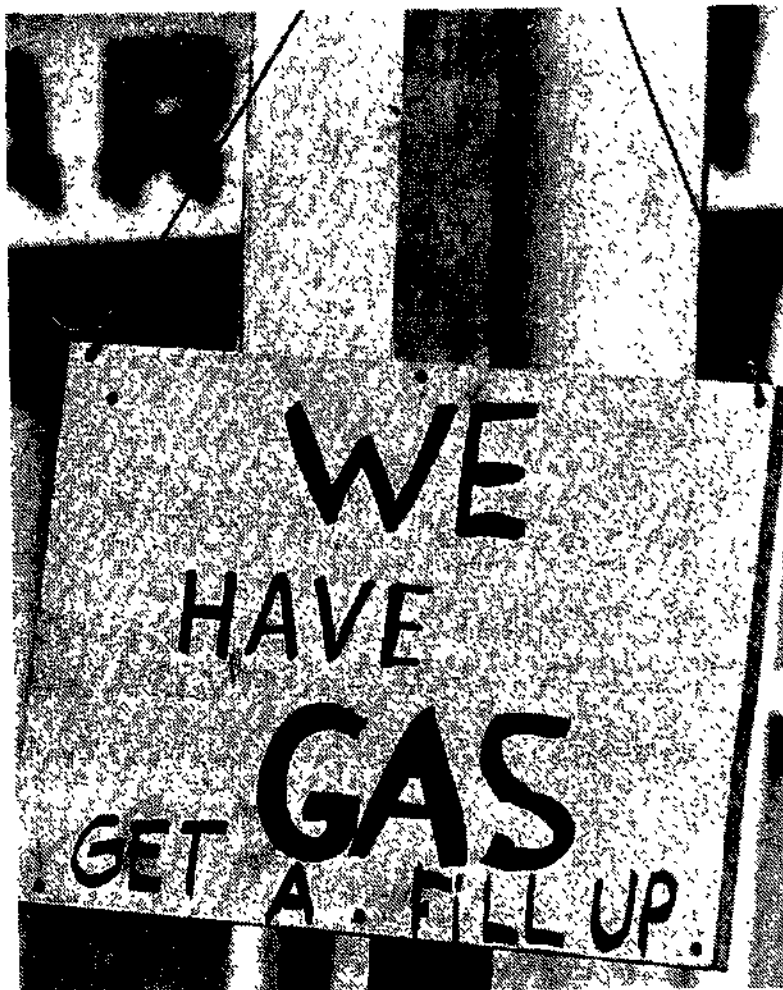

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits.

"It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

Elementary school board campaigns begin

Candidates for school boards in local elementary school districts began filing petitions yesterday, signaling the beginning of the campaign leading to the April 13 election.

In Dist. 21, which serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights incumbent school board members Jeremiah Crise and Jack Lane were the only ones to return their petitions on the first day of filing.

Crise filed his petitions first and therefore his name will appear first on the ballot.

The only other announced candidate in the Dist. 21 race, Carol Karzen of Buffalo Grove, did not submit petitions yesterday. Mrs. Karzen is the sole candidate endorsed by the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

Incumbent Dist. 26 school board members Jim Duncan and Clarke Walser of Buffalo Grove, along with newcomer Dr. David Epstein, also of Buffalo Grove, submitted petitions to participate in the race in that district.

DIST. 26 serves the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove and Long Grove.

Duncan filed his petitions first and will seek to retain his three-year seat on the board. Epstein is running for an available three-year seat. The term of Frank Clayton of Buffalo Grove also expires this year.

Walser is hoping to fill the two-year unexpired term of former Buffalo Grove school board member Jack Landau, who resigned last fall.

Clayton picked up petitions several weeks ago, but did not file them yesterday. He could not be reached for comment on whether he intends to seek reelection.

Anyone wanting to run for either the Dist. 21 or 26 school board may still obtain petitions which must be filed before March 22.

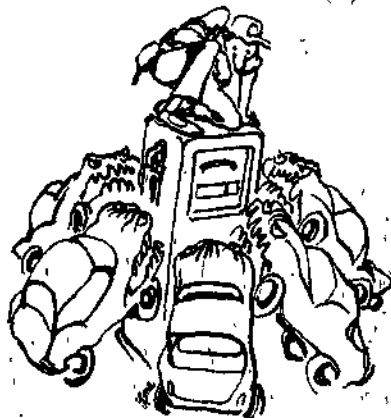

Dist. 21 petitions of candidacy may be obtained in the administration office, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Petitions of candidacy to participate in the Dist. 26 school board election are available in the administration office at Klidder School in Long Grove.

Sunday last day to sign for baseball

This weekend will be the last chance for boys between 7 and 16 years old to register for Buffalo Grove's summer baseball program.

The program is sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Recreation Assn. Last weekend 480 boys registered for the program, but there are still openings in all leagues.

Boys can register for the program Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon and Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd. Registration will be conducted by age groups so more boys can be accommodated.

The specific times are:

• Farm League (7-8 year-olds) Saturday from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. and Sunday 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m.

• Minor League (9-10 year-olds) Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Sunday 2:15 p.m. to 3 p.m.

• Major League (11-12 year-olds) Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Sunday from 2:15 p.m. to 3 p.m.

• Pony League (13-14 year-olds) Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to noon and Sunday from 3 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

• Colt League (15-16 year-olds) Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to noon and Sunday from 3 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The league in which each boy is placed will be determined by his age as of July 31, 1974. Proof of age will be required of all prospective players registering in the Farm League and of all boys who have never participated in the program.

Boys participating in the Pony and Colt leagues will be charged a slightly higher fee because regulation umpires will be used.

versal Robots," a drama set in the 21st Century. The play will be Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the school.

Village tries out fuel-stretcher

Buffalo Grove has been experimenting with a device that can reduce air pollution and increase gasoline mileage on cars.

The device, called a fuel atomizer, fits over the carburetor of the auto and can increase mileage by varying amounts depending on the type of car and condition.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the village put a fuel atomizer on one of its police cars about a month ago and mileage has increased from 7.5 to 8.4 miles per gallon, a 12 per cent increase.

BESIDES INCREASING mileage, he said it also reduces the amount of hydrocarbons released into the air. According to Larson, the fuel atomizer costs about $25 and is available in most auto parts stores.

The village will experiment further, Larson said, and if it is satisfied with the results it probably will install fuel atomizers on all village cars. The village fleet currently has about 20 autos.

One drawback of the device, Larson said, is that it cannot be used on foreign, compact or subcompact cars. It can be used only on full-size or intermediate models.

Food stamps reinstated at opportunity center

The food stamp program at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been reopened, and officials are looking for a formal agreement that would give them a say in the future of the program.

Food stamp distribution at the center ended abruptly last month when state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent out to the center and six other suburban distribution outlets because of a manpower shortage.

A formal agreement would give the center a voice in the future of the program, Newton said. "The program would not be withdrawn until we have had a say and have seen what can be worked out," he said yesterday.

Opportunity Center Director Bruce Newton said he will be meeting with state officials early next week to work out the formal agreement and discuss the possibility of setting up an outpost in this area for people who are applying for public aid for the first time and people who are having problems with their case-workers.

PRESENTLY THOSE people have to go downtown to a Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first come-first-serve basis.

Food stamp counselors in the past went out to the center twice a week and served around 40 people each week. They returned Tuesday for the first time since last month. Officials at NOC are setting up appointments for future interviews.

Last month, the center had about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps. Many families now in the program also need appointments because they must be re-certified every two to six months.

Affected along with Rolling Meadows Center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, the Argo Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights. All except Argo Summit have been reinstated, Newton said.

Despite warning, hospitals will go with construction

Financial trouble for Northwest suburban hospitals and the warning that a new hospital facility now planned "could get hurt badly," were predicted yesterday by Ben Squires, executive director-Commission of Illinois.

He said the board of directors of hospitals, planned in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, and Wheeling should seriously consider a decision not to build.

Available spokesmen from the hospitals said, however, they plan to proceed toward construction of their facilities.

SQUIRE'S WARNING is based on a Health Facilities and Service plan the state's Comprehensive Health Planning Agency is finalizing so that it may join with the U. S. Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) in controlling health care costs in Illinois.

The plan is based on a formula showing 1,625 hospital beds now available in northwest Cook County will serve the area's needs until 1979.

The formula states that additional facilities for under 200 hospital beds should be built as additions to the existing hospitals — Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers

Medical Center, Elk Grove; Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge; and Resurrection Hospital, Chicago.

Contrary to the state's formula, Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital plans a 180-bed branch facility in Schaumburg at Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard. Amerivan Mediacorp Inc. plans a 312-bed proprietary hospital at Higgins and Barrington roads, Hoffman Estates; and Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital in Chicago is seeking land for a 223-bed facility in Wheeling.

STATE HEALTH authorities predict "if they all go ahead they will up the cost of patient care without proper compensation," Squire said.

There is nothing the state can do, under current law, to stop construction of the hospitals if they get necessary permits before May or June, said Squire. By then the statewide health plan, subject to public hearings starting next month, should be approved. HEW regulations will be applicable under federal law and the state's formula for allowing new hospital construction will have some teeth, he added.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital hopes to have its permits by April, according to Norman Davis, consultant to the hospital. He expects to have a difficult time getting approval if Franklin Boulevard's plans are not ready before then.

The warnings from the state of financial dangers "don't concern me particularly," he added.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator for St. Luke's in Schaumburg, said his institution is committed to the community to build its facility. RSPL already has all necessary permits.

Fence will end 'short-cut' through yards to school

Residents living on Twisted Oak Lane and Aspen Drive in Buffalo Grove have agreed to put up a fence to prevent students walking to Twin Groves School from cutting through their yards.

Several weeks ago a group of residents living on those two streets complained to the village and School Dist. 96 about the problem. The students go through the yards because it shortens the distance to the school.

About a year ago, the village was considering having a sidewalk constructed from Twisted Oak to Aspen Court. The sidewalk would have eliminated the need for students to cut through yards on the way to school.

The village has an easement for the sidewalk, but decided not to construct it because of opposition from homeowners. The homeowners said they were unaware of the easement when they purchased their homes and said the sidewalk infringes on their privacy and creates a hardship.

AS AN ALTERNATIVE, the village board decided to construct a sidewalk between two homes on Twisted Oak Lane which would lead to another sidewalk which would be constructed on Arlington Heights Road. However, the village has been unable to obtain an easement from one of the homeowners on Twisted Oak Lane, thus no sidewalk has been put in.

Monday night, the village board will consider the homeowners request for the fence. At that time the board also will consider whether it wants to put the sidewalk where it was originally planned.

Under the homeowner's proposal, the fence would be constructed between Twisted Oak Lane and Aspen Drive. The 13 homeowners affected have agreed to pay the $1,105 for materials and have asked the village to install the fence.

In the meantime, Dist. 96 has asked parents to prevent their children from cutting through the yards on the way to school.

IN ADDITION, Fagan questioned the fact that the campaign finances of the Total Progress Party (TOP) have still not been released, despite the fact that their disclosure was promised immediately after last April's election.

I. V. O'Reilly, 693 N. Wayne Pl., then questioned the village's requirement that a building permit be purchased for the replacement of shingles. The trustees explained that the permit was designed to protect the homeowner by providing a building inspector to review the work.

Several residents praised the trustees for the accountability sessions. "This board has brought more to this village in the past year than any other board since I've been here," one resident said.

RABBI STERN, 50, of 3009 N. Tripp Skokie, is married and has three children. He has a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Nebraska.

Loska said yesterday he is running for re-election "to make this the best community college in the State of Illinois and to make it the envy of a few community colleges outside the State of Illinois."

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

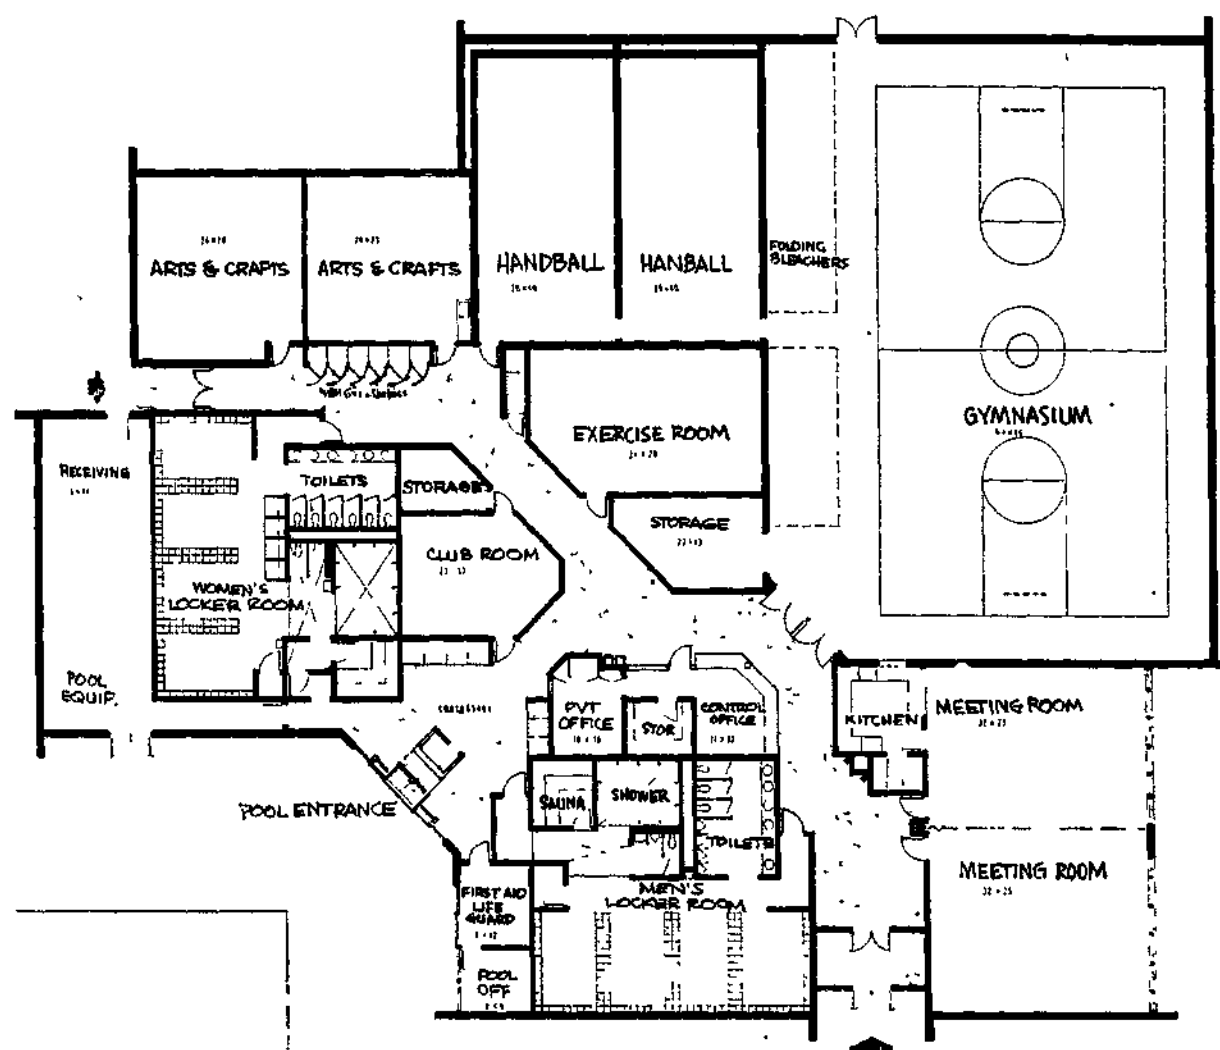

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs.

Mrs. Flister, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr. Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1977. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy; and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

THE PROSPECT HEIGHTS Park District's proposed pool renovation and community center are shown in the above artist's rendering. A referendum will have to be passed to fund the project for which no cost has been set. The pool and baseball diamond already exist. The floor plan below details what will be in the new building. The property is bounded by Elm Street and Camp McDonald Road.

A strong possibility exists that, should the park district get the land, a portion will be set aside for small gardens which would be cultivated by families who live in the district. These latter-day "Victory Gardens" could be used to grow vegetables or flowers, the park board said. The rest of the land would be used for football and baseball fields.

No court ruling is expected for several months. The $5,000 was to be used for equipment and supplies at the clinic with the provision that none of the funds be used for the actual distribution of birth control methods to teens.

'We may end up with a strip': Abrams

Alderman fears bad effects of new 4 a.m. closing rule

by STEVE BROWN

While local tavern owners and restaurateurs have experienced no problems with 4 a.m. closing hours which have been allowed for a month now, at least one Des Plaines alderman believes the later closing bodes ill for the future.

Since the city amended its ordinances last month to allow the 4 a.m. closing time, six restaurants and lounges have asked-up an extra $1,000 to stay open past the usual 1 a.m. time.

Many of those interviewed yesterday by the Herald indicated they had not been staying open till 4 a.m., but wanted the extended hours as a "loosey" in order to avoid the hassle of turning away their still-thirsty patrons promptly at 1 a.m.

However, Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) has already asked the newly-created ordinance be reconsidered and possibly eliminated.

Abrams voiced concern about the possibility of a proliferation of late night spots developing in Des Plaines. He cited the Elmhurst Road area as a potential location for a large number of watering holes which would be open until the wee hours of the morning and possibly developing an unsavory reputation.

"IT STRIKES ME that we may very well end up with a strip over there," Abrams said.

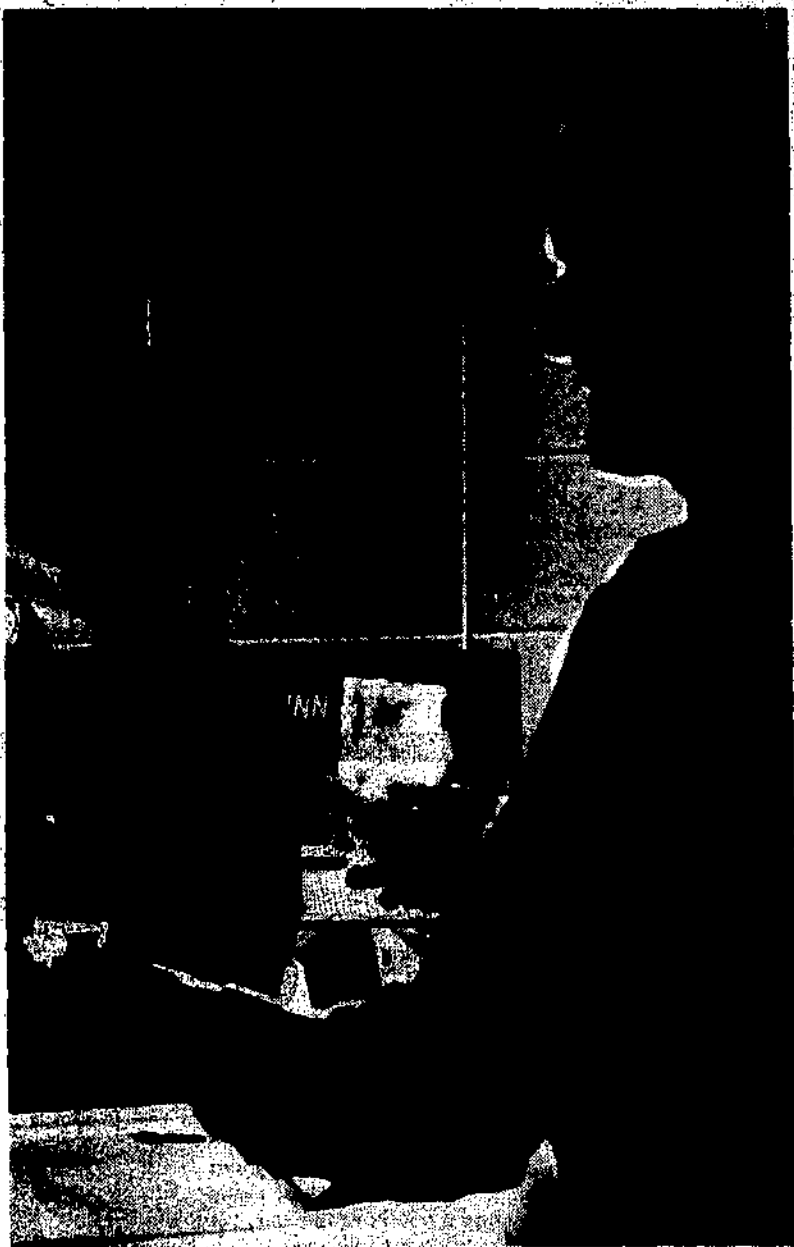

Abrams said that he had not received reports as yet of incidents spawned by the later closing time since the houses were granted in mid-January.

Several owners told the Herald that they applied for the 4 a.m. closing time as a type of insurance policy.

"It can be an aggravation to see the place is closed every night by 1 a.m.," said Art Janis, the owner of Arthur's Steak House at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

"We usually lock up about 2 a.m., but with the later closing we don't have to rush anyone to be out of here at a certain time. It (the price of the license) is worth it just to have the peace of mind."

Paul Romano of Romano's Restaurant, 1308 Oakton St., agreed with Janis. He noted that the restaurant has not used the later closing hours more than two or three times in the past month.

"WE DON'T HAVE many late drinkers, but if a party comes in at midnight for dinner, they don't have to be rushed to get out before an early closing. Most of our business involves table service," he added.

Both Romano and Janis said they do

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report
The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations.

A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebienski, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebienski expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

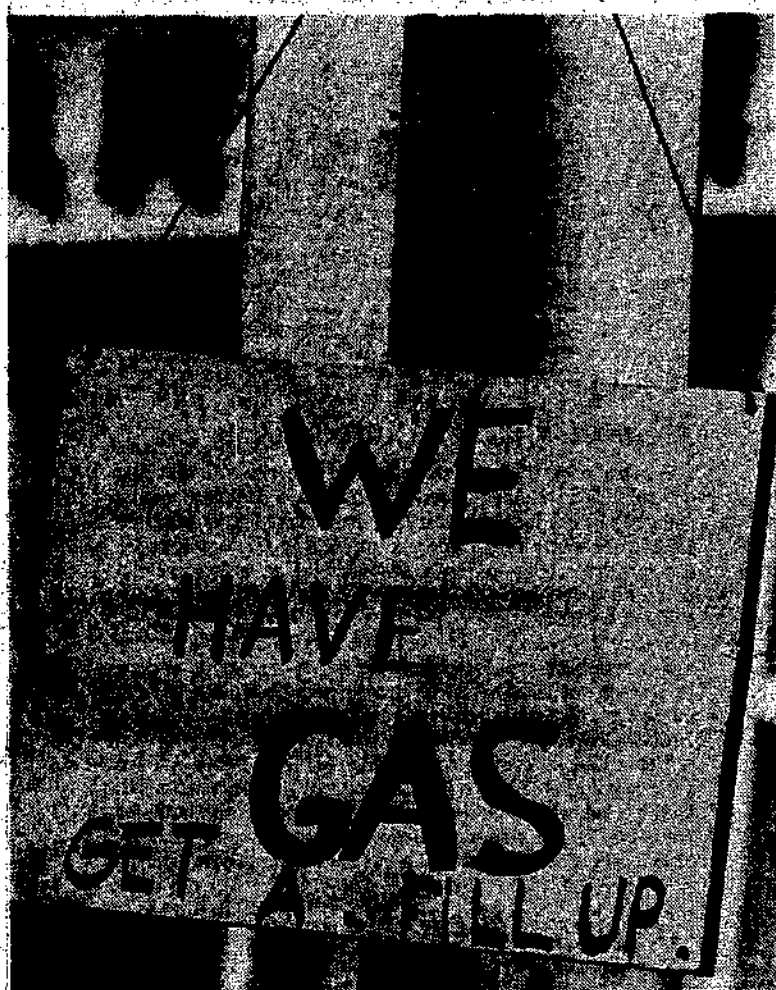

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

by ANNE SLAVICK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours; there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis.; and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 53.5 cents for regular and 56 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 53 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 60 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

Two of five area school races contested

Only two of the five Des Plaines area school districts will have contested elections when voters go to the polls in April.

Sixteen candidates filed for 13 vacancies during the first day of petition filing. Candidates may file for the April 13 election through March 22.

Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 63 will have the most hotly contested election, with a slate of independent candidates challenging caucus-backed candidates for three vacancies.

Caucus-endorsed candidates are incumbent Stuart Kisten and Philip Dock, and newcomer Wallace Meyer. Kisten, 1786 Sycamore, is a four-year resident with three children.

A Northwestern University graduate, he is an internal auditor for Benefit Trust Life Insurance. Kisten was chairman of the board-tenure committee and headed the board's negotiating team during teacher contract talks this year.

DOCK, A DES PLAINES resident for seven years, has four children attending South School and Inglewood Junior High. He received a Bachelor's degree at the Illinois Institute of Technology and a Master's degree from Northwestern University. He is the Midwest region manager of logistics and distribution for Xerox Corp.

Meyer, a resident of Des Plaines for 11½ years, lives at 2181 Plainfield. A graduate of Coe College, he is manager of Commercial Group Insurance for the (Continued on Page 5)

Pancake plans on the griddle

Planning is under way for the 15th annual pancake day sponsored by the Des Plaines Lions Club, Saturday, March 23, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Maine West High School cafeteria.

Extra griddles are being obtained to provide faster service for the large crowds expected to attend and support this yearly event, according to Nick Spano, chairman.

Lion president Art Prochaska stressed the importance of this fund-raising event in support of blind activities. The following organizations benefit annually from contributions of more than $7,000: Hadley School for the Blind; Leader Dogs at Rochester, Mich.; Camp Lions at Lake Villa, Ill. and Dialog.

The Lions sponsor two Little League Clubs and contribute to local community projects.

Tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under twelve and may be purchased from Des Plaines Lions or at the door.

The committee chairman assisting in planning this event include John Coats, co-chairman; Jim Spivey, tickets and posters; Sam Gassman, grills and hook-up; Dave Jackson, Quin Haase and John Graef, arrangements; Jim Williams, publicity; and floor captains, Lommen Eley and Bill Burfisher.

Disabilities may be mistaken for laziness, stupidity

by LINDA PUNCH
First of two parts
Johnny is in third grade and still can't write his name. Nine-year-old Elizabeth finds simple addition impossible. Second-grader Kevin takes a half-hour to copy a sentence off the blackboard.
Some people would call these youngsters lazy or stupid. Educators might peg them as underachievers or retarded. In reality, they are victims of a little understood group of problems — learning disabilities.
Experts estimate that more than 17-million children in this country suffer from some form of learning disability. While their difficulties are tagged with labels such as dyslexia or autism, the problem is simple — the child is unable to learn.

"A learning disability is a rather difficult thing to define," Mrs. Karen Hanson, Dist. 63 learning disability coordinator, said. "Essentially, a child is not achieving in a classroom although he is normal."
DR. ESTELLE BRADLEY, Dist. 62 learning disabilities coordinator, notes that most LD children have an "approximately average IQ." Their problems stem not from a physical disability but from a "perceptual problem."
"Ninety per cent of the people have some sort of perceptual problems but we learn to compensate," she said. "These kids have such major ones they're unable to compensate without help."
Perceptual problems range from not being able to tell the left hand from the right to an inability to distinguish a "b" from a "d."

Independent candidates seeking positions on the Dist. 62 board are Mary Kinser, 973 Margaret St.; Robert Meute, 2094 Chase; and Charles Cooper, 1616 Howard St.
Cooper, a five-year resident of Des Plaines, failed to receive caucus endorsement. A production controller with Science Research Associates, Inc., he is a former member of the parish council at Immaculate Heart of Mary.
EAST MAINE Elementary School Dist. 63 will also have a contested election with three candidates running for two vacancies. Candidates filing for the April election are incumbent Milton Langer and newcomers Jacquelynne B. Larson and Barbara K. Kipnis.
Langer, a Morton Grove resident, was elected to the Dist. 63 board in 1971. He is a member of the Oakton Community College ad hoc committee.
A graduate of the University of Illinois, he is an associate professor of geology and physical sciences at Southwest College, Chicago.
Mrs. Larson, a resident of Glenview for 12 years, is a self-employed accountant. A graduate of Evanston Township High School, she attended the University of Illinois, Wright Junior College and the University of Oregon.
Mrs. Larson is a volunteer in the Community Relations Department of Cook County Juvenile Court and the Audy Home.

Burglars hit car wash

Burglars broke into the Shipshape Car Wash, 99 Rand Rd., and carted off a cash register containing $30, said Des Plaines police.
The burglars broke the glass in an overhead door to gain entry to the office. The machine is valued at $600.

"If a child does all right, it doesn't necessarily mean he doesn't have a learning disability — he may have some sort of problem and learned to compensate," Dr. Bradley said. "He may have a 150 IQ but still be working just above average. He has a severe problem, yet nobody's picked it up."
Library shelves are filled with volumes on learning disabilities yet experts are still at a loss to pinpoint the cause of most youngsters' problems.
"There are many points of view on the subject," Mrs. Hanson said. "It would be nice if somebody could make a nice neat package out of it."
MANY EXPERTS trace the child's inability to learn to a minimum brain dysfunction or a lag in maturation — problems in development. While the disabilities don't impair a child's intelligence, it does prevent him from learning to read, write, spell or do arithmetic.
Symptoms of a learning disability are varied. Some youngsters can't speak in organized sentences. Others can't concentrate long enough to complete a simple task. Another child may have difficulty holding a pencil.
The only sure way to diagnose a LD child is through intensive testing. Mrs. Hanson notes that an LD child will display "staggered kind of testing results."
"A child with low intelligence will score low across the board. A disabled child scores high, low, medium," she said. "When we see this kind of pattern, we're pretty certain a child has a learning problem."
Each child's hearing and vision are checked to rule out any physical reason for learning problems, according to Dr. Bradley. Then each youngster goes through a battery of tests to pinpoint the specific disability.
"WE TREAT EACH child as an individual therefore we diagnose each case in an individual manner," she said. "I have three file cabinets chock full of tests — each child gets a different series."
Dr. Bradley notes that there is great variation in the types of learning disabilities. "Some children can hear something but not be able to give it back to you — others would be able to give it back but don't understand what you're saying," she said.
Educators are discovering more children with the "same problems but not the same causes," according to Mrs. Hanson.
"These youngsters score normal in testing and neurological exams yet they don't learn," she said. "The main thing is not to worry why the problem is there but do the best job we can to remedy it."

CANDIDATES FILING for the two vacancies on the River Trails Elementary School Dist. 26 board are incumbent Sylvia Lurie, 122 Bonnie Brae Lane, Mount Prospect, and Frank Smith, 903 Quince Lane, Mount Prospect.
Both candidates are running for three-year terms and both are caucus endorsed.
Mrs. Avid Wold, 1260 Larchmont Dr., Elk Grove, is the only person to file for the two vacancies on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board.
A mother of three, Mrs. Wold is a 13-year resident of Elk Grove. She is co-chairman of the Grove School Instrumental Music Boosters.
FOUR CANDIDATES have filed for the four vacancies on the Maine Township High School Dist. 207 board — Anne Evans, Donald Goll, Robert P. Cornelsen and Steve Stavrakas.
Mrs. Evans, a 23-year resident of Des Plaines, was a representative to the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention and served as vice chairman of its education committee.
Goll, a Park Ridge resident, is vice president in charge of sales for Moxness Products, Inc.
A former Park Ridge alderman, he has served as chairman of citizens' committees for bond referendums in both districts 64 and 207.

City wrapping up Superblock details

Final details of a number of city-financed improvements related to the proposed Des Plaines downtown redevelopment project should be completed in two to three weeks.
Mayor Herbert Behrel said he was hopeful of wrapping up the final details in negotiations with the developers of the Superblock building, the Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp., and several other parties.
The talks involve details of arranging the exchange of land along Prairie Street for the vacation of Center Street, a lease agreement for 400 spaces in Ellinwood Street parking garage, and acquiring other property in the vicinity of the intersection of Center and Prairie streets for additional parking.
While indicating that there were no problems with the negotiations, he said there have been some complications in putting down on paper general concepts that have been discussed over the past few years.
"WE ARE TRYING to get the nitty-gritty details down into fine print," the not plan to go after any of the "after-hours" business from persons who may be leaving another tavern at a 1 a.m. closing and looking for another spot.

Tony Major of the River Rand Bowl, 191 N. River St., said he normally closes at about 2 a.m., but sought the later closing hours as a service to bowlers in late night leagues.
"We don't look for the outside trade, but occasionally there is a person who finishes bowling and stays past what was the normal closing," he said.
Steve Sakas of Steve's Lounge, 1460 Rand Rd., also indicated that he is accommodating his regular customers.
"WE DO NOT HAVE a young crowd here, mostly men who might come in after getting off work at midnight for a few drinks," Sakas said, adding that he normally closes about 3 a.m.
Larry Graf, food and beverage director for the Holiday Inn at Mannheim and Touhy, said he plans to do a little experimenting before he decides exactly how to handle the 4 a.m. closing.
Graf said the inn is presently seeking approval from regional Holiday Inn officials to have entertainment and if that is approved, he believes the later closing would be worthwhile.

mayor said.
While Behrel declined the specific details of the multi-faceted negotiations, he indicated that the entire situation will be fully explained when the agreement comes before the city council.
It is expected that the lease agreement with the parking garage will be closely scrutinized by the city council and especially those aldermen which have been opposed to the redevelopment program.
Superblock developers have proposed to lease about 400 spaces in the garage on a long-term contract for tenants of the building. The garage, which will be financed through revenue bonds, will also be used for shopper parking.
Behrel said the city would maintain a strong position in the bargaining, especially over the rental rate for the garage.
"WE ARE NOT going to be gun shy, but will not be foolish either," Behrel said. He indicated that he had rejected the first proposal presented for the agreement and that the contract has been revised at least three times during subsequent negotiations.

Besides the parking lease agreement, the city will exchange a portion of Center Street for the land along the north side of Prairie Street to make way for a widening project and improvements to sewer and water lines in the area.
Behrel said the cost on the improvements to Prairie Street will total about $290,000.
He added that it is hoped to have all phases of the agreement ironed out before April. He said the developers hope to start construction of the $12 million facility at that time. Demolition crews have been working during the past two months to remove several buildings on the Superblock site.

Three projects being studied for bicentennial

Three projects are under consideration by Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission members to be the main event for the city's end of the 1976 bicentennial celebration.

Fire Department Capt. David Wolf, chairman of the commission, said members will soon decide upon one of the undertakings as the major project for the country's 200th birthday.

Currently under consideration is turning the current municipal building into a "heritage hall" that could be used by senior citizens, youth groups and for a public information center.

Wolf said the opening of the new city hall, "would be consistent time-wise with the celebration and if it becomes our project, we could decorate and renovate it."

MEMBERS ARE ALSO pointing to the possibility of establishing a bicentennial park to be completed about the time the official bicentennial begins in July of next year.

Wolf said matching federal funds would be available for setting up a park he added would be named in honor of the celebration.

The commission is also thinking about acquiring and restoring the old Socrates Rand Mill or the Earl home complex at Miner Street and River Road.

"We were thinking about preservation of the house and possible acquisition," he said. "It would be used as a museum and the restoration of the mill would put it back into operating condition and could also be made into a park-like setting."

SOCRATES RAND was a Des Plaines pioneer who lived here in the mid and late 1800s while Dr. Clarence Earle was a well-known physician who built the old house in 1897.

Wolf hopes a large part of the financing for the Horizons project will come from sponsorship by groups or individuals in the city of a series of smaller undertakings also planned for the bicentennial.

Essay writing contests, pageants, plays, parades, picnics, "or anything the community will adopt," are also under consideration, Wolf said.

He said a bicentennial "town meeting" will help members decide what the projects will be. The meeting is slated for 1:30 p.m., Sunday, March 10, at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St. and is open to the public.

"ONE REASON for the meeting," according to Wolf, "is that some person or organization may come up with an idea for a project that the commission hasn't even thought of yet and it may be so logical that we just may adopt it as the horizons project."

"We want people to think about what type of project would be good for Des Plaines that would be of a lasting nature in 1976 that people of future generations would continue to identify with the birthday of the country and use."

School board elections Oakton College

Rabbi Harold Stern of the B'nai Emenah Congregation in Skokie entered the race for the Oakton Community College board of trustees yesterday challenging incumbents Stephen Loska and Griffith MacDonald.

Three candidates filed for the college board yesterday, the first day nominating petitions were accepted for school elections April 13. They are Rabbi Stern, Loska, and Harriet Ritter, 5830 Lincoln Ave., Morton Grove.

MacDonald, Robert Doyle, 18073 Linda Ln., Des Plaines, and Thomas Rosser, 308 Cherry St., Park Ridge, have also declared their candidacy but have not yet filed petitions. Two three-year terms are open on the college board this year. Candidates must file by March 22.

Rabbi Stern came out against building the college's permanent home on a site along the Des Plaines River during a public hearing on selection of a permanent campus on Feb. 14. Last week the college board of trustees selected the 170-acre river site for a permanent campus and is now seeking approval of the site from the Illinois Community College Board.

Rabbi Stern said he favors a high rise college on the temporary campus, what he calls "a tower of learning," similar to Loop College in Chicago.

RABBI STERN, 50, of 3309 N. Tripp, Skokie, is married and has three children. He has a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Nebraska, was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York and is now a doctoral candidate at Northwestern University. He has been Rabbi at the B'nai Emenah Congregation for 15 years.

Loska, of 1694 Van Buren, Des Plaines, was elected to the Oakton board in 1971. A senior scientist in research for Kraftco Corp., Glenview, Loska has a masters degree in cereal chemistry from Kansas State University. He and his wife have seven children.

Loska said yesterday he is running for re-election "to make this the best community college in the State of Illinois and to make it the envy of a few community colleges outside the State of Illinois."

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 825 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1944 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

day. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community

During the next three years he said, "I hope we can get at least 50 per cent of our graduates coming from the feeder high schools to have Oakton as their first choice and hopefully to get even above that in the next three years."

Mrs. Ritter, a real estate broker in Morton Grove, said yesterday, "My main objective is to get on the board so I can advance continuing education." She said she decided to run because she has "been tremendously interested in adult education for both men and women."

Mrs. Ritter is now a student at Oakton taking courses in political science. She is a member of the League of Women Voters in Morton Grove and Niles.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 790 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fiesler and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fiesler was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs. Fiesler. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fiesler has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fiesler, of 8215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 919 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsmen from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

North Maine fire tax vote March 30

North Maine Fire Protection District officials will ask voters to approve a tax levy to upgrade the department's ambulance service in a referendum next month.

Voter approval of the measure in the March 30 election would allow for a levy of up to 25 cents on $100 assessed valuation, but North Maine Fire Chief Dale Moore said the district would only levy 15 cents of that amount if the referendum passes.

A similar request for funds to upgrade North Maine ambulance service was turned down in a referendum last July.

The department serves approximately 28,000 residents in unincorporated Maine Township.

Moore called the stationwagon now being used as an ambulance "inadequate." He added the referendum would provide for a new ambulance that meets federal guidelines as well as the equipment and five additional men to operate it.

ALTHOUGH TOTAL ambulance alarms in the district decreased by 7 per cent from 1972 to '73, statistics showed ambulance calls accounting for 43 per cent of all alarms answered last year.

Department operating funds from property taxes are used to finance the service and Moore said, "We'd like to divert part of that into fire department operations."

He estimated $105,000 would be spent to improve the service with voter approval.

The additional revenue, he said, would help to offset shortages of manpower, and equipment now facing the department.

Thirteen full-time firefighters man the station at 3301 Potter Rd. with four-man shifts. Another force of 30 paid-on-call reserve firemen is also maintained.

6-month trial

Local, commuter bus starts operation Monday

by JERRY THOMAS

A commuter and local bus service for Elk Grove Village residents will roll Monday. Village officials yesterday participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony that signaled the start of the village's first local bus service.

The ceremony got off to a late start — "not indicative of the way the actual bus schedule will run," said Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, bus transportation committee chairman.

The service will operate on a six-month trial basis through Aug. 31 with the major portion of operational expenses paid from the village's share of federal revenue sharing funds.

TWO TYPES OF service will be provided. The dial-a-bus service will provide transportation within the residential and commercial areas of Elk Grove Village. Residents wishing to use dial-a-bus service should call the bus dispatcher at 437-3769. The bus will pick up people at their home or other location and take the rider to the desired destination in the village.

The dial-a-bus will be available weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. but not on national holidays.

The cost per ride one way is 25 cents per person. Children under six years of age ride free when accompanied by a fare-paying passenger.

The bus is equipped with an exact-change-only fare box. The driver will not make change and riders must have the exact change to ride.

THE COMMUTER BUS service will be operated with two buses. The buses will go to the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Arlington Heights and the other to the Milwaukee Road station in Wood Dale.

The charge for commuter service is $20 per month or 50 cents a day on a monthly subscription basis. Tickets purchased after the first of the month will be pro-rated. Individual daily tickets may be obtained at the municipal building at $1 per one-way ride.

Village officials urge monthly subscription purchase because it will save riders money and guarantee a seat on the bus.

Tickets for the commuter bus may be purchased at the village hall, 901 Wellington St., weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. For further information about the commuter service residents may call 439-3900.

THROUGHOUT THE test period all buses used will be of the yellow school bus variety. At the conclusion of the trial period, an evaluation of both services will be made to determine whether resident interest is sufficient to continue the bus services.

Mrs. Vanderweel asks residents to contact her at the village hall with any comments or suggestions about the transportation service outlined or the scheduling.

During this trial period buses will not take passengers to the industrial park. She explained that "until the service trial period is over schedules or trips might be changed and residents who depend on a ride to work might be disappointed."

Commuter bus service schedules are available at the village hall.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report

The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTION: TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebieniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebieniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rapid Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

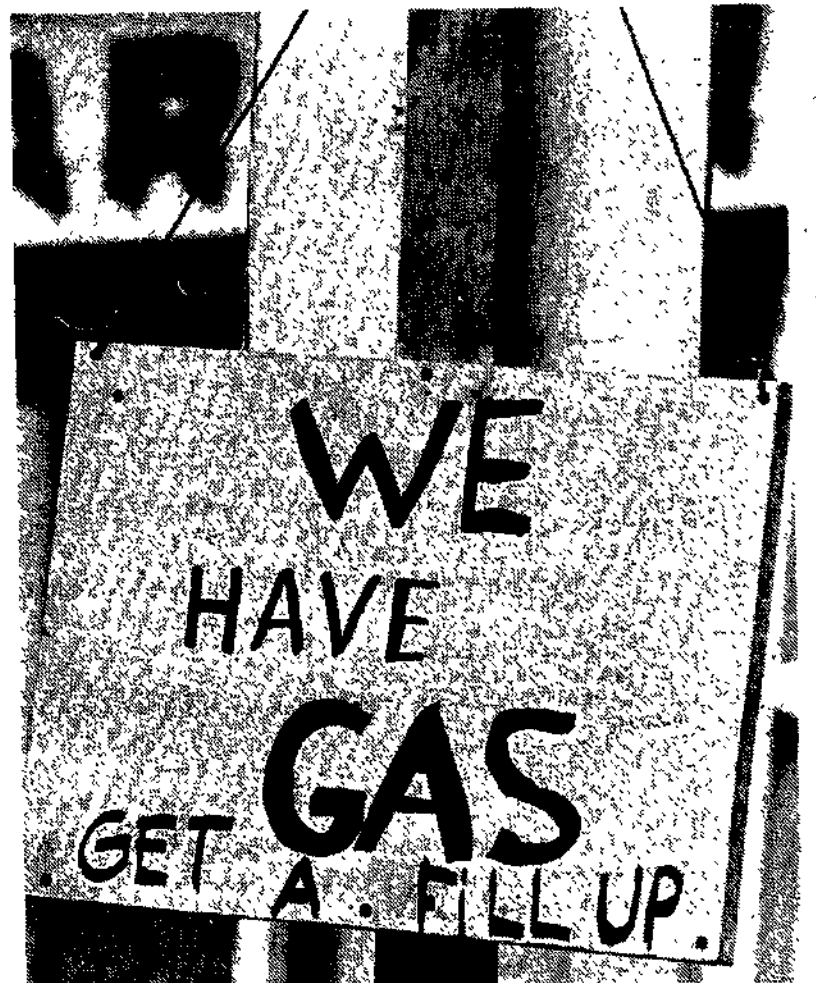

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tat's (Continued on page 15)

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS TOOK A bus ride Wednesday during ceremonies kicking off the new Elk Grove bus service. Two types of service will begin Monday: commuter buses to train stations in Arlington Heights and Wood Dale will operate mornings and evenings; and a dial-a-bus service for residents will be available.

Trustee hits Centex development plans

Elk Grove Village Trustee Ed Kenna called Centex builders outline of preliminary plans to develop a 102-acre parcel west of Ill. Rte. 53 "an abomination."

Kenna, who is chairman of the village judiciary planning and zoning committee, told fellow trustees Tuesday the committee agrees with the plan commission's contention that the first plans outlined by Centex have several bad points.

Kenna said Centex's plans have not been formally submitted for hearings but are still being reviewed in preliminary discussions.

"However, the preview we saw leads us to advise Centex to make some changes or we will throw their proposal out the window," said Kenna.

KENNA SAID both the plan commission and his committee's major objection to the development is a lack of entrances and exits from the subdivision to Meacham Road, lack of walking access to nearby Link School and flood control.

"We've told Centex the two exits and entrances they planned, to Meacham are

Question—who takes the lake?

by BOB GALLAS

"Who takes the lake?" may be a question facing Centex Corp. developers, and village and park district officials in the near future.

A new Metropolitan Sanitary District regulation, which requires a certain amount of drainage water must be stored in holding areas before being introduced into the sewer systems, has started a new trend, according to Jack Claes, director of parks and recreation for the Elk Grove Park District.

Developers, who must set aside 10 per cent of new village developments for public use that is in turn given to Elk Grove Village, may start including these "water holding areas" as part of the agreement.

Park district officials are concerned the areas of water will not be suitable as usable park land. They are also asking who will be responsible for future upkeep of these little lakes.

THE PARK district has already taken one, 2½-acre lake as part of the open space provided by developers. The latest proposed addition to Elk Grove Village, section 21, a 102-acre parcel west of Ill. Rte. 53 along Meacham Road, includes another four to five-acre lake which it is believed will be included as open land given to the village.

"Developers prefer not to maintain lakes," said Claes. "So it's logical to give it to the park district," he added.

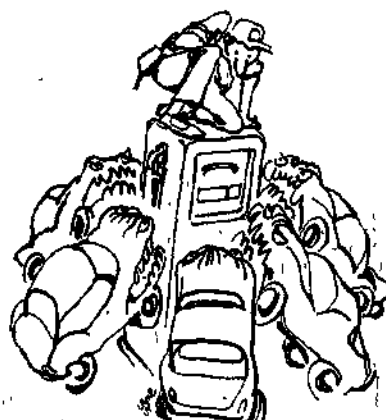

While Claes was not totally against the park district acquiring the responsibility of another lake, he expressed concern

Village board wrapup

'Pets' reimbursed for advertising cost

Pets etc. a group which has been putting stray animals up for adoption, received a bit of financial help from village officials yesterday.

The Village Board approved a $150 reimbursement to the organization to pay for newspaper ads advertising animals for adoption.

They also earmarked $30 for future ad placement. Village Pres. Charles Zetek commended Joan Brosselt, Jean Paulson and Marge Howland for their work in caring for strays and finding homes for the animals.

"We can't compensate you for the time you have dedicated but we can certainly help you with the payment of ads," he said.

Pets etc. said they have a good working relationship with the Elk Grove Village Police Department and especially the new animal warden.

They reported that they have been successful in placing about 30 animals in homes and that the strays are well cared for in kennels provided by the village.

Future plans call for construction of indoor kennel facilities when the public works building is expanded.

Gas dealers, village to meet

Service station owners in Elk Grove Village and village officials may get together to discuss the method and hours of operation and the energy crisis in general.

Village Pres. Zetek got the green light last night from several trustees when he proposed Elk Grove Village follow the lead of neighboring Mount Prospect and Des Plaines and attempt to set up a system to ease the energy crunch.

Zetek said Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert Teichert arranged a meeting with over 30 operators in town this week to discuss methods of dealing with long lines of motorists waiting for gas.

The president stressed the village "is not attempting to force any methods of operation on dealers in the village but perhaps if we met and talked we could come up with some voluntary cooperation or good ideas," said Zetek.

Zetek asked trustee Ed Kenna, who heads the judiciary, planning and zoning committee, to investigate the advisability of arranging such a meeting and report back to the board.

Bike crossing signs to go up

Signs warning motorists that the intersections of Arlington Heights Road and Brantwood and Arlington Heights Road and Parkchester are designated bike crossings will be placed sometime this month.

The Elk Grove Village board approved a request from the Elk Grove Village Park District Bike Club to install the signs.

Trustee Kenna expressed concern that the signs would give riders a false sense of security. "Didn't the police department at one time object to placement of such signs?" he asked.

Police Lt. William Kohnke said he did not recall such a recommendation and felt the signs would not pose a problem.

Trustee Ronald Chernick said the question came up before Arlington Heights Road was widened. There is now sufficient pavement for safe riding, he said.

Jaycees change date

Elk Grove Village Jaycees have changed the date of the Jaycees parade and carnival originally planned for July.

Village officials Tuesday approved the group's request to grant a permit for a June 23 parade and carnival planned for June 19 to the 23.

The Jaycees have not selected a site for the carnival.

Honor nurse Carol Johnston

Carol Johnston, 206 Lanford Ln., Prospect Heights, has been presented with the William L. Kubie Memorial Award by the Alexian Brothers of America.

Johnston is head nurse in the intensive care unit at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. The cash award will enable her to continue her education toward a bachelor's degree in nursing (BSN) at Governor's State University in Park Forest South.

Having joined the staff of Alexian Brothers in January, 1969, as a licensed practical nurse, Johnston became a staff nurse several months later upon receiving her associate degree in nursing from Harper College. She began working in intensive care early in 1970 and became head nurse in June, 1973.

The award is presented each year to a deserving nursing student. It was established by Kubie's parents and wife as a living memorial to the Alexian Brothers Hospital School of Nursing graduate who died in an auto accident in 1955.

Book fair March 4-6

Dan Cook School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., will hold a book fair March 4, 5 and 6.

Parents and children are invited to attend Monday and Tuesday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and Tuesday from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Karen Terrell, PTC librarian, is chairman of the book fair.

Girls' softball signup to begin Saturday

Registration starts this Saturday for the Elk Grove Village Athletic Assn., girls' softball teams. Signup will be at the Elk Grove Bowling Lanes from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There are three divisions in this program; ponytails for girls eight to 11; juniors for ages 12 through 15 and seniors ages 17 and under.

Women are needed to coach and manage teams and dads to umpire, according to Dee Johnson, softball commissioner.

Registrations will also be taken March 16 and 30. For further information call 885-8665 or 439-1357.

Lions Club 'Presidents Night' slated Saturday

Elk Grove Village Lions Club members will stage their 18th annual "Presidents Night" this Saturday.

A dinner-dance, starting at 7:30 p.m. will be held at the Villa Olivia Country Club in Bartlett. All 14 past presidents of the village Lions will be honored and are expected to attend.

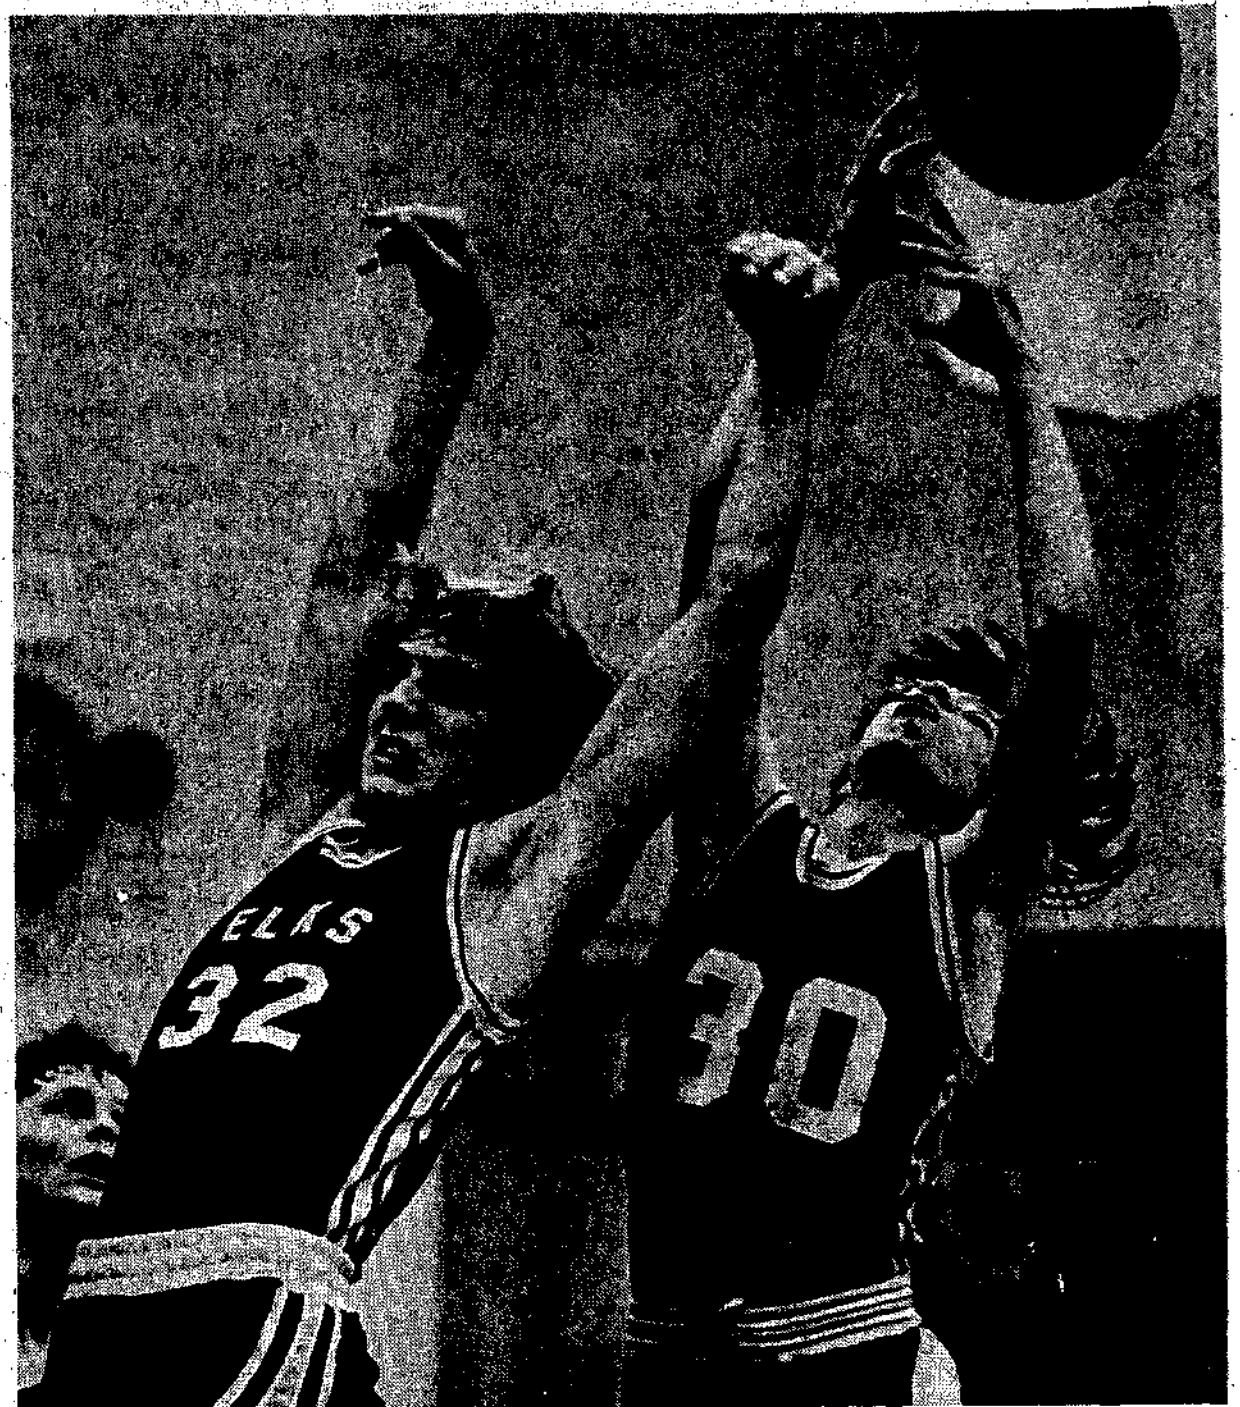

Guest speaker at the event will be Evan "Red" Carrison, District 1F Governor of the Lions Club. Local club president Tom Wiencowski also will be honored.

For more information, contact Ron Foster, 437-4377.

Radio, calculator stolen from Rupley

A radio and pocket calculator were stolen from the Rupley School offices at 305 E. Oakton St., Elk Grove Village, sometime between late Saturday and Monday.

Police report the school custodian Clarence McDonald found a broken window in the office area. Later it was discovered that a calculator owned by a teacher and a radio valued at $150 were missing from the office.

ACTION is always hot and heavy when local junior high rivals, Grove and Lively, get together for a game of basketball. Lively's Barry Pangrie, right, gets the tip from Grove's Don Krumwiede. Lively finished its year with an 8-win, 7-loss record. Grove finished at 4-10. The teams were 1-1 against each other.

Only one first-day filing for Dist. 59 School Board

First day filings for the school board races affecting Elk Grove Village were slim yesterday. Only one entered the Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 race, compared with three who entered the race in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54. There are two openings on each board.

Avis Wold, 1260 Larchmont Dr. in Elk Grove Village was the only entrant in the Dist. 59 race as the filing period opened.

A resident of the school district and village for 13 years, Mrs. Wold serves as co-chairman of the Grove Junior High band parents organization, the Grove Instrumental Music Boosters.

Mrs. Wold, whose three children are either in or have been in the district, said her reason for running for the board was to in some way make a return for everything her children have received in the district.

JIM BLANKENSHIP, Esther Karras and Margaret Pageler entered the Dist. 54 race yesterday turning the election into a contested race for the two vacancies.

Blankenship, 39, of 229 Wickham in Schaumburg, is an executive with the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

Margaret Pageler, 33, of 269 Ida Rd. in Hoffman Estates. Mrs. Pageler has been active in a variety of school district activities. She was an unsuccessful candidate for the Dist. 54 board last year.

Also filing yesterday was Esther Karras of 308 Basswood St. in Hoffman Estates. Mrs. Karras has served as president of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTA.

Those interested in running for their district school board, have until March 22 to submit the necessary petitions needed to place their name on the school board ballot. Elections this year are Saturday, April 13.

For information regarding filing procedures or candidate qualifications, prospective candidates may contact their respective district administration offices.

Centex project plans criticized

(Continued from page 1) insufficient and have also asked them to consider placing lots to allow for walkways to school.

Kenna said lots are laid out so that children who could be living about 700 feet away from the school property would have to be bused out of the subdivision and to the school because there is no public walkway to the nearby school.

The Park District has been asked to review the builders proposed park donation. "Apparently the park district, thinks they might be getting another lake area, since they said 'If we get one more lake from a builder, we will have to hire an admiral,'" said Kenna.

KENNA PREDICTED that the plan commission would turn down Centex's plans for the area unless the changes suggested by the joint committee are incorporated into the future presentation.

"This is just my report on the discussion we had about the plan presented so far and of course we will have to wait for the official presentation. But unless it's an improvement I'll suggest this village board throw it out," said Kenna.

The plan commission meets March 7 at 8 p.m. and the Centex proposal is expected to be reviewed that evening.

Question - who takes the lake?

over several aspects of the lake which haven't been discussed.

Areas of concern, according to Claes, include whether the outer shelf of the lake will be graduated or will it drop off sharply, causing a safety hazard for young children playing near by. "Who's responsible in the years ahead, if there's a silt buildup in the lake and it has to be dredged?" said Claes.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS include how the area around the lake will be landscaped and if the lake will be attractively shaped.

It appears the regulation requiring holding areas may mean more water for village parks. The question remaining appears to be whether the water will attract parkgoers and be an asset to the community, or merely fulfill open land requirements while adding nothing positive to the village's parks.

School board elections

Oakton College

Rabbi Harold Stern of the B'nai Emunah Congregation in Skokie entered the race for the Oakton Community College board of trustees yesterday challenging incumbents Stephen Loska and Griffith MacDonald.

Three candidates filed for the college board yesterday, the first day nominating petitions were accepted for school elections April 13. They are Rabbi Stern, Loska, and Harriet Ritter, 5830 Lincoln Ave., Morton Grove.

MacDonald, Robert Doyle, 10073 Linda Ln., Des Plaines, and Thomas Roeser, 200 Cherry St., Park Ridge, have also declared their candidacy but have not yet filed petitions. Two three-year terms are open on the college board this year. Candidates must file by March 22.

Rabbi Stern came out against building the college's permanent home on a site along the Des Plaines River during a public hearing on selection of a permanent campus on Feb. 14. Last week the college board of trustees selected the 170-acre river site for a permanent campus and is now seeking approval of the site from the Illinois Community College Board.

Rabbi Stern said he favors a high rise college on the temporary campus, what he calls "a tower of learning," similar to Loop College in Chicago.

RABBI STERN, 50, of 9309 N. Tripp, Skokie, is married and has three children. He has a master's degree in philosophy from the University of Nebraska, was ordained at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York and is now a doctoral candidate at Northwestern University. He has been Rabbi at the B'nai Emunah Congregation for 15 years.

Loska, of 1694 Van Buren, Des Plaines, was elected to the Oakton board in 1971. A senior scientist in research for Kraftco Corp., Glenview, Loska has a masters of science degree in cereal chemistry from Kansas State University. He and his wife have seven children.

Loska said yesterday he is running for re-election "to make this the best community college in the State of Illinois and to make it the envy of a few community colleges outside the State of Illinois."

During the next three years he said, "I hope we can get at least 50 per cent of our graduates coming from the feeder high schools to have Oakton as their first choice and hopefully to get even above that in the next three years."

Mrs. Ritter, a real estate broker in Morton Grove, said yesterday, "My main objective is to get on the board so I can advance continuing education." She said she decided to run because she has "been tremendously interested in adult education for both men and women."

Mrs. Ritter is now a student at Oakton taking courses in political science. She is a member of the League of Women Voters in Morton Grove and Niles.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1944 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

day. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fiser and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fiser was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs.

Fiser. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fiser has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fiser, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 919 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsmen from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

Food stamps reinstated at opportunity center

The food stamp program at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been reopened, and officials are looking for a formal agreement that would give them a say in the future of the program.

Food stamp distribution at the center ended abruptly last month when state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent out to the center and six other suburban distribution outlets because of a manpower shortage.

A formal agreement would give the center a voice in the future of the program, Newton said. "The program would not be withdrawn until we have had a say and have seen what can be worked out," he said yesterday.

Opportunity Center Director Bruce Newton said he will be meeting with state officials early next week to work out the formal agreement and discuss the possibility of setting up an outpost in this area for people who are applying for public aid for the first time and people who are having problems with their case-workers.

PRESENTLY THOSE people have to go downtown to a Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first come-first-serve basis.

Food stamp counselors in the past went out to the center twice a week and served around 40 people each week. They returned Tuesday for the first time since last month. Officials at NOC are setting up appointments for future interviews.

Last month, the center had about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps. Many families now in the program also need appointments because they must be re-certified every two to six months.

Affected along with Rolling Meadows Center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, the Argo Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights. All except Argo Summit have been reinstated, Newton said.

Hospitals go with construction anyway

Financial trouble for Northwest suburban hospitals and the warning that a new hospital facility now planned "could get hurt badly" were predicted yesterday by Ben Squires, executive director-Comprehensive Health Coordinating Commission of Illinois.

He said the board of directors for hospitals planned in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Wheeling should seriously consider a decision not to build. Available spokesmen from the hospitals said, however, they plan to proceed toward construction of their facilities.

SQUIRE'S WARNING is based on a Health Facilities and Service plan the state's Comprehensive Health Planning Agency is finalizing so that it may join with the U. S. Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) in controlling health care costs in Illinois.

The plan is based on a formula showing 1,625 hospital beds now available in northwest Cook County will serve the area's needs until 1979.

The formula states that additional facilities for under 200 hospital beds should be built in addition to the existing hospitals — Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove; Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge; and Resurrection Hospital, Chicago.

Contrary to the state's formula, Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital plans a 180-bed branch facility in Schaumburg at Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard. Amerivan Mediscope Inc. plans a 312-bed proprietary hospital at Higgins and Barrington roads, Hoffman Estates; and Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital in Chicago is seeking land for a 223-bed facility in Wheeling.

STATE HEALTH authorities predict "if they all go ahead they will up the cost of patient care without proper compensation," Squire said.

There is nothing the state can do, under current law, to stop construction of the hospitals if they get necessary permits before May or June, said Squire. By then the statewide health plan, subject to public hearings starting next month, should be approved. HEW regulations will be applicable under federal law and the state's formula for allowing new hospital construction will have some teeth, he added.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital hopes to have its permits by April, according to Norman Davis, consultant to the hospital. He expects to have a difficult time getting approval if Franklin Boulevard's plans are not ready before then.

The warnings from the state of financial dangers "don't concern me particularly," he added.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator for St. Luke's in Schaumburg, said his institution is committed to the community to build its facility. RSPL already has all necessary permits.

TOLD OF THE state's warning, Buhrmann said his facility was planned based on extensive study done by RSPL and was collaborated by a publicly funded study done by Ernst and Ernst.

Both showed the need for more hospital beds and the number of doctors they would attract to Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and the surrounding area, he added.

Three file for school board

James Blankenship, Esther Karras and Margaret Pageler Wednesday filed petitions of candidacy for the Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Blankenship, 39, of 229 Wickham Dr., Schaumburg, is an executive with the Chesapeake and Ohio R. R. He is a member of the local Unit District Study Committee, which is investigating placing all township schools under the same governing body. He is chairman of Schaumburg's Intergovernmental Coordinating Committee and has served as village liaison to Dist. 54 for the past year.

Mrs. Pageler, 35, of 298 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates, is active in school district activities. She ran unsuccessfully for the board of education last year.

legislation committee and has been involved in the community interest survey prepared by the community relations committee.

Mrs. Karras, 308 Basswood St., is president of Schaumburg Area Council of Parent Teacher Assn. She has served on school board committees on community relations, policy, building and sites and education.

Terms of Adam Jelen, Jr. and Sherwood Spatz expire this year. Jelen has announced intentions to seek reelection but has not filed petitions; Spatz has made no announcement.

Petitions will be accepted at school district offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., through March 22. Position on the ballot will be determined by lottery.

Redevelopment plans unveiled

High-rises, mall, theaters highlight downtown plans

by JOANN VAN WYE

High-rise office and apartment buildings, a pedestrian mall and movie theaters are proposed for Palatine's central business district, according to plans unveiled yesterday.

The plans were presented to the New Palatine Committee, a group of 12 businessmen working on the downtown redevelopment, by Wilton Battles of Planning Horizons, Inc., a Des Plaines planning firm.

Two separate plans, differing primarily in the number of apartments planned, were presented to the committee. The committee will combine elements of both plans in the final land use plan scheduled for adoption on March 13, according to Lee Morrison, committee chairman.

Battles described both land use proposals as "simple plans which could be implemented quickly."

TO CARRY OUT either plan would mean several zoning variations or actual changes in the village's present zoning code.

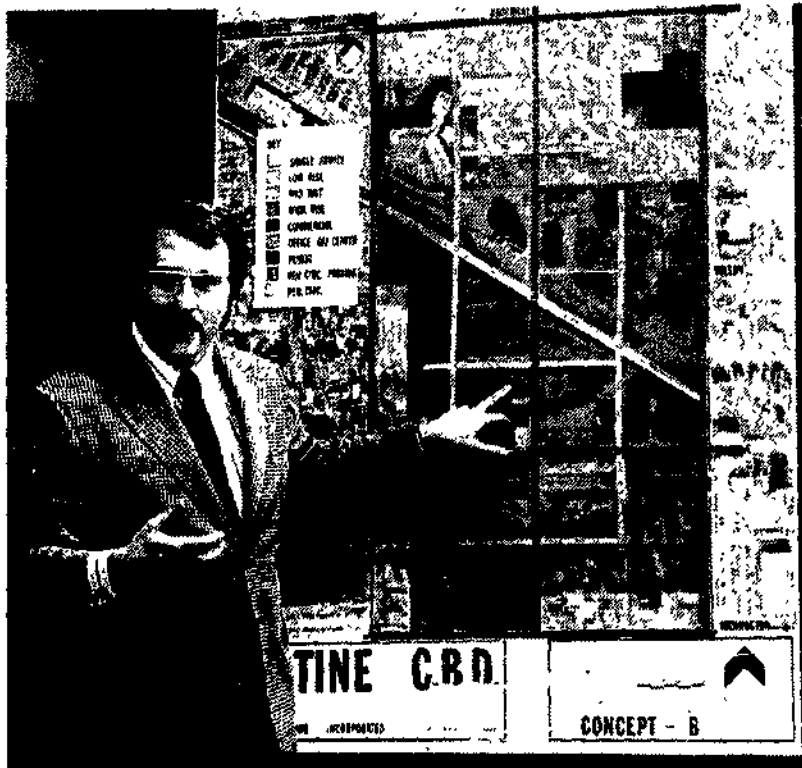

An incentive system whereby developers would provide landscaping, open space or some other improvement in return for a variation in height, density, public improvement or parking from the village was suggested by Morrison.

A pedestrian walkway encircling the downtown area which would include landscaping, small passive recreation parks and gardens, is proposed in both plans.

Construction of the pedestrian walkway would necessitate eliminating sections of three streets. These include: Greeley Street on the west from Johnson Street north; Bothwell Street on the east from Johnson Street to north of Wood Street; and Johnson Street on the south between Greeley and Bothwell streets. The northern boundary of the pedestrian walkway would be located between Colfax and Wood streets. Also proposed for elimination is Slade Street between Greeley and Bothwell streets.

"WE ARE TRYING to separate vehicle and pedestrian traffic and give the downtown a high quality identity," said Gene Kripak of Planning Horizons, Inc. "We want to make it a pleasure to take a walk in the retail area," he added.

Creation of a pedestrian system will also lead to the elimination of on-street parking in the commercial area. To replace the on-street parking, large parking facilities on the perimeter of the retail area are proposed.

"We don't know what level (parking structure) we are talking about until we know our needs," said Battles.

"We are only going to eliminate on-street parking where it is necessary and only after alternative parking is made available," emphasized Morrison.

Several other changes in traffic patterns through the central business district are expected to be proposed in a traffic study currently being prepared for the village by Rolfe Gustus, a traffic engineer. The thoroughfare plan will call for left turn bays, cul de sacs, street widening and other changes aimed at accommodating more traffic but alleviating congestion in the central business area, according to Battles.

ON THE NORTHERN boundary of the pedestrian mall, high rise apartment buildings are proposed to bring more people into the downtown area. High-rise was defined by Kripak as 30 to 60 units per acre. He said this would probably mean the adoption of a new zoning classification by the village board. Lower density apartment units are proposed for the extreme northern boundary of the central business district to serve as a buffer for single-family homes. A total of 500 to 1,000 additional dwelling units are proposed for the central business district.

Also proposed for the north side of the tracks are restaurants and movie theaters to give residents something to do in the downtown area at night.

The commercial area will remain where it is now located east of Brockway Street. No significant expansion of the commercial area is proposed but Morrison said the vacating of streets would

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report

The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebeniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebeniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

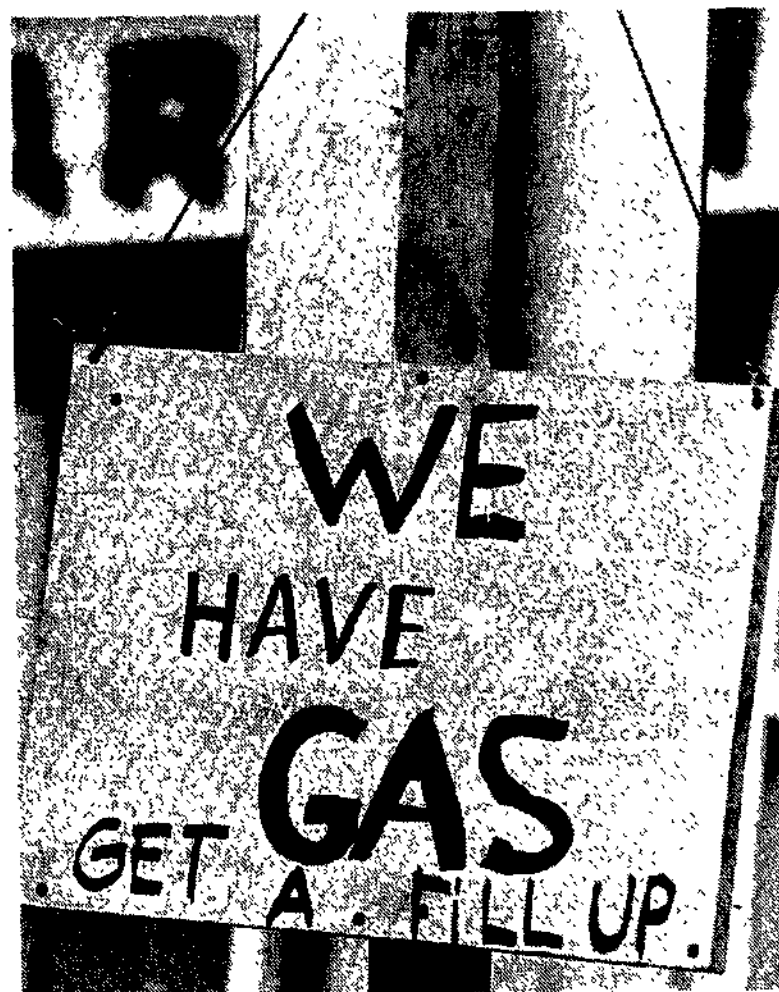

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

...and elsewhere in U.S.

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

Five file for Dist. 15 School Board

Five petitions for election to three seats on the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board were filed during the first day of filing yesterday.

The three incumbents, Everett Charlier, J. Leslie Ehringer and Howard Meadows, have filed. Also running are two Palatine residents, Mrs. A. Rosamond Von Mayr of 2160 S. Elm Rd. and Robert Bliss of 533 Echo Ln., Palatine.

The sixth candidate, who has announced his intention to run but did not file yesterday, is Warren Franczyk of 1059 Old Mill Dr., Palatine.

Charlier, an assistant principal in Arlington Heights Dist. 25, is running for his second term this spring. He has been on the board for three years, since his election in 1971. Presently he is chairman of the new buildings committee.

Charlier was formerly a member of the board of directors of Countryside Center for the Mentally Handicapped and a member of the Palatine Combined Appeal from 1969 to 1970. He and his family live in Palatine.

EHRLINGER, SEEKING his ninth term, began his career on the school board in 1964, when he was appointed to a one-year term, replacing a board member who had resigned.

Ehringer presently serves as chairman of the Dist. 15 Education Committee. He is marketing manager for Interline Travel Market at United Air Lines and lives with his wife in Rolling Meadows.

Meadors is running for his seventh term on the school board. He is chairman of the personnel relations committee, which handles salary negotiations each year.

Meadors and his family live in Inverness. He is a partner in Hewitt Associates of Libertyville, a firm of actuaries and consultants on employee benefit programs.

Bliss is presently vice president of National Merit Scholarship corp. in Evanston. He is active in the United Methodist Church in Arlington Heights and was the first president of the Pleasant Hill Home-owners Association.

BLISS AND his wife, Joyce, have three children in Fremd High School and Dist. 15 schools. Bliss said he was interested in education at all levels, though his background is mostly in higher education.

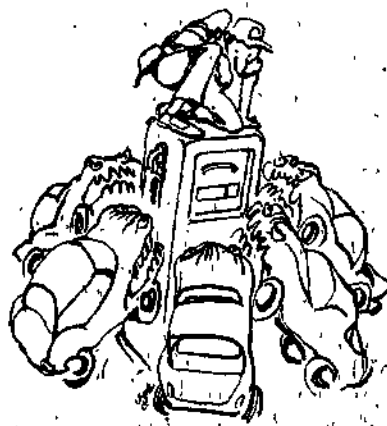

Mrs. Von Mayr, the wife of William Von Mayr, personnel director at Harper Junior College, is the mother of two children in Dist. 15 schools. She said she is interested in improving the district's transportation program and the lunch program.

She is active in the Buehler YMCA and the Harper YMCA. She is also in the board of Christian Education at St. John's United Church of Christ in Palatine and has served as a volunteer in music therapy at Little City in Palatine.

YOUNGSTERS GATHERED around "picture colors and the meaning of a Paul Klee painting of Brimm's fourth-grade class at Hunting Ridge lady" Patsy Kelly to listen as she discusses the Sinbad the Sailor. The students, members of Linda School, Palatine, asked questions and gave views.

Picture ladies

Mothers work to make art appreciation fun for elementary school students Mothers work to 3-24 b (2 flush rile short. About 100 mothers in Palatine and Rolling Meadows are bringing works of art to elementary classrooms in Dist. 15 each month in hope of making art appreciation easier and more fun.

The mothers, part of the national picture lady program that originated in Marion Jordan School 10 years ago, spend 15 to 20 minutes discussing each artwork with the youngsters.

"They (students) get exposure to a painting they may never get exposure to otherwise," said Bonnie Williams, PTA cultural arts chairman. The program is organized through school PTAs.

AND THE STUDENTS themselves can show off their new found knowledge when they go to the Chicago Art Institute with their parents, Mrs. Williams said. They can point to a piece of art and discuss it with the rest of the family.

"A lot of them (students) talk their parents into going to the art museum," Mrs. Williams added.

The picture lady program was nominated for a national volunteer award earlier this school year, Mrs. Williams said. No results have come back so far, she added.

The nomination will be announced at the annual picture lady luncheon March 14. The luncheon follows a guided tour of the Chicago Art Institute which begins at 10 a.m.

THE PURPOSE of the picture lady program is to enjoy art and have fun, Mrs. Williams said. The picture lady chooses a painting that she and her audience can relate to, then researches it.

When she takes the artwork — usually a copy of a famous painting — into the classroom, the picture lady might be wearing a clown's costume or a French beret, Mrs. Williams said.

This grabs the youngsters' attention and could also establish a mood, conveying the idea of the picture to the children, Mrs. Williams said when she showed "Old Guitars" by Picasso she dressed completely in blue to reflect the blue mood of the picture, and played her guitar.

"Anything to catch their attention right away," she said. Then the picture lady tries to get the feeling of a painting across to the youngsters and draw out the children's ideas on the picture.

"THEY ENJOY looking at the pictures and interpreting them according to the way they feel," said Hunting Ridge fourth grade teacher Linda Brimm. "They analyze each work and decide what's important to them."

The youngsters said they like the picture lady program. "It's fun and when they come in, they bring fun pictures and I enjoy it," said fourth grader Frank Cannistra of Hunting Ridge.

"It gives you a break and you can have fun doing it and you can tell your feelings (about a picture)," added another fourth grader, Alice Pollard, also of Hunting Ridge.

Village board wrapup

Engineer still being considered

The feasibility of hiring a fulltime village engineer still is being explored by the Palatine Village Board.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones had initially recommended the hiring of a fulltime engineer but indicated he would withdraw his recommendation if it would not result in a financial savings to the village.

This year an estimated $51,000 has been spent on engineering and the proposed budget for 1974-75 allots $55,000 for engineering costs.

Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett indicated a village engineer would not be able to handle all the village's engineering projects and a consulting firm would still have to be used for major projects.

"I don't think the village is large enough for a fulltime engineer," said Trustee Clayton W. Brown. "We can't get from one man the background we get from a consulting firm."

Brown estimated the cost of hiring a village engineer and providing him with a secretary, car and radio at $30,000 and another $30,000 in consulting fees.

The village board directed Bennett to explore the feasibility of hiring a fulltime engineer with Consoer and Townsend, the village's engineering consultants, and other villages which have hired their own engineer.

New planner appointed

Ralph Degner, president of the Palatine Jaycees, has been appointed to the Palatine Plan Commission by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

Degner, 649 Tahoe Tr., replaces Andy Carlson who resigned last fall.

Budget hearing March 18

A public hearing on Palatine's proposed 1974-75 budget has been scheduled for March 18.

The proposed $2,047,500 general operating budget is aimed at maintaining services at their present level and reducing property taxes by making better use of sales tax revenue, state income tax, motor fuel funds and federal revenue sharing.

RTA debate Tuesday night

Advocates and opponents of the proposed Regional Transit Authority will argue the issue Tuesday night at a debate and candidates' night sponsored by the Palatine League of Women Voters and St. Thomas of Villanova Women's Club.

State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and former Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl will debate the RTA issue at the 8 p.m. meeting at St. Thomas of Villanova School Hall, 1141 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

Candidates for Republican and Democratic township committeemen have also been invited to the session. Republican committeemen candidates are incumbent Bernard Pedersen and Anton Valukas, and Democratic committeemen candidates are incumbent Richard Mugalian and Peter Gerling.

The meeting is open to the public.

Fire causes $1,000 damage to home here

Fire started in a home furnace and laundry room at 750 N. Morris Ave., Palatine, Wednesday and caused an estimated $1,000 damage.

Palatine firemen said the blaze, which was termed accidental, may have started with clothes waiting to be laundered. The fire damaged the furnace and laundry facilities, and spread to the family room.

The home is owned by Peter Nance. Firemen were called to the scene at 1:30 p.m. and remained for one hour.

Fremd speech team takes two firsts

The Fremd High School speech team received two firsts and two seconds in a speech meet recently at Maine South High School.

Mark Penn won a first place in prose reading and he and Carla Lombardo placed first in dramatic duet acting. Miss Lombardo also won a second in verse reading and Kurt Mische placed second in oratorical declamation.

make more land available for commercial use.

High-rise office buildings are proposed for the area immediately south of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and west of Brockway Street.

KRIPAK SAID the high-rise office buildings could include five stories of office space and another 10 stories of apartments. He also indicated some commercial uses could be included in the office buildings.

One of the blocks proposed for high-rise buildings is almost completely owned by the Palatine National Bank. Construction of the high-rise office building could start quickly, according to Morrison. This is the block where Arlington Plating Co., 154 W. Wilson St., is now located.

The New Palatine Committee will present the land use plan to the village and residents in a series of public hearings following final adoption.

"This is a sensitive but forward-thinking plan. We don't want people to think we are going to bulldoze the area," said Morrison.

"We don't want to do it all at once. This is something we are going to have to break down into workable chunks and hope activity in one area generates activity in another," said Battles.

School board hopefuls file

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1904 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fisler and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fisler was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs. Fisler. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Jean Fisler

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fisler has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fisler, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 919 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsmen from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

Robert Seger

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Public works committee to review proposal

City to study Metron plan for bus service in city

Rolling Meadows officials have agreed to study a proposal from Metron Systems Corp. to establish a bus service in the city.

The proposal, which could provide six specialized bus packages for residents, will be reviewed by the Rolling Meadows City Council public works committee at its March 18 meeting. The committee will consider whether to recommend an expenditure of some $4,000 to the company to determine the cost of a bus program and how such a program would be run.

The decision to study the proposal came Tuesday during a city council meeting after the president of Metron, Claude G. Luisada, outlined a tentative service program that could be provided in the city.

LUISADA HAD been invited by Mayor Roland J. Meyer to address the council on a possible bus program. Luisada's company presently runs bus services in Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove and acts as consultants for the transit system in East Chicago, Ind.

The proposed service calls for six types of bus systems. They would include:

- A Railroad commuter service that would run from 6 to 8 a.m. from residential areas to the Arlington Park train station and from the station to the commuters' homes from 5:15 to 7:15 p.m.
- A city commuter service for residents who live and work in Rolling Meadows. The service would run from residential areas to the industrial parks, stores and offices in the city from 6:30 to 9:30 a.m. and from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.
- A dial-a-bus service that would pick up passengers on appointment and take them to desired locations from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 7:30 to 10 p.m.
- A shopper's shuttle service that would take riders to the Woodfield Shopping Center and which could also take riders to Northwest Community Hospital as required during the day.
- A Harper College service that would run as required during the day taking riders from the city to the school.
- An out-of-town employee service that could take city residents who work at Woodfield or the Motorola plant in Schaumburg to and from their jobs.

The services would use very small passenger buses with capacities of from 12 to 37 persons, according to an outline presented by Luisada.

Fares have not been determined, but he said they could be lower than what is charged in the Arlington Heights services since Rolling Meadows is a smaller community and more runs through it could be made in a day.

FARES VARY FOR services in the Arlington Heights program, with monthly railroad commuter service costing $15 and individual fares ranging from $1 for a one-day fare to $1.50 for a round-trip fare. The dial-a-bus service costs $20 for an unlimited monthly pass, 75 cents for round-trip fares and 50 cents for one-way fares.

Luisada said the system would have to be owned by the city but could be managed by Metron. He said in response to a question from Meyer that the program would be run on a break-even basis for the city.

He added the company would not run a trial bus program for a limited time because he said past experience has shown

Five file for three seats on Dist. 15 School Board

Five petitions for election to three seats on the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board were filed during the first day of filing yesterday.

Food stamps reinstated at NW center

The food stamp program at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been reopened, and officials are looking for a formal agreement that would give them a say in the future of the program.

Food stamp distribution at the center ended abruptly last month when state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent out to the center and six other suburban distribution outlets because of a manpower shortage.

A formal agreement would give the center a voice in the future of the program, Newton said. "The program would not be withdrawn until we have had a say and have seen what can be worked out," he said yesterday.

Opportunity Center Director Bruce Newton said he will be meeting with state officials early next week to work out the formal agreement and discuss the possibility of setting up an outpost in this area for people who are applying for public aid for the first time and people who are having problems with their case-workers.

PRESENTLY THOSE people have to go downtown to a Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first come-first-serve basis.

Food stamp counselors in the past went out to the center twice a week and served around 40 people each week. They returned Tuesday for the first time since last month. Officials at NCC are setting up appointments for future interviews.

Last month, the center had about 240 families waiting to receive food stamps. Many families now in the program also need appointments because they must be re-certified every two to six months.

Affected along with Rolling Meadows Center were the Montrose Avenue outpost, the Argo Summit west suburban outpost, Evanston, Maywood, Harvey and East Chicago Heights. All except Argo Summit have been reinstated, Newton said.

The three incumbents, Everett Charlier, J. Leslie Ehringer and Howard Meadors, have filed. Also running are two Palatine residents, Mrs. A. Rosamond Von Mayr of 2160 S. Elia Rd. and Robert Bliss of 533 Echo Ln., Palatine.

The sixth candidate, who has announced his intention to run but did not file yesterday, is Warren Franczyk of 1059 Old Mill Dr., Palatine.

Charlier, an assistant principal in Arlington Heights Dist. 25, is running for his second term this spring. He has been on the board for three years, since his election in 1971. Presently he is chairman of the new buildings committee.

Charlier was formerly a member of the board of directors of Countryside Center for the Mentally Handicapped and a member of the Palatine Combined Appeal from 1969 to 1970. He and his family live in Palatine.

EHRLINGER, SEEKING his ninth term, began his career on the school board in 1964, when he was appointed to a one-year term, replacing a board member who had resigned.

Ehringer presently serves as chairman of the Dist. 15 Education Committee. He is marketing manager for Interline Travel Market at United Air Lines and lives with his wife in Rolling Meadows.

Meadors is running for his seventh term on the school board. He is chairman of the personnel relations committee, which handles salary negotiations each year.

Meadors and his family live in Inverness. He is a partner in Hewitt Associates of Libertyville, a firm of actuaries and consultants on employee benefit programs.

Bliss is presently vice president of National Merit Scholarship corp. in Evanston. He is active in the United Methodist Church in Arlington Heights and was the first president of the Pleasant Hill Homeowners Association.

BLISS AND HIS wife, Joyce, have three children in Fremd High School and Dist. 15 schools. Bliss said he was interested in education of all levels, though his background is mostly in higher education.

Mrs. Von Mayr, the wife of William Von Mayr, personnel director at Harper Junior College, is the mother of two children in Dist. 15 schools. She said she is interested in improving the district's transportation program and the lunch program.

She is active in the Buehler YMCA and the Harper YMCA. She is also in the board of Christian Education at St. John's United Church of Christ in Palatine and has served as a volunteer in music therapy at Little City in Palatine.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report
The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebeniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebeniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

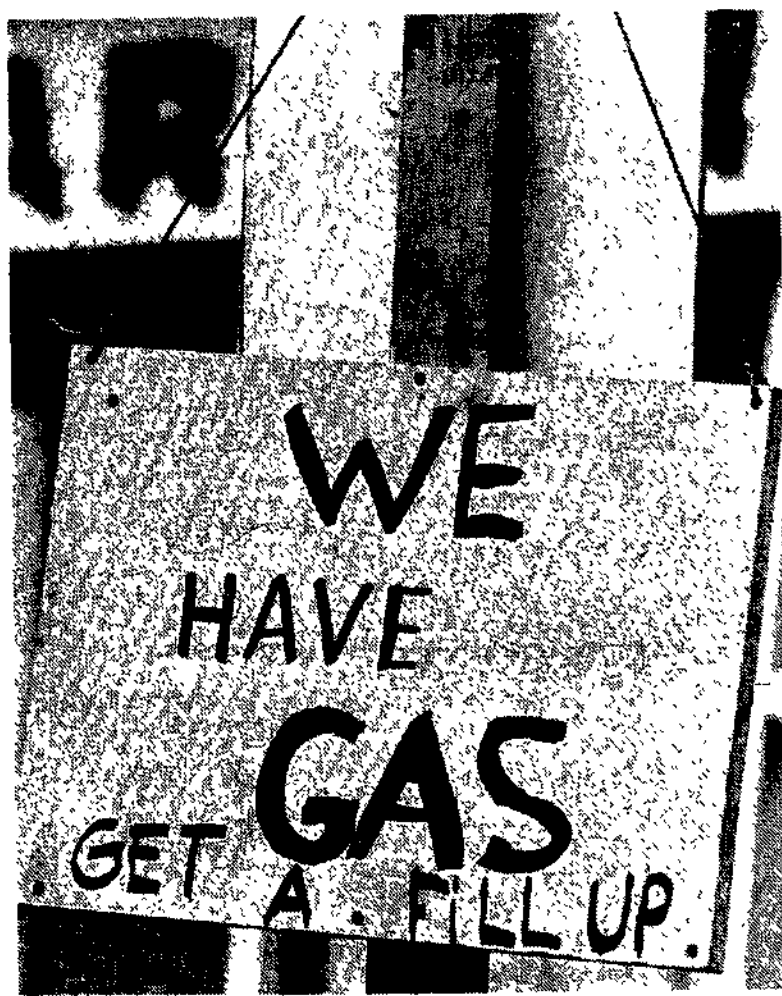

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

...and elsewhere in U.S.

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

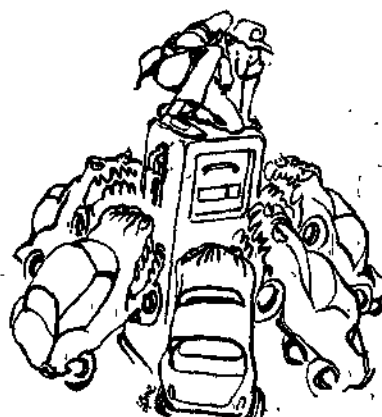

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fister and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 129 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fister was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs. Fister. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Jean Fister

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fister has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fister, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 313 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsmen from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

Robert Seger

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

City council wrapup

Nursing home hearing put off

A public hearing on a proposed nursing home to be built on Hicks Road and Winnetka Avenue in Rolling Meadows was postponed Tuesday until March 28.

The plan is being requested by Dr. Douglas R. Finlayson of Rolling Meadows. The proposal calls for the construction of a 90-bed convalescent and skilled care facility.

Finlayson's attorney Mark Beaubien Jr. requested the postponement to provide more time to work out details of the proposal.

Parade appropriation OKd

A $3,500 appropriation to pay for six drum and bugle corps groups to perform in the Rolling Meadows July 4 parade was approved by the council.

The six groups will be provided by the Musical Units Inc. company of Mount Prospect. They will perform in the planned parade and also in an evening concert.

A special clause was included in the contract agreement to free the city from payment if the July 4 activities have to be canceled for weather or other reasons.

Liquor license authorized

A license to sell packaged liquor was made available Tuesday to the new J. C. Penney Treasury store, scheduled to open Wednesday.

The class B. License was authorized when the city council voted to increase to eight the number of such liquor licenses available in the city. Mayor Roland J. Meyer, the city liquor commissioner, said he would sign the license immediately to allow the store to begin stocking packaged liquor in time for the Wednesday opening.

Computer rental approved

The council Tuesday OKd the rental of a new mini-computer system for the city. The council agreed to rent for $800 per month a Burroughs L6500 computer to record billings, city records, payroll and other inventory-keeping.

An additional $8,500 was authorized to prepare the programming needed to establish the computer banks.

The system was needed to replace the city's old computer system, which had only limited uses. The recommendation to accept the Burroughs system was made after several months of study by City Mor. James Watson, the finance committee and a special report prepared by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., the city's auditing firm.

Zoning groups named

A number of special city zoning commissions were appointed Tuesday to hear several requests for rezoning of property in the city.

Separate commissions will hear a proposal to rezone land on Emerson St. north of the planned Heather Ridge development for multi-family use; to rezone land on the south side of Kirchoff Road near California Avenue for a nursing home; to rezone land west of Rohlfing Road and south of Northwest Highway for a scrap metal yard; and to consider a change in the zoning code to allow billboards in special zoning classifications.

The nursing home proposal will come from Roskamp Enterprises, which is seeking to build a facility directly opposite a site which the council refused to rezone several weeks ago.

Land parcels annexed

Several small parcels of land were annexed by the city Tuesday. The parcels had been located next to city boundaries and could therefore be annexed by action of the city council.

The parcels are located between the Dawngate and Tall Oaks subdivisions on the western limits of the city and on East Frontage Road running along the edge of Central Road School.

$27,419 OKd for wells

The council approved a $27,419 expenditure for additional payment to the Layne Western Co. for required repairs on two city well sites. The additional cost was incurred when the company had to make more repairs on the two sites than had been originally anticipated, City Engr. James Muldowney said.

The company had originally submitted a low bid of $31,531 for the work.

Muldowney said the two well sites had originally pumped a combined total of only about 600 gallons of water per minute, but repairs have brought the capacity of the two up to more than 1,200 gallons per minute.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke (5th) questioned the added expenditure at one point, saying the city last year paid the same company some $45,000 to repair one of the two wells. But Muldowney said the recent repairs could not have been detected last year when the first work was done.

City wants water linked

A plan calling for a linking of suburban water systems to provide a mutual fire aid water supply will be sent by the city to the Northwest Municipal Conference for study.

The plan had been considered by the city fire department and public works committee at the suggestion of City Engr. James Muldowney. Committee chairman, Ald. John Rock (3rd) said the committee felt the matter might be better handled by the municipal conference.

Pet shop decision delayed

The council delayed action Tuesday on revising the city zoning codes to include pet shops as a permitted commercial use.

A public hearing on the matter was held Tuesday but Mayor Roland J. Meyer said final action should be postponed until a definition of pet shops is made by City Atty. Donald Rose to specify whether the shops would be for sale and grooming or for overnight boarding care as well.

A special city zoning commission had recommended the change to allow pet shops only in the C-2 commercial classification. Pet shops had been inadvertently omitted in the zoning code when the code was revised last year.

Tax funds collected

Deputy City Clerk Elizabeth Houldsworth reported Tuesday that $15,932 in motor fuel tax funds had been collected for the city in January.

YOUNGSTERS GATHERED around "picture lady" Patsy Kelly to listen as she discusses the colors and the meaning of a Paul Klee painting of Sinbad the Sailor. The students, members of Linda Brimm's fourth-grade class at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine, asked questions and gave views.

Picture ladies work to make art 'fun'

Mothers work to 3-24 b (2 flush rite short About 160 mothers in Palatine and Rolling Meadows are bringing works of art to elementary classrooms in Dist. 15 each month in hope of making art appreciation easier and more fun.

The mothers, part of the national picture lady program that originated in Marion Jordan School 10 years ago, spend 15 to 20 minutes discussing each artwork with the youngsters.

"They (students) get exposure to a painting they may never get exposure to otherwise," said Bonnie Williams, PTA cultural arts chairman. The program is organized through school PTAs.

AND THE STUDENTS themselves can show off their new found knowledge when they go to the Chicago Art Institute with their parents, Mrs. Williams said. They can point to a piece of art and discuss it with the rest of the family.

"A lot of them (students) talk their parents into going to the art museum," Mrs. Williams added.

The picture lady program was nominated for a national volunteer award earlier this school year, Mrs. Williams said. No results have come back so far, she added.

The nomination will be announced at the annual picture lady luncheon March 14. The luncheon follows a guided tour of the Chicago Art Institute which begins at 10 a.m.

THE PURPOSE of the picture lady program is to enjoy art and have fun, Mrs. Williams said. The picture lady chooses a painting that she and her audience can relate to, then researches it.

When she takes the artwork — usually a copy of a famous painting — into the classroom, the picture lady might be wearing a clown's costume or a French beret, Mrs. Williams said.

This grabs the youngsters' attention and could also establish a mood, conveying the idea of the picture to the children. Mrs. Williams said when she showed "Old Guitars" by Picasso she dressed completely in blue to reflect the blue mood of the picture, and played her guitar.

"Anything to catch their attention right away," she said. Then the picture lady tries to get the feeling of a painting across to the youngsters and draw out the children's ideas on the picture.

"THEY ENJOY looking at the pictures and interpreting them according to the way they feel," said Hunting Ridge fourth grade teacher Linda Brimm. "They analyze each work and decide what's important to them."

The youngsters said they like the picture lady program. "It's fun and when they come in, they bring fun pictures and I enjoy it," said fourth grader Frank Cannistra of Hunting Ridge.

"It gives you a break and you can have fun doing it and you can tell your feelings (about a picture)," added another fourth grader, Alice Pollard, also of Hunting Ridge.

'Financial trouble' is predicted

Despite warning, hospitals will go with construction

Financial trouble for Northwest suburban hospitals and the warning that a new hospital facility now planned "could get hurt badly," were predicted yesterday by Ben Squires, executive director-Comprehensive Health Coordinating Commission of Illinois.

He said the board of directors for hospitals planned in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Wheeling should seriously consider a decision not to build.

Available spokesmen from the hospitals said, however, they plan to proceed toward construction of their facilities.

SQUIRE'S WARNING is based on a Health Facilities and Service plan the state's Comprehensive Health Planning Agency is finalizing so that it may join with the U. S. Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) in controlling health care costs in Illinois.

The plan is based on a formula showing 1,625 hospital beds now available in northwest Cook County will serve the area's needs until 1979.

The formula states that additional facilities for under 200 hospital beds should be built as additions to the existing hospitals — Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove; Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge; and Resurrection Hospital, Chicago.

Contrary to the state's formula, Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital plans a 180-bed branch facility in Schaumburg at Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard. Amerivan Medicorp Inc. plans a 312-bed proprietary hospital at Higgins and Barrington roads, Hoffman Estates; and Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital in Chicago is seeking land for a 223-bed facility in Wheeling.

STATE HEALTH authorities predict "if they all go ahead they will up the cost of patient care without proper compensation," Squire said.

There is nothing the state can do, under current law, to stop construction of the hospitals if they get necessary permits before May or June, said Squire. By then the statewide health plan, subject to public hearings starting next month, should be approved. HEW regulations will be applicable under federal law and the state's formula for allowing new hospital construction will have some teeth, he added.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital hopes to have its permits by April, according to Norman Davis, consultant to the hospital. He expects to have a difficult time getting approval if Franklin Boulevard's plans are not ready before then.

The warnings from the state of financial dangers "don't concern me particularly," he added.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator for St. Luke's in Schaumburg, said his institution is committed to the community to build its facility. RSPL already has all necessary permits.

TOLD OF THE state's warning, Buhrmann said his facility was planned based on extensive study done by RSPL and was collaborated by a publicly funded study done by Ernst and Ernst.

Both showed the need for more hospital beds and the number of doctors they would attract to Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and the surrounding area, he added.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report

The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebienski, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebienski expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

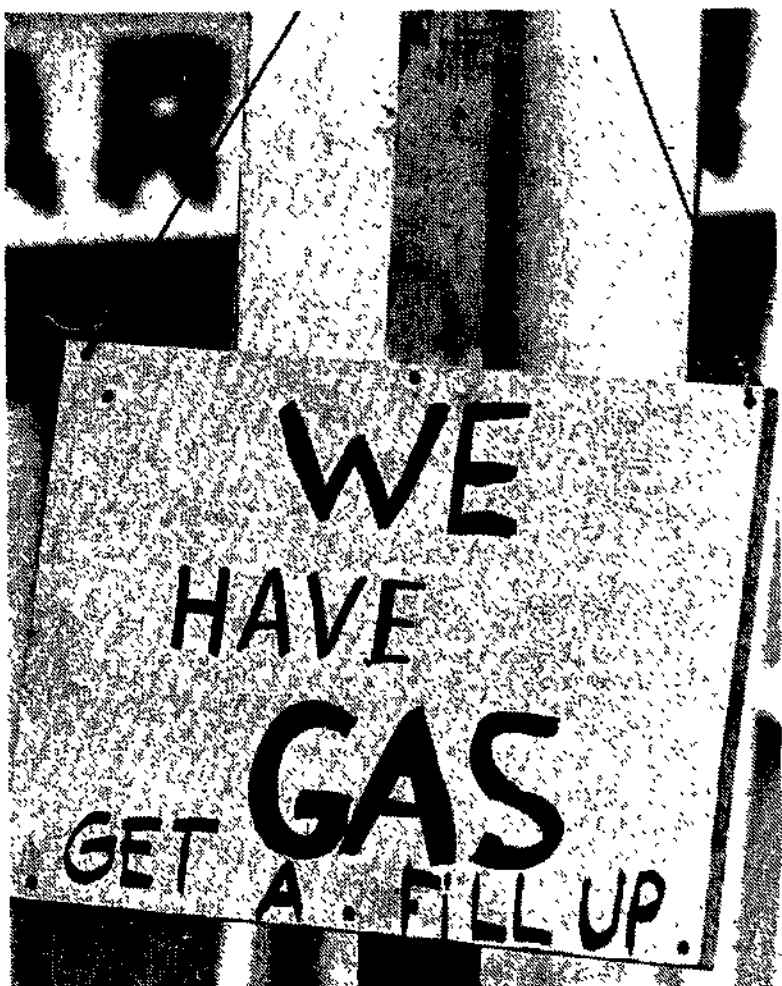

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis.; and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

LWV commends land-use policies here

by NANCY COWGER

A formal position adopted this week by the Schaumburg Hoffman Area League of Women Voters generally commends land-use policies of local governments but notes several areas for concern.

Uncertain policies in granting zoning changes or variances and in acquiring open or public use land and lack of cooperation between governmental units in determining how such land should be used were specifically cited by the league.

The position was approved this week by the league's executive board, and was drafted as a consensus reached at two unit meetings.

Mrs. Ruth Balster, president, said the league will eventually develop a program of action based on the position statement.

But it will not be hasty in choosing its course, she said.

"We are an action organization. We also are very new. We want to be sure the action we take is appropriate. We want to be a constructive force, and will not be hurrying into anything," said Mrs. Balster.

WHILE MRS. BALSTER said "a great deal of positive things were found," the league believes "there is not a really good working relationship" between local governing units with power over land use. "There could be better interaction. There was a suggestion the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission might play a bigger role in the planning process than it currently does," according to the statement.

Mrs. Balster said the statement refers to agencies which use open, or public, land. They now display "noncooperation as to how this land will be used," she said. The official position is "not primarily saying the two villages do not cooperate. It is broader than that," she said, suggesting it includes park and school districts as well.

While Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg ordinances provide a "basis for the promotion of good land use policy," members also believe "administration and enforcement of these ordinances may not always promote good land use policies." Mrs. Balster explained the league was referring to the granting of zoning changes or variances from existing zoning.

"We as citizens are concerned the whole zoning process and how to influence it be available to the ordinary citizen. Not that they can't (influence it), but that they don't know how," she said.

THE LEAGUE found the two villages "neither prevent nor encourage" development of moderate or low-income housing, and "have little or no effect" on attracting them. National, state and local league positions support equal housing opportunities for low and moderate-income persons.

The league also found a possible impact on funding local acquisition of open land in state and federal legislation. It found village policies do affect acquisition of open land, but felt further study is needed on the quality of land acquired and how it is used.

The statement endorses the concept of villages writing formulas for developer donations to meet citizen needs in such areas as schools, parks, hospitals and civic centers. But members were uncertain whether state or local governments should handle those needs, and wish to conduct more studies before suggesting what should be done or how to do it.

Three file for school board

James Blankenship, Esther Karras and Margaret Pageler Wednesday filed petitions of candidacy for the Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Blankenship, 39, of 229 Wickham Dr., Schaumburg, is an executive with the activities. She ran unsuccessfully for the board of education last year.

She has been a member of the Dist. 54 legislation committee and has been involved in the community interest survey prepared by the community relations committee.

Mrs. Karras, 308 Basswood St., is president of Schaumburg Area Council of Parent Teacher Assns. She has served on school board committees on community relations, policy, building and sites and education.

Terms of Adam Jelen, Jr. and Sherwood Spatz expire this year. Jelen has announced intentions to seek reelection but has not filed petitions; Spatz has made no announcement.

Petitions will be accepted at school district offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., through March 22. Position on the ballot will be determined by lottery.

Students, parents happy with schools: survey

Ninety-five per cent of the children attending Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 like their schools, according to the preliminary report of a recent survey.

Their parents "pretty well" like the school district too, the report indicates.

The survey was commissioned last year by the board of education's community relations committee and is to be reviewed at 8 tonight at a committee meeting at Keller Junior High School, 820 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Aigner charges school district 'plays favorites'

Schaumburg Trustee Herbert Aigner lashed out at School Dist. 54 this week for discriminatory practices in objecting to a recent zoning request while earlier ignoring approval of a Hoffman Estates project which permits 60 per cent three-bedroom units.

"I have had my fill of seeing this village constantly kicked around and picked on and I think it is going to stop," Aigner asserted.

He was referring to the official stand of Dist. 54 toward multiple zoning for Lexington Green, a 400-condominium unit project approved this week for development at Meacham and Old Schaumburg roads.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS consider a $150-per-child donation on enrollment, offered by Hallmark inadequate to offset the impact the development will make on Dist. 54. A ceiling of $30,000 has been established on the donation by Ronald Benach and Peter Bianchini, Hallmark principals.

Aigner was referring to Century Towers, a 333-unit apartment and condominium development on 33 acres along Bode Road in Hoffman Estates where more than half (213) units will have three bedrooms.

He criticized Dist. 54 Board Pres. Donnie Rudd for not objecting to the project, approved in September while Rudd represented the school district as a Hoffman Estates plan commission member.

Hoffman Estates officials contend they had no alternative since zoning, which permitted that bedroom mix, was granted on the land in the late 1960s and they also point out that Irving Rootberg, who obtained the zoning and later sold the property, has pledged a school site near the project.

RUDD RECENTLY called for a federal and state investigation of Benach for possible perjury charges in connection with Lexington Green zoning board testimony.

Rudd believes Benach told school officials he did not have to make the standard contributions since the land was partially owned by Mayor Robert O. Atcher and said the mayor controls zoning.

Benach, Rudd says, later denied making these statements when he testified under oath at a zoning hearing.

Benach has denied making the alleged statements concerning the mayor's property but said he was dismayed at the number of contributions he was asked to make which included Schaumburg's cultural and hospital funds.

The ordinance granting zoning for Lexington Green will be scheduled for final reading at the March 12 village board meeting.

Survey: students like schools

University and aimed to get a response from one out of every five residents within the school district's boundaries.

THERE WERE 50 questions asked concerning the broad range of services the school district provides. A highlight of the responses from more than 2,000 parents with children in Dist. 54 schools shows.

- 53.8 per cent of the children like school and 39.2 per cent like it very much.
- Among parents, 21.8 per cent think discipline is too strict, 38 per cent think discipline is lenient and 17.2 per cent think it too lenient.
- 67.7 per cent of the parents believe the report card system for reporting student progress is satisfactory or better; while 24 per cent do not.

- Three-fourths of the parents favor assigning children to a specific grade level 53 per cent of the parent surveyed expressed opposition to no regular grade level assignment the remainder were closely split saying they either favor the practice or said they had no basis for an opinion.
- THREE-FOURTHS of the parents thought the space in schools is adequate and that teachers meet the academic, social and emotional needs of students.
- 54 per cent of the parents favor a district wide hot lunch program while 46 per cent do not.

Food stamps reinstated at opportunity center

The food stamp program at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows has been reopened, and officials are looking for a formal agreement that would give them a say in the future of the program.

Food stamp distribution at the center ended abruptly last month when state officials announced that food stamp counselors would no longer be sent out to the center and six other suburban distribution outlets because of a manpower shortage.

A formal agreement would give the center a voice in the future of the program, Newton said. "The program would not be withdrawn until we have had a say and have seen what can be worked out," he said yesterday.

Opportunity Center Director Bruce Newton said he will be meeting with state officials early next week to work out the formal agreement and discuss the possibility of setting up an outpost in this area for people who are applying for public aid for the first time and people who are having problems with their case-workers.

PRESENTLY THOSE people have to go downtown to a Chicago public aid office, which screens families on a first come-first-serve basis.

Food stamp counselors in the past went out to the center twice a week and served around 40 people each week. They returned Tuesday for the first time since last month. Officials at NOC are setting up appointments for future interviews.

School board elections

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1964 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

day. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

"Also, he said, 'I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus.' Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 43, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fiesler and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fiesler was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs. Fiesler. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fiesler has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fiesler, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 919 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago, is a former newsman from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

March 6 red, green letter day

March 6 could be a red-and-green letter day for Schaumburg.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher announced this week that the Cook County Highway Department has set that date as a final inspection time for traffic signals recently installed at Roselle and Schaumburg roads and Roselle and Wise roads.

"The county highway department inspectors will be out at 10 a.m. that day and then we may have light at both corners if all goes well," the mayor said.

Both projects were part of a $260,000 signalization program installed under terms of the TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program to Increase Capacity and Safety) in which the village was assisted with supplemental funds from the county, state and federal government.

Work on both intersections began in September but completion was delayed because of inability to obtain signal control boxes.

Lights have been installed at both corners since late October but were not activated because final inspection had not taken place.

Police investigating death of resident

Hoffman Estates police are investigating the sudden death early yesterday of Jeanne Grothendieck, 44, of 130 Apache St.

Mrs. Grothendieck was reported by her husband to have brought in the morning paper at 7 a.m. and was found slumped in a chair with the paper and a cup of tea at 8:25 a.m., police said.

A police department spokesman said that presently there is no apparent medical reason for the death.

Charge local man

on theft, drug counts

John Sauer, 17, 1818 Warwick Ln., Schaumburg, will appear in Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court March 6 to answer charges of theft, possession of a controlled substance and possession of marijuana.

Woodfield shopping center security personnel chased Sauer after he was seen taking a cassette stereo from Music land and when he was caught, Sauer attempted to dispose of "several packages of green plant and foil-wrapped packets containing a white powder," Schaumburg police said.

The youth, unable to post $10,000 bond, is being held in Cook County Jail.

Survey asks what controls are needed

Village to poll gas dealers on how to handle shortages

The Village of Mount Prospect will survey gasoline dealers on whether they believe gas sales should be regulated.

The survey, which will be distributed today and tomorrow, will ask dealers if controls are needed and if so, what types of controls should be instituted.

Village officials decided to conduct the survey after meeting last night with 15 service station operators, representing half the stations in Mount Prospect.

No clear consensus was reached at the 1½-hour session and it was decided to poll all station operators before determining what — if anything — to do to prevent traffic backups during periods of gas shortages.

The dealers indicated that because of extra supplies, they have plenty of gas for the remainder of this week. "I've got 2,500 gallons to get rid of between now and tomorrow night," said Arthur Carlson, of Busse-Golf Standard. Gas that is not sold by the end of the month is to be returned to the state's reserve supply.

AT THE SAME TIME, though, dealers were not optimistic about next month's outlook. The situation was "severe" when stations received 85 per cent of their allotment, Gene Graham, of Colonial Standard, 201 S. Main St., said. "If it drops to 70 per cent, you can imagine the chaos it's going to cause."

Several suggestions for dealing with the anticipated return of long gas lines were tossed about, including an even-odd system under which motorists would be given gas only on certain days, depending on their license plate numbers; a minimum purchase plan to avoid topping off tanks; and staggered hours to spread out the times drivers could obtain gas.

Those and other options will be included in the two-part survey, which was drafted by Mayor Robert D. Teichert and Trustees E. F. Richardson and Kenneth V. Scholten after the meeting with the dealers.

The first part of the poll inquires whether any of the following conditions "constitute a problem in your operation and to what extent": traffic backups; topping off; restricted hours; restricted days; loss of tire, battery, accessory and motor oil sales; loss of back room (repair service); or personnel scheduling.

THE SECOND PART asks whether the dealers favor any of the following to cope with the gas shortage: odd-even system; flag system (red, yellow or green flags would designate no gas; gas for regulars or emergency, and unrestricted gas sales, respectively); appointment only; minimum purchase, maximum purchase; staggered hours; evening operations at selected stations; or local hotline for an emergency service.

The survey also asked dealers whether they would favor a committee of dealers to represent them in discussions with village officials.

The dealers are to return the survey to the village by Tuesday. Another meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. March 8 at the village hall to go from there.

Teichert said he believes the village should act as a vehicle in bringing local dealers together to discuss common problems because it does not appear the state is going to take any action. "I'm not anxious to just sit around waiting to see what happens if there's something we could do collectively," he said.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report
The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebleniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebleniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

MOUNT PROSPECT gasoline dealers listen to suggestions by Mayor Robert D. Teichert (right foreground) for coping with long lines at their stations. The dealers offered some ideas of their own during the meeting with village officials last night. A survey will be taken and another meeting is expected to be held next week.

Filing begins for school board races

Yesterday marked the official opening date for candidates who wish to run for school board positions in Mount Prospect to file their petitions of candidacy. Filing for the April 13 election will continue through March 22.

As of late yesterday afternoon, no one had filed in the race for two three-year terms in Dist. 57. Petitions are expected to be filed after tonight's meeting of the Dist. 57 Caucus, when the group makes its endorsements.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Lin-

The lines at gas stations are often 10 to 20 cars long in Milwaukee and the average wait for gas in St. Petersburg, Fla., is one hour.

But in most of the nation yesterday, stations were open to pump gasoline into the evening hours, there were no lines and the prices weren't much above the national average of 50 cents for regular and 54 cents for premium.

A Herald survey of prices and gas availability in 15 cities across the country revealed moderate difficulty in getting gasoline in Philadelphia, Boston, Rochester, N.Y., and Detroit.

But there was little difficulty for motorists in Atlanta, Ga.; Cleveland, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Evansville, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; St. Louis, Mo.; Green Bay, Wis., and Effingham, Ill.

IN SOME AREAS, laws requiring odd day-even day purchases according to license plate numbers have helped eliminate some problems.

And in Denver, where residents suffered two months of being virtually without gasoline last summer, a current supply 15 per cent below last year is more than adequate to meet demand.

Gas was selling there for 47 cents for regular and 50 cents for premium and stations were open into the evenings. An American Automobile Association spokesman said the situation last summer has resulted in a 25 per cent increase in bus ridership and 20,000 people using car pools, making the reduced gas supplies now adequate to meet demand.

In St. Louis, most stations were open to 8 p.m. and gas was selling for 49.5 cents for regular and 53.3 cents for premium.

IN DOWNSTATE Effingham, the price was up to 55.5 cents for regular and 58 cents for premium but residents were able to buy gasoline, even on Sundays. "I think in Effingham somewhere you could always find gas," a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said.

In Des Moines, where prices were at 48 cents and 52 cents some stations are closing for one day each week, but generally are open until 10 p.m.

In Evansville, Ind., the gossip around town was that tank farms nearby were overflowing with gasoline while 50 per cent of the stations in town had pumped their storage tanks dry and wouldn't receive any more gasoline until March, an AAA spokesman said.

Despite the closed stations there were no lines. Stations that still had gas were open for regular hours and were not imposing purchase limits. "It's not all that serious, but you might have to go a block to get gas," the spokesman said.

UP NORTH IN Green Bay, Wis., the sole indication that there is a gas shortage is that only eight stations in town are open on Sundays. Prices there were running 48 cents for regular and 51 cents for ethyl.

In Philadelphia half the stations were pumped dry and the other half were open for reduced hours. The price was 48 cents for regular and 53 cents for ethyl with a 2-cent hike per gallon expected on Friday.

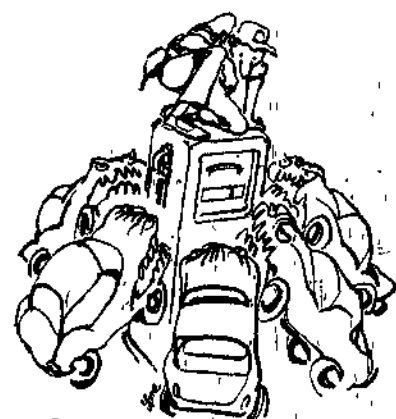

Prices were up to 58 cents for premium in Rochester, N.Y., where a new state law prohibits sales to motorists unless the gas tanks were less than half full.

In Cleveland, premium was going for 58 cents a gallon and the only lines were at independent stations where the gasoline was being sold at cheaper prices.

THE PROSPECT HEIGHTS Park District's proposed pool renovation and community center are shown in the above artist's rendering. A referendum will have to be passed to fund the project for which no cost has been set. The pool and baseball diamond already exist. The floor plan below details what will be in the new building. The property is bounded by Elm Street and Camp McDonald Road.

Parks preparing campaign to sell new center, pool

by TOM VON MALDER
The Prospect Heights Park District now knows what its new community center and renovated Lions Park pool will look like. In accepting preliminary plans this week, the park commissioners voiced their approval of the plans. The task ahead is to make the voters of the park district like the plans.

Commissioner William Kuhns said he is putting together a slide presentation of various park activities and facilities to be shown to groups. The publicity campaign for the referendum cannot really be started yet, however, as the exact amount needed has not been determined.

Gerald Page, who with James H. Deal drew up the plans, said the cost of the proposed center is not final yet. New figures are still coming in, he added. In earlier discussions of the referendum, however, park officials estimated the referendum could be as high as $1.1 million. Part of the money would be used for other park projects.

THE 19,000-SQUARE-FOOT building will be constructed of tan reinforced concrete with light brown metal siding on some sections. At its highest point, the building will stand 23 or 24 feet. This will be at the northeast corner where the gymnasium will be located.

The section of the building closest to the pool, which will be one-story in height, will mainly house pool offices and locker rooms. There will also be a large meeting room, which can be divided in two at the front of the building.

Other facilities will include two arts and crafts rooms, two handball courts, an exercise room, a club room, concession area and kitchen for the meeting rooms. Added to the outside will be six tennis courts, two practice tennis courts, a playground area and a children's wading pool.

VISITORS WILL BE able to enter and leave the center from Camp McDonald Road and will be able to exit only onto Elm Street. Parking spaces for 82 cars will be located mostly in a strip running north-south to the east of the building.

According to Page, the entire plan was built around the pool as the old pool will still be used. However, the pool will be renovated, including a relining and raising of it. The pool will be raised by filling in the bottom of the existing pool and rebuilding the deck area.

In other action Tuesday night, the park board said it would like to lease all 40 acres of the High School Dist. 214 property, west of Wheeling Road and north of Camp McDonald Road. The two districts are negotiating for the land, which is now leased by a farmer.

A strong possibility exists that, should the park district get the land, a portion will be set aside for small gardens which would be cultivated by families who live in the district. These latter-day "Victory Gardens" could be used to grow vegetables or flowers, the park board said. The rest of the land would be used for football and baseball fields.

New Town rejects double taxation plan

Representatives of the New Town area of Mount Prospect have rejected a suggestion that residents of their area be doubly taxed in order to keep the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space.

A resolution calling for a single village-wide referendum to buy the golf course property was adopted unanimously this week by the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations.

Seven of the eight homeowners' groups from the New Town area were represented at the meeting Monday night. The Rainbow Ridge subdivision was not represented.

The vote came after a suggestion by Richard N. Hendricks, a Mount Prospect village trustee, that both the village and the River Trails Park District conduct surveys on the willingness of residents to pay extra taxes in order to keep the golf course "green." The village has already announced plans for a survey, but the park district is not likely to conduct one.

Hendricks said he thinks the idea was favorably received, but after he left the meeting, the resolution opposing his suggestion was passed.

THE NEW TOWN area is adjacent to the Rob Roy Golf Course, east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue, and residents of the area are particularly interested in retaining the course as open space.

The New Town area also is in the River Trails Park District, while most of the rest of the village is in the Mount Prospect Park District.

Hendricks suggested that the River Trails Park District conduct a survey on Rob Roy which presumably would show that New Town residents would be willing to pay extra taxes to buy the course.

The survey, he said, would set an example to the rest of the village that the New Town area would be willing to pay twice — as residents of the River Trails Park District and as residents of the village. As a result, he said, other residents who don't live in the immediate area of the golf course may be inclined to support a village referendum to buy the golf course.

Renewed interest in the village's buying the $8 to $9 million course has been prompted by a proposal by Kenroy Inc., Skokie, to build 4,500 apartment and condominium units on Rob Roy.

Village officials have stated they will survey the village next month on the willingness of residents to buy the course.

School board elections

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1984 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

these names for further consideration to the general caucus.

In Dist. 26, two candidates filed petitions yesterday for the two three-year terms that will be decided in the April race. Sylvia Lurie, 122 Bonnie Brae Ln., and Frank Smith, 903 Quince Ln., both of Mount Prospect, submitted their petitions yesterday. Both candidates have been endorsed by the Dist. 26 Caucus.

Mrs. Lurie, an incumbent, has been on the board for one year. Smith has lived in the district two years.

Marsha Lupton, an incumbent whose seat will be up for election in April, has decided not to seek reelection.

IN DIST. 58, one candidate filed yesterday. Avis Wold, 1260 Larchmont Dr., Elk Grove Village, submitted petitions for one of the two three-year terms that will be filled in the April election.

The two incumbent Dist. 58 board members, Erwin Poklacki and Allen K. Sparks, have not yet filed. Poklacki has said he will not seek reelection. Sparks, board president, said he is undecided about making another bid for the board but he has taken out candidacy petitions.

Two incumbent Dist. 21 board members filed petitions yesterday seeking reelection to their three-year terms. Jeremiah Crise and Jack Lane, both of Arlington Heights, failed to receive caucus backing but will run as independents.

Carol Karzen of Buffalo Grove, who was endorsed by the caucus, did not file yesterday.

The seats of Crise and Lane are the only board terms which will be decided in the April race.

Developer still seeks to build on St. Viator site

Decision against low-income housing may be appealed

by KURT BAER

The director of the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. (MHDC) yesterday gave strong indications that the non-profit developer will appeal the judicial decision which rejected a low-income housing proposal near St. Viator High School.

"Eminently appealable" is the way Salvatore Ferrera characterized U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen's nine-page decision in a case which charged the Village of Arlington Heights with racial discrimination in failing to rezone Viatorian-owned land for the housing project.

MHDC's board of directors will meet in two weeks to make a formal decision on whether to carry the case to the U. S. Appeals Court.

"Narrow, almost picky findings" describe the judge's opinion on several key points, Ferrera said. Particularly important, he said, is the question of whether the equal protection guarantee of the 14th Amendment extends to housing.

In the decision handed down Friday, McMillen said the 14th Amendment has been applied to the fields of education and the use of public facilities, but has not been extended into the area of housing.

"I FIND THAT very peculiar in light of the pattern that's been established," Ferrera said. "What rationale is there for saying you can't discriminate in disposing of public property, but can discriminate with private property?"

"I believe the Supreme Court has been waiting for that kind of issue," he said. "This is a precedent setting case."

Ferrera also zeroed in on McMillen's finding that while housing is scarce for low wage earners generally in Arlington Heights, there is no evidence that this is the result of racial discrimination.

"It is a very small step to show that this affects Blacks and Spanish-speaking more because there are disproportionate numbers of them in the lower income strata, without accessibility to higher cost housing," he said.

There are several other points in the judge's opinion which seem to give room for an appeal, he said.

McMillen states that multi-family housing on the Viatorian land would be the "highest and best use" of the property, but then goes on to say that the village does not have to rezone the property that way if it does not want to.

This viewpoint would be a "minority opinion" in a state court, which normally would handle a zoning case, Ferrera said. He added that MHDC is not likely to file a lawsuit with the state court, however, because of its conviction that a federal, civil rights violation is at issue.

HE DISPUTED McMillen's conclusion that MHDC could not proceed with its housing project because of the federal freeze on funds for subsidized housing.

"What's the difference? We were discriminated against at a prior time when the funds were available, and besides we could build under the Illinois Housing Development Authority," he said.

Federal rules allow 30 days after a decision for filing an appeal.

"If past policy holds, we will go," Ferrera said. MHDC attorneys have been studying McMillen's opinion all week looking for grounds on which to appeal, he said.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh has said that the village will continue to defend its 1971 decision for as long as necessary.

2 file petitions for school board race

Two candidates for the Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 Board election filed nominating petitions yesterday, the first day for filing.

Joan Klusmann of 3 E. Canterbury and Robert Kazlauskis of 639 N. Kaspar both submitted their petitions by carrier early yesterday morning.

Both candidates were earlier endorsed to run in the April 17 election by the Dist. 25 nominating committee, commonly known as the caucus.

Mrs. Klusmann and Kazlauskis are incumbents whose terms expire in April. They are seeking reelection to two positions opened this year. At this time they are the only candidates to file petitions. During the caucus meetings held last month, a total of four candidates went before caucus members to be screened for endorsement.

BESIDES MRS. KLUSMANN and Kazlauskis, those seeking endorsement were James L. Foster of 1416 N. Walnut and H. Robert Powell, 110 S. Kennicott. Both Foster and Powell declined to run as independent candidates.

Traditionally school board candidates are listed in the same order they file the nominating petitions. This year Mrs. Klusmann will be listed first on the ballot and Kazlauskis second, said Dan Sufolietto, business manager for the district and secretary to the board. Any other petitioners' names will follow, he added.

Petitions will be accepted for filing until March 22. Persons may get petition forms from the administrative office at

Joan Klusmann

Robert Kazlauskis

301 W. South St. or at any school in the district.

Along with the petitions, which require at least 50 signatures, a statement of candidacy is required. Candidates must also file a statement of economic interest with the Cook County Clerk's office.

Election filings open in area

Other elementary school districts in the area with schools in Arlington Heights began accepting nominating petitions yesterday from candidates running for the school board elections.

In Dist. 21, which serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, incumbent school board members Jeremiah Crise and Jack Lane were reported to have returned petitions yesterday.

Carol Karzen of Buffalo Grove, said she was running for the Dist. 21 board but did not submit a petition yesterday. Mrs. Karzen is the only candidate endorsed by the district's General Caucus.

Crise's name will appear on the ballot first since he was the first to file.

In another school board election, Erwin Poklaski, the only Arlington Heights resident to have served on the Dist. 59 School Board, declared he will not seek reelection.

A NOMINATING petition was submitted by Avis Wold of Elk Grove Village, Allen K. Sparks, current board president, did not file yesterday but took out a petition. He said he was undecided whether he will run.

School Dist. 58 serves Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

In Dist. 23, which serves Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights, Melvin Lacey filed a petition to seek reelection for his third term. He is an incumbent and serves as the board president.

Vincent Battaglia, also an incumbent, took out a nominating petition but did not file yesterday. Battaglia will be running for his first full term on the board, after serving a one-year term last year.

The last date for filing nominating petitions is March 22.

Gas flowing here again...

A Herald staff report
The pumps are open, the lines are gone and Northwest suburban service stations — at least for now — are returning to normal.

A spot check of local dealers yesterday indicated most service stations extended their hours in the past two days and have substantial supplies of gasoline available at least until this weekend.

In an effort to attract customers, several stations even displayed signs yesterday indicating they were open for business and urging motorists to stop in for gasoline.

"It's a beautiful thing. I can even do a window," said Robert Skwierczynski, owner of Bob's Marathon Service in Mount Prospect.

EXCEPTIONS TO the rule are Shell Oil Co. stations. Many reported yesterday they have little gasoline available and expect a substantial reduction in their March allocations. A Shell spokesman said company trucks have been unable to make emergency allocation deliveries this week because of a "breakdown in communications" with state government.

Some dealers face a temporary surplus of gasoline and were wondering yesterday what happened to the customers that crowded their stations in recent weeks.

"I'm sitting here waiting for the lines, but it looks like we're going to be giving some (gasoline) back," said Richard Grzebeniak, owner of the Nursery Standard in Arlington Heights.

His station received its extra allocation Saturday but since then business has been slow. Grzebeniak expects another 4,000 gallons on top of that in the next few days.

Jeff Gross, owner of River-Rand Standard in Des Plaines also has a surplus.

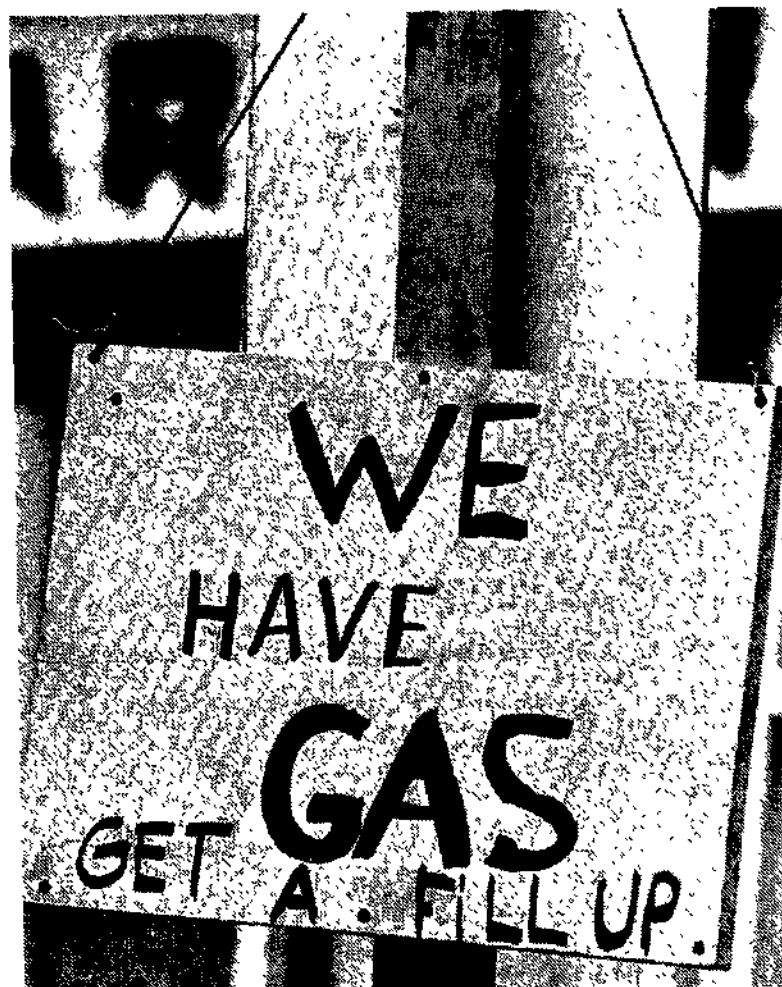

"SEND SOME PEOPLE over," he said. "I've got so much gas I don't know what to do with it. The last three days have been terrible. Nobody's coming in. I guess people think things are all over and they don't have to keep full tanks."

Another Standard dealer, Richard Vance of Mount Prospect Standard, said: "I'm trying to get rid of it. I've got more gas probably than I'll be able to pump before the end of the month."

Like Vance, many station operators are happy to get their emergency end-of-the-month allocations but are looking with apprehension toward next month. "The first of March, it's all over with," he said. "I don't know what we're going to get then."

Many dealers contacted yesterday either did not know what their allocations will be for next month or had doubts that they would receive what is promised. The current relief, according to John Vetro of Gene's Marathon in Schaumburg, will last "about a month and then get back to the way things were at the end of January, because this can't last forever."

"I'M SURE IT'S JUST a momentary thing," said a spokesman for Tal's (Continued on page 15)

Deadline for saving $9 on stickers

Today is the last day for residents to purchase 1974 Arlington Heights vehicle stickers before a new $10 penalty fee goes into effect.

Starting tomorrow, vehicle stickers will cost $20. The current price is $11. The decals purchased before the Feb. 15 deadline cost $10.

As the deadline draws near, Kenneth Bonder, village finance director, said approximately 29,500 1974 stickers have been sold. The total sold for last year was 29,916, he said.

THOSE RESIDENTS WHO do not purchase new stickers, or who have not bothered with purchasing them in the past are running the risk of being ticketed by the Arlington Heights police.

Police cadets assigned to check parking violations are also inspecting cars for current wheel tax stickers. Those cars without a decal will receive a $3 ticket.

The police cadets are surveying the cars on the streets and in the commuter parking lots for sticker violations. While private company lots are not regularly checked, cars in them are still liable to be ticketed for not having the up-to-date stickers, Weber said.

Some parking lots are goldmines of cars not in compliance with the village vehicle tax ordinance.

WEBER ESTIMATED about 50 per cent of apartment dwellers did not purchase stickers last year. He said he expected an equal number of violators this year.

Last year police made periodic, systematic sweeps of apartment complex parking lots at night to "flag" cars without valid stickers. The same procedure will probably be followed this year, Weber said.

But this system is not without its faults. Of the thousands of cars within a lot, police admit it can be very hard to determine what cars belong to residents and what cars have been borrowed or may belong to a guest or visitor.

Weber said if the car is operated here for more than six months out of the year, the car must have a village tax sticker.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, Anna Stober and Richard Bachhuber, both board members of the health center, spoke.

The series of informal meetings, which are being held twice a month, are attempts to familiarize area residents with the services available at the Northwest Mental Health Center located at 1711 W. Campbell.

"We want the community to know what we can provide and what we can't provide," said Jerry Medow, director.

Members from the organization plan to conduct these informal meetings in homes of community club and organization members.

Village lacks parking; may subsidize commuter buses

Arlington Heights may have to subsidize commuter bus service because it cannot afford to provide a limitless number of parking spaces near the village's railroad stations, Village Pres. Jack Walsh told a recent meeting of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

The pressure on commuter parking is growing every year, not only from Arlington Heights residents, but from people in other communities that use Arlington Heights as their railroad commuter stop, Walsh said.

The village already has subsidized local bus service in the amount of $66,000 used to purchase two buses for Metron Systems Corp., now operating three commuter bus lines in Arlington Heights.

Under a one-year agreement, Metron is supposed to lease the buses at a monthly rate of 1/60 of the purchase price. But so far the fledgling company has been unable to pay anything, said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Walsh did not say when, or how much of a village subsidy might be required in the future. But among bus operations generally "there are no examples of it being profitable, no success stories," he said.

THE PRICE OF providing additional commuter parking near the downtown train station has climbed to $2,500 per space, without including the cost of meters and maintenance, he said.

A daily rate of 50 cents will not even pay the interest charges on the cost of buying on space, Walsh said.

"We are totally dependent on the automobile and it is totally unrealistic to expect that the automobile is going to continue to be available to everyone," Walsh said.

In other subjects discussed Tuesday night with the Chamber of Commerce, Hanson predicted that a long-delayed railroad crossing at Ridge and Walnut streets would be constructed within the next 12 months.

The crossing is bogged down in court because of special assessment proceedings involving George Poole, of Poole Ford who owns property on both sides of the proposed crossing.

HANSON ALSO said that streetlights along Northwest Highway from Vail Avenue to Wilke Road are planned. But installation is being held up by the Chicago and North Western Ry. which is demanding $10,500 for permission to set the lights on its right-of-way which runs to the southern edge of the highway.

"We could move the lights to the north side of the highway, but that would make a mish-mash going through the community," Hanson said. Street lights stretch ing east from Vail Avenue to Mount Prospect are installed on the south side of Northwest Highway.

"We're telling the railroad that we've spent thousands of dollars beautifying their right-of-way through the village," Hanson said, in hopes of getting it to give up its $10,500 fee.

"I'm not sure whether the village will end up paying the money or not. But the lights will be put in. There's no question about it," he said.

School board elections

Harper College

One incumbent and one newcomer filed Wednesday for the Harper College Board of Trustees.

William A. Kelly, 317 S. Stratford Rd., Arlington Heights, and Stanley E. Carrier, 1864 Chelmsford Pl., Hoffman Estates, became the first two candidates for the four board seats which will be filled in the April 13 election.

The four seats include three three-year terms and one two-year term.

Kelly, 54, is an attorney who works for a law firm dealing with environmental law. He has served on the board since he was appointed last January. He was elected last April to finish a one-year unexpired term.

"I SAID LAST YEAR I would really get two trial periods, one of three months and one of one year," Kelly said yesterday.

day. "I think based on my experience I can be of value on the board."

Kelly said he expects the new college evaluation system for faculty, which allows for student evaluation for the first time, to be an issue in the election.

Also, he said, "I think people want to be better informed on the implications of a second campus." Harper recently received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to continue planning for a second campus and has asked the Arlington Heights Village Board to set aside land for the campus at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads on its master plan.

Kelly said the second campus question "is a very formidable issue and one that deserves much more thought. I think we need more input from the community and I for one will be listening to the people carefully."

Carrier, 33, is a retail salesman for Kimberly-Clark Corp. He said he has lived in Hoffman Estates for three years and before that was a resident of Mount Prospect for two years.

CARRIER SAID his interest in Harper stems from a belief that junior colleges "ought not to be just a two-year equivalent to what's going on in a four-year institution. I feel very strongly for vocational education."

He said he understands that Harper has vocational programs, but said he thinks more will be needed "as the Northwest suburbs become more industrially oriented."

Filing for the Harper board will continue until March 22 at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

District 211

Incumbents Jean Fisler and Robert Seger filed nominating petitions for reelection to the High School Dist. 211 board of education yesterday.

They were the only candidates to bring in petitions on the first day of filing. Dist. 211 business manager James Slater said Richard Johnson, 128 Nerge Rd., Schaumburg, picked up petition forms yesterday but has not yet filed. The last day for filing nominating petitions is March 22. School elections are April 13.

Mrs. Fisler was appointed to the Dist. 211 board last November to fill the unexpired term of Paul Hughes.

She said yesterday, "I've been very excited about being on the board these past few months. It's been stimulating and a challenge to be involved with the educational process. I'm looking forward to being able to continue to serve to work further on some of the projects I've become involved in in the last few months."

"I'M GOING to be actively seeking the support of the young voters," said Mrs. Fisler. She said she wants to "really listen to what young people have to say about their education process, to try to understand what they're saying and to actively seek the participation of the under-21 voters to get them to continue their interest in the board of education by actually getting out and voting. They have a lot to offer to us and I want to be responsive."

Since she has been on the board, Mrs. Fisler has voiced her disapproval of the district's policy of expelling students for breaking school attendance rules and has often abstained from voting to expel students for this reason. She has been appointed to a committee to study special programs in other schools for students with discipline problems as an alternative to expelling them from school.

Mrs. Fisler, of 9215 S. Mallard Dr., Palatine, was an attorney in California for 17 years practicing juvenile and family law before moving to Palatine in 1970. She now works for The Bridge youth services bureau in Palatine as a consultant on youth.

SEGER OF 919 Canterbury, Schaumburg, was elected to the Dist. 211 board in 1971. He works for a public relations firm in Chicago. Is a former newsman from Rockford and now lives in Schaumburg.

"I think they are still things to do and I'm still interested," Seger said yesterday. "I don't like to just sit back and complain without doing something about it," he said. "I think I've made a contribution and I would like to continue making a contribution."

Some issues that he said he is particularly concerned with this year are curriculum, the district's student discipline policy, and school facilities. He said he will explore the possibility of adding auditoriums or swimming pools to some of the schools. "I'd like to see our facilities improved," he said. In particular, he said, "I'd like to see Schaumburg High School improved because we are tight over there." Schaumburg was built in 1970 with state funds. It was planned for 2,500 students but has an actual capacity of 2,100 students.

District 214

Richard Bachhuber filed for his fourth term of the High School Dist. 214 board of education becoming the first candidate for election on April 13.

No other candidates filed yesterday, the first day they could turn in petitions for the two three-year terms on the board which will be involved in the election.

Bachhuber, of 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has served on the Dist. 214 board since 1965. He is a retired engineer who worked for the Cook County School Superintendent's office from 1970 until 1971.

Bachhuber said yesterday he thinks the district "is in excellent shape in all ways," but added that "I still see some changes that could be made in the area of discipline and I'd like to be part of them."

He said he has been "doing some hard thinking" about what to do about students who misbehave in school. "I think we have to look more at the causes," he said.

Petitions for the board seats may be filed through March 22 at the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Hospitals go with construction anyway

Financial trouble for Northwest suburban hospitals and the warning that a new hospital facility now planned "could get hurt badly," were predicted yesterday by Ben Squires, executive director-Comprehensive Health Coordinating Commission of Illinois.

He said the board of directors for hospitals planned in Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Wheeling should seriously consider a decision not to build.

Available spokesmen from the hospitals said, however, they plan to proceed toward construction of their facilities.

SQUIRE'S WARNING is based on a Health Facilities and Service plan the state's Comprehensive Health Planning Agency is finalizing so that it may join with the U. S. Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) in controlling health care costs in Illinois.

The plan is based on a formula showing 1,625 hospital beds now available in northwest Cook County will serve the area's needs until 1979.

The formula states that additional facilities for under 200 hospital beds should be built as additions to the existing hospitals — Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove; Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge; and Resurrection Hospital, Chicago.

Contrary to the state's formula, Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital plans a 180-bed branch facility in Schaumburg at Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard. Amerivan Medicorp Inc. plans a 312-bed proprietary hospital at Higgins and Barrington roads, Hoffman Estates; and Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital in Chicago is seeking land for a 223-bed facility in Wheeling.

STATE HEALTH authorities predict "if they all go ahead they will up the cost of patient care without proper compensation," Squire said.

There is nothing the state can do, under current law, to stop construction of the hospitals if they get necessary permits before May or June, said Squire. By then the statewide health plan, subject to public hearings starting next month, should be approved. HEW regulations will be applicable under federal law and the state's formula for allowing new hospital construction will have some teeth, he added.

Franklin Boulevard Hospital hopes to have its permits by April, according to Norman Davis, consultant to the hospital. He expects to have a difficult time getting approval if Franklin Boulevard's plans are not ready before then.

The warnings from the state of financial dangers "don't concern me particularly," he added.

Henry Buhrmann, administrator for St. Luke's in Schaumburg, said his institution is committed to the community to build its facility. RSPL already has all necessary permits.

TOLD OF THE state's warning, Buhrmann said his facility was planned based on extensive study done by RSPL and was collaborated by a publicly funded study done by Ernst and Ernst.

Both showed the need for more hospital beds and the number of doctors they would attract to Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and the surrounding area, he added.
